Corporations To Incite War On Spending, Rayburn Says

Bases Charge on Letter Sent Anonymously to the President.

Fears Repetition Of Protest Flood

House Developments.

House Majority Leader Rayburn charged that great corporations are preparing a flood of propaganda against the President's $4,512,000,000 spend-lend program, using as proof a letter received at the White House.

The House approved an initial $2,700,000 to start the vast Gilbertsville (Ky.) TVA dam by a seven-vote margin after the Administration converted 26 Democrats and one Republican who voted against the fund a month ago.—Page 2.

The House Rules Committee will begin wage-hour hearings Thursday as reports continue that Southern Democrats and Republicans on the committee will combine to delay consideration of the bill until near adjournment.

Propaganda Charged.

By Sidney Olson.

"Huge corporations" are "plotting" to sabotage the President's $4,512,000,000 relief-recovery program through "a great flood of propaganda," Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, charged on the floor of the House late yesterday.

Recalling the waves of telegrams, letters and postcards that poured into Washington opposing the Government reorganization bill, Rayburn warned that a "similar flood" is again being prepared.

In support of his charges he brandished a letter received at the White House and given to him. The letter, anonymously written because, the sender said, "I don't sign my name because I might lose my job," inclosed a series of printed petitions opposing pump-priming as "monstrous folly."

Letter Is Quoted.

The letter said:

"Dear Mr. President:

"I thought you (and Jim Farley) might be interested in copies of the new propaganda about to be launched on members of Congress against your recovery program, and that your leaders in Congress might get ahead of this and take the teeth out of it before they get started by letting them know beforehand where the stuff actually originates.

"This is being originated in a large corporation in Detroit, Mich., the same outfit that got out the chain telegrams started by their henchmen in different States, many of which were signed by minor children, babes in arms, and even the family pet poodle, and Congress fell for it like a ton of brick, so they are about to try it again. The minor children and pet poodles cannot vote.

"(Signed)

O'Connor Talks on Air.

While signs of budding Congressional revolt against the program were few, the man who led the successful House opposition to the President's Government reorganization bill, Chairman John O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, of the House Rules Committee, took to the radio to deplore the spending program as "only a hypodermic."

Senate Passes D. C. Tax Bill In 3 Minutes

$5,200,000 Measure Due to Reach White House by Week's End.

By James D. Secrest.

The District tax bill, carrying $5,200,000 in revenue to balance the local budget for the next fiscal year, was rushed through the Senate yesterday in three minutes during a pause in debate on the naval expansion measure.

Chairman King of the Senate District Committee obtained permission from Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who is handling the Navy bill, and Majority Leader Barkley to call up the local revenue measure a few minutes before the Senate adjourned.

While no general opposition was anticipated, Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, had indicated he would move to eliminate a provision specifically applying the business privilege tax to interstate commerce. He was absent, however, when the bill was called up.

Likewise, proponents of the income tax, Senators La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, and Borah (Republican), of Idaho, were not in the chamber. Last year they sponsored the income tax amendment from the floor.

The House probably will send the bill to conference today, and it is

American Is Freed In Mexico Slaying

By the Associated Press.

William N. Fink, American mining engineer arrested by Mexican authorities at Chihuahua City on an assassination charge, has been released unconditionally, Mexican Ambassador Najera informed Undersecretary of State Welles this afternoon.

Najera said Fink was released because the Mexican government's inquiry at the behest of the United States State Department disclosed Fink had been arrested on insufficient evidence.

Advices received by The Post were that Gov. Palamanter of Chihuahua State had refused to confirm the statement that Fink has been released.

Court Warns U.S. Agencies To Play Fair

The Supreme Court yesterday took judicial notice of a "vast expansion" in the field of administrative regulation and warned that in administrative proceedings of a quasi-judicial character the liberty and property of the citizen should be protected "by the rudimentary requirements of fair play."

This view was expressed in an opinion by Chief Justice Hughes invalidating an order issued by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in 1933 reducing the maximum fees that could be collected at the Kansas City stockyards by agents buying and selling livestock on a commission basis.

Hughes said hearings in the case were "fatally defective" and judicially rebuked Wallace. He said the Agriculture Secretary's acceptance for his own of the findings of other officials, without giving commission agents a reasonable opportunity to contest them, "is more than an irregularity in practice; it is a vital defect."

Administration Victory.

Meanwhile the Administration chalked up a victory when the high court validated by a 6-to-2 vote the new municipal bankruptcy law. The act sustained yesterday was substituted by Congress for the old municipal bankruptcy law which was invalidated by the court two years ago as an invasion of States rights.

The law permits cities, and improvement and school districts, to reduce their indebtedness through agreement with creditors in Federal bankruptcy courts. This opinion also was by Chief Justice Hughes. Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented. Justice Cardozo did not participate.

High Standards Urged.

In the Kansas City stockyard case, the court reversed a ruling by a three-judge western Missouri Federal district court which had sustained Secretary Wallace's order fixing maximum rates to be charged by market agencies at the Kansas City yards. Justice Black dissented in this case. Justices Cardozo and Reed took no part in its consideration or decision.

"The maintenance of proper standards on the part of administrative agencies in the performance of their quasi-judicial functions is of the highest importance and in

Andy, the Seal, Visits Beer Joint On New Junket

New York, April 25 (U.P.).—Three distinct raps sounded on the door of the Toll Gate Bar and Grill in Brooklyn a little before sun-up this morning and those inside say the raps were followed by a hoarse cough.

The bartender went to the door. He opened it, closed it and came back behind the bar.

"I never drink on duty," he said, "and there is a seal out there."

The bartender called the police, to whom this was an old story. It was the fourth time in four days Andy had slipped away from his tank in Prospect Park Zoo.

On Saturday he was sighted attempting to signal a Bronx-bound street car. Today, as on previous occasions, police escorted him home.

Speakers Ask Heavy Vote in Suffrage Poll

Volunteers Hope for Strong Expression in Referendum Saturday.

Heartened by steadily expanding volume of indorsements for the District suffrage referendum Saturday, hundreds of volunteer workers yesterday carried to every corner of the city the campaign for an impressive turnout at the polls.

Speakers from the Citizens Conference on District Suffrage and the Junior Board of Commerce appeared before several meetings of citizens associations to urge participation in the balloting, while precinct captains met with their committees to hear reports of progress in street-to-street coverage of the various voting districts.

Mrs. Roosevelt Friendly.

Hearty approval of the poll came yesterday from Mrs. Roosevelt in a statement made at her press conference. Although pointing out that she herself was not a resident of the District and would not be eligible to vote, the First Lady said she always believed in giving people free opportunity to express their opinions.

Latest returns from the straw vote conducted among its membership by the Forest Hills Citizens Association indicated an overwhelming majority of those replying in favor of national suffrage and advocates of local self-government holding a narrow lead.

Favor City Officers.

Present standing of the sample balloting shows 79 per cent of the voters advocating national representation while 54 per cent express a desire to vote for municipal officers.

Receiving a steady stream of reports from fellow workers of the suffrage conference, Wilbur S. Finch, chairman, said last night, "I am completely convinced we are going to have more than 100,000 votes on Saturday. I'm beginning to wonder whether we have had enough ballots printed."

District residents were urged to take advantage of the opportunity to express their opinions on suffrage in radio speeches yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, newspaper publisher, and Mrs. R. D. Rand, of the Sixteenth

1,000-Mile-a-Second Clocks Prove Einstein Time Theory

If a clock flashed through space at the speed of light, its hands would stand still and there would be no time. If the clock moved at a high speed less than that of light, it would run slower than one at rest.

This plank of Einstein's theory of relativity has been verified by experiment for the first time, the National Academy of Science heard yesterday.

By showing that luminous molecules of hydrogen gas moving through a vacuum tube were redder than similar molecules at rest, Dr. Herbert E. Ives, of Bell Telephone Laboratories, gave experimental proof to the theory that a clock in motion runs slower than a stationary one.

The Nation's foremost scientific organization also was told yesterday:

That, although the outlook for new discoveries in the field of cancer is promising, early discovery of a universal cure should not be expected.

That the origin of cosmic rays is still a mystery.

That a variation of the standard form of chlorophyll, the green coloring matter of leaves, has been found.

Dr. Ives performed an experiment contemplated for 40 years, but hitherto impossible. His experiment indirectly confirms the theory that a bar of metal in motion grows shorter.

Reality of ether, in which light is believed to travel through space, is also confirmed by the experiment.

Levy on Pay, Bonds Asked By Roosevelt

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt yesterday in a special message asked Congress to enact promptly a "short and simple statute" to end tax immunity on Federal, State and local securities and salaries.

His proposal not to wait on "that cumbersome and uncertain remedy—a constitutional amendment" divided Congress into two camps on legal steps necessary to stop tax exemptions.

Leaders declined to say whether action is feasible this session. Opponents of legislation cited Treasury testimony that a constitutional amendment is necessary and questioned validity of a statutory move. Others cast aside legal doubts and agreed with the President that the sixteenth amendment empowers Congress to proceed.

Court Reiterates Stand.

But from the Supreme Court came a reiteration of its views on tax immunity in an opinion upholding the municipal bankruptcy law.

"While the instrumentalities of the National Government are immune from taxation by a State, the State may tax them if the National Government consents," Chief Justice Hughes said in the bankruptcy law ruling, "and by a parity of reasoning the consent of the State could remove the obstacle to the taxation by the Federal Government of State agencies to which the consent applied."

Sidetracked in House.

In the Senate the message was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which is now considering constitutional amendments proposed by Senators Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and Augustine Lonergan, of Connecticut, to make securities and salaries subject to reciprocal taxation. A sub-committee already has recommended the constitutional amendment method.

But in the House the message was referred to the Ways and Means Committee, which has no authority to draw a constitutional amendment. Chairman Hatton Sumners, of the House Judiciary Committee, which shortly will begin hearings on the constitutional amendment proposals, declined comment.

The Ways and Means Committee will not meet to consider the recommendations until after the pending

91-Day Bills Sold At Record Prices, 9 Mills Under Par

By the Associated Press.

The Treasury announced last night sale of $50,000,000 worth of 91-day Treasury bills at what Treasury officials believed the best price in history.

Some of the bills were sold at par and the average price was $99.991 per $100 face value, equivalent to borrowing money at 37-1000 of 1 per cent. They bear no interest. Thus, the average compensation to the banks or persons who lent the Treasury $50,000,000 yesterday for three months is 9 mills per $100, or 9 cents per $1,000, based on the tiny discount below par value.

Some purchasers even paid $100 for every $100 the Treasury will repay three months hence, which is profitable in certain cases because tax-exempt features of the securities make them preferable to cash. The unusually high price paid for the securities was attributed unofficially to the huge increase in idle funds of banks.

Hendaye, France, April 25.—Insurgent bombers rained destruction on Valencia and Castellon late today, killing more than 100 persons and paving the way for Gen. Franco's advance southward.

Two British ships in Valencia harbor were hit and reported sinking. At least one British sailor was killed and others were wounded. Many fires were started in the seaport by incendiary bombs.

Twenty insurgent trimotor bombers made the raid, protected by 40 fast fighting planes.

Casualties at Castellon were unknown, but were feared to be heavy.

Rescue squads dug in ruins tonight for additional dead and wounded—more than 50 persons were in hospitals—by the light of fires started by the explosives.

The black-tipped bombers blasted Valencia, provisional capital of loyalist Spain until last October, as Franco's armies drove upon the city from the north and northwest.

Along the coast the insurgents rolled through the rich "garden of Levant" to a point south of Alcoceter and were reported only 20 miles from Castellon de la Plana and 60 miles from Valencia after killing some 4,000 loyalists in a bit-

Britons Arrive Here to Study Buying Planes

Aircraft Lead as American Exports Mount for 16th Month.

By the Associated Press.

Five experts from the British air ministry reached Washington yesterday on a tour to inspect American airplane factories and arrange for the possible purchase of hundreds of military planes.

The experts, headed by Air Commodore James George Weir, said their program still remained to be fixed. They will go over the field on paper first with Group Capt. G. C. Pirie, British air attache here, and will confer with British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay.

A high authority has estimated they could and might purchase 1,000 planes.

At the State Department it was stated that any other nation could buy warplanes in this country on the same conditions as Britain.

The conditions are:

Before a warplane can be sold to a foreign country, six months must pass after the delivery by the manufacturer of the second plane of that type to the United States Army.

The permission of the Army must be sought, even after the six months have elapsed.

If there are any secret gadgets on the plane which the War Department does not want revealed, even though it authorizes the export of the plane, these must be removed and parts no longer secret be substituted.

American exporters, defying the recession at home, increased their sales abroad to $275,711,000 in March, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

Exports exceeded imports for the month by $102,308,000, piling up an export balance of $320,737,000 for

Prague Will Keep French-Soviet Tie

'Dictation' by Henlein Is Spurned as Basis of Negotiations.

European Unrest.

Czech Nazis Riot.

By the United Press.

Prague, April 25.—Police reinforcements were called today to cope with an outbreak of Nazi terrorism against Jews as the government rejected demands of Czechoslovakia's German minority for a drastic revision of foreign and domestic policies.

Foreign office spokesmen, after an emergency session of the cabinet's political committee summoned by Premier Milan Hodza, asserted Nazi Minority Leader Konrad Henlein would not be permitted to "dictate" the nation's policies—particularly regarding relations with France and Soviet Russia. Circles close to the government said the Sudeten statements were "unacceptable as a basis for negotiations."

Reich Crisis Feared.

Submission to Henlein's demands is "inadmissible," it was explained, and there loomed a crisis threatening to involve the government in grave troubles not only with the 3,500,000 militant members of the German minority but Fuehrer Hitler of Germany as well.

The bespectacled Henlein, in a speech at Karlsbad, demanded autonomy for his followers, relaxation of Czechoslovakia's military alliances with France and Russia and closer Prague-Berlin relations.

Czechoslovakia, he said, must cease resisting German ambitions to the east.

As the cabinet met in emergency session a truckload of gendarmes was rushed from Prague to the town of Theusing, near Marienbad on the German frontier, and arrested several persons involved in an outbreak of anti-Jewish disorders.

Simultaneously the German minister, Dr. Ernest Eisenlohr, conferred with Foreign Minister Kamil Krofta.

Deep significance was attached to the conference because of political reports from Berlin that Hitler is prepared to use all his influence in support of Henlein's demands and because of hints that a "reunion" of Sudeten Czechoslovakia and Germany might be only a question of time.

Balloon "Atrocity" Denied.

The anti-Jewish demonstrations in Bohemia first broke out Sunday night. The demonstrators were dispersed by local gendarmes who threatened to fire on them, but they reassembled later and smashed the windows of the Jewish temple and wrecked several Jewish shops.

Officials insisted Prague would stand firm on its present foreign and domestic policy and continue plans for establishing a new minority statute affecting the Sudetens.

Prague announced officially the balloon report was an "atrocity

Party Chiefs Asked 'Kick-Back' On State Work, Margiotti Says

(Other Details on Page 7.)

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 25.—Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor, charged tonight his party's State chairman and the head of its finance committee have demanded a $1,200,000 "kick back" from architects on general State Authority projects.

David L. Lawrence, secretary of the Commonwealth, is the State chairman, and Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor, is the finance committee's head. The two are supporting a committee-sponsored slate of candidates headed by Gov. George H. Earle for Senator and Thomas Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, for Governor.

At the same time, the Attorney General, conducting what he terms an "independent, middle of the road" campaign, promised to disclose within 48 hours "names, times and places" where he charged the sale of State legislation took place during the present administration.

Margiotti spoke before a mass meeting in the Allegheny River Valley, saying Lawrence and McCloskey ordered the architects to return to them one-third of their 6 per cent commission. He estimated that the alleged "kick-back" amounted to $1,200,000.

The Attorney General termed Lawrence and McCloskey the "greedy bosses who control the payroll and wield the mace over public employes and businessmen who have dealings with the State."

Later, in a radio address in Pittsburgh, Margiotti declared the State chairman and McCloskey also had

Long Lobbying Ends in Vote to Start Ky. Dam

House, Which Previously Refused, Allots Fund of $2,613,000.

At the end of a month's intensive lobbying on both sides, the Administration won a narrow victory over the anti-TVA and utility interests yesterday when the House voted 159 to 152 to approve a $2,613,000 appropriation to start construction of the vast $112,000,000 Gilbertsville, Ky., dam—keystone of future development of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

On the first test, March 22, the House defeated the proposed appropriation by refusing to concur in the conference report on the Independent Offices appropriation bill in which the fund is carried. The roll-call vote on that occasion was 187 to 157.

38 Votes Are Changed.

Utilities lobbyists and Administration whips went to work immediately after that vote, it was learned. The utilities managed to convert 11 Democrats into changing their previous "yea" votes to "nay," while the Administration forces switched 26 Democrats and one Republican from "nay" to "yea."

Forty-four members who voted "nay" on March 22 did not vote yesterday. Thirty-six who voted "yea" on the former vote did not vote yesterday.

Of those not voting on March 22, 20 voted yes and 24 voted no yesterday.

2 Chairmen Converted.

Since the House refused for the second time to approve a Senate rider to the bill requiring Senate confirmation of any new officials of the many independent agencies of the Government, with salaries of $5,000 or over, the bill reverts to conference for the third time.

Politically, the dam's construction may be vital to the fortunes this autumn of the Senate majority leader, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who is opposed for re-election by Gov. Albert "Happy" Chandler, observers have said.

Among those converted by the Administration were two chairmen of committees of the House, Representatives Robert Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, head of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Lindsay Warren (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the Accounts Committee.

Changes Are Listed.

Another convert to the TVA side was Representative John A. Martin (Democrat), Colorado, who took the floor during debate on March 22 to make a bitter attack on the appropriation.

The breakdown of those who changed from one side to the other follows:

Chandler Fathers Bill to Establish Arbiter for Rails

By the Associated Press.

Representative Chandler (Democrat), Tennessee, introduced a bill yesterday to expedite railroad reorganizations through establishment of a railroad commissioner to handle problems of insolvent rail lines independent of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Provisions would permit consolidation of bankrupt railways "for the purpose of reducing preventable wastes resulting from excessive competition and unnecessary duplication of services and facilities," he said.

The commissioner would be directed to study the pooling or division of earnings, traffic or equipment, joint use of terminals, shops and other facilities, and collective arrangements among railroads or with water or motor carriers for handling traffic.

Noyes, Retiring After 38 Years As AP Head, Hits News Control

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 25.—In a moving speech to the 38th annual meeting of the Associated Press, Frank B. Noyes said a farewell today to his 38-year tenure as its president.

The white-haired maker of a journalistic tradition, the only survivor of the band of three who formed the Associated Press, he stood before his colleagues to ask that they dedicate themselves anew—"just as we dedicated ourselves nearly 50 years ago"—to the principle of a news stream controlled by the newspapers alone.

"* * * I pray to God," he said, "that the time may never come when any indivdual can dictate to the newspapers of the United States the nature of the reports that they give."

Broadcasting Rejected.

In introducing him, Paul Bellamy, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, pledged the membership again "to the cause of truth in the news."

His successor will be selected by the board of directors. He will continue his presidency of the Washington Star and also his membership on the Associated Press board—to which he was unanimously re-elected by acclamation in an action breaking the precedent that such elections are made by ballot.

The chief discussion of the meeting was on a proposal the board be empowered to put into effect a plan permitting the local broadcasting of Associated Press news, through member papers, on commercially-sponsored radio programs. The plan was rejected by voice vote.

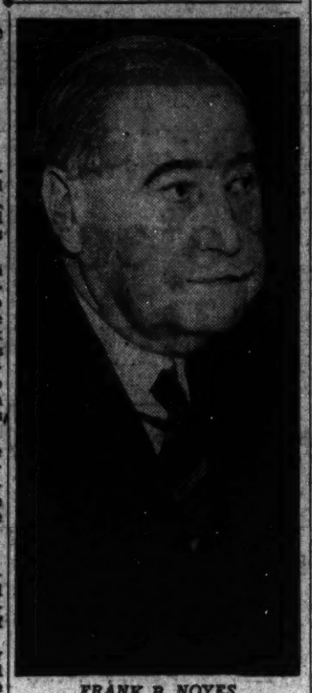

Committees Named.

New nominating and auditing committees were chosen during the day.

They were:

Nominating: David W. Howe, of the Burlington, Vt., Free Press and Times; Egbert D. Corson, of the Lockport, N. Y., Union-Sun and Journal; E. P. Adler (chairman of the committee) of the Davenport, Iowa, Times; Ray Green (secretary), of the Concordia, Kans., Blade-Empire; Charles P. Manship, of the Baton Rouge, La., State-Times; J. S. Parks, of the Fort Smith, Ark., Times-Record; O. S. Warden, of the Great Falls, Mont., Tribune; W. W. Knorpp, of the Phoenix, Ariz., Gazette.

Auditing: J. L. Stewart, of the Washington, Pa., Observer; J. C. Seacrest, of the Lincoln, Nebr., State Journal; F. G. Huntress, jr., of the San Antonio, Tex., Evening News; Norman Chandler, of the Los Angeles Times.

Senator Smith Disavows Prejudice and Threatens to End Cotton Inquiry.

Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, angrily denied yesterday that he was prejudiced against the American Cotton Cooperative Association and threatened to dissolve the inquiry into alleged undergrading of Government pool and loan cotton unless "personalities are excluded from the testimony." A. F. Creekmore, A. C. C. A. general manager, had asked permission to question a witness, C. L. Finch, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, to clear up matters that "might be prejudicial" to the A. C. C. A. Smith refused the request, saying that if he thought he was prejudiced, "I'd get off this committee."

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, predicted a free Government service for rating the quality of the entire cotton crop would come out of the inquiry. The cost was estimated at $1,300,000 a year for a 13,000,000-bale crop.

It was just 40 years ago yesterday that Congress declared war on Spain, it was recalled at the Capitol. The United States had sent an ultimatum to Spain, demanding that she leave Cuba. The ultimatum expired on April 23 and the war declaration followed two days later.

Meanwhile, Representative O'Malley (Democrat), of Wisconsin, threatened to sign a petition to force out of the Insular Affairs Committee his bill to provide immediate freedom for the Philippines if the committee refuses to set a hearing on the measure today. Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, at the same time, sought support of President Roosevelt in his effort to repeal the law to pay $24,000,000 to the Philippines as a result of dollar depreciation while the Philippines had $356,000,000 on deposit in this country. Adams said the President was in sympathy with his repeal efforts.

In 20 years of House membership, Representative Bland (Democrat), of Virginia, has never issued a formal announcement of his candidacy for re-election, he told the Associated Press. "If I get the necessary 250 signatures on my petition, I'll run," he said. "If I don't, I won't." He entered the Sixty-fifth Congress on July 2, 1918, after election to fill a vacancy.

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday increased hope for construction of a power dam on the Yadkin river, in North Carolina, by favoring Senator Bailey's bill to permit any aggrieved person or municipality to appeal to the courts from the Power Commission's adverse ruling on the dam. The commission held a license was necessary before construction could be started, since the dam would affect Interstate Commerce. The company that would build the dam refused to accept regulations imposed by the license.

Drastic Parking Ban to Be Eased If Not Repealed

Compromise or complete repeal of suspended stringent regulations prohibiting parking within 100 feet of an intersection controlled by traffic lights is expected this morning when the District Commissioners meet to solve the problem "once and for all."

Col. Dan I. Sultan, engineering commissioner, who was absent from the city when the regulations were approved, yesterday voiced his disapproval.

In the meantime, the Public Utilities Commission ordered abolition of 44 taxicab stands, most of them in the downtown area. It was explanied that a recent survey by the commission revealed most of the stands were not used or were not needed.

The regulations which banned parking with 100 feet of intersections controlled by traffic lights and parking with 50 feet of intersections not controlled by lights, were never placed into effect despite approval by the Commissioners several weeks ago.

Sultan said yesterday, "I believe each intersection should be treated individually." It was his opinion that the proposal would work to advantage at certain intersections, but in others "would be a real hardship."

Ford Personnel Chief Is Cold to Annual Wage

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 25.—A proposal that the Ford Motor Co. guarantee its workers a minimum annual wage of $1,500 was received coldly today by the man who directs the employment of its many thousands of hourly rate employes.

Commenting on the proposal, made by the Ford Brotherhood of America, an independent union, Harry H. Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Co., termed it a "fine thing," but in the same breath asked:

"Who is going to guarantee an annual market to support employment for any specific period?"

opposition, "we are in for it." Calling it a "temporary palliative administered to a badly smashed up victim who needs thorough medication and possibly amputation," O'Connor insisted that business needs assurances that the Government will "cease competing with private enterprise." He jabbed at the "unjustifiable snooping" of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the "competition with private industry" by the Tennessee Valley Authority as grounds for just complaint against the Administration.

Re-establishment of business confidence, he said, could be achieved only by equitable taxation, and cessation of Government interference with private industry.

"Serious Menace" Seen.

He raised the fear of dictatorship, which he also projected during the reorganization bill fight, as possible through breaking down "individual morale by making every one in need permanently dependent on the Government."

The petition which Rayburn displayed to the House, together with plans for sending out petitions, expressed "alarm" at the proposal to fight the depression with "wasteful expenditures," stated that such a program had failed before, and charged that the program would concentrate dictatorial powers in the President's hands so as to constitute "a menace to our liberty."

The petition further slapped at wage-hour legislation, saying, "We believe in the inalienable right of all men to work at any job they can get for as many hours as they choose at such wages as they may elect to accept."

A Republican, Representative Earl C. Michener, of Michigan, interrupted Rayburn to ask him if he was "going to insert in the Record copies of petitions now being circulated by WPA workers that later will be presented to us asking us to support the recovery program."

Another Republican, Representative Joseph Wolcott, of Michigan, snapped that there might "be some justification for the action of these so-called large organizations" and suggested that the pump-priming program was to be used as a "huge campaign fund for the 1940 elections."

Representative Leo E. Allen (Republican), of Illinois, had earlier blamed the "fear generated in this country" on Secretary of the Interior Ickes' speeches against monopoly last winter.

Representative George Schneider (Progressive), of Wisconsin, head of a liberal bloc, announced his group would attempt to get an interview with President Roosevelt for assurances that the recovery funds will not be spent for the benefit of large corporations.

"We want to know how much Jesse Jones (Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation) is going to use for the dear people instead of the utility corporations."

Chairman Ed T. Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado, of the House Appropriations Committee, in charge of the vast omnibus spending bill, charged that Republicans on the committee were using "dilatory tactics" in harassing witnesses with questions, resulting in some delay in getting the big bill to the House floor by May 1.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace urged before a sub-committee that approval be granted an appropriation of $175,000,000 asked by the President for the Farm Security Administration.

Representative Alfred F. Beiter (Democrat), of New York, introduced a bill to make the Public Works Administration a permanent agency under the Interior Department, extending its functions to construct and repair public facilities for lease; to make recoverable advances for temporary operation of projects to protect the Government's investment; to sell its own securities on the open market instead of through the RFC; and to exchange the securities it has acquired from States and municipalities for other securities.

The Associated Press in a dispatch from South Bend, Ind., stated that L. S. Crowder of St. Louis, general manager of the National Retail Credit Association, predicted a business upturn for the late summer or early fall, declaring that the current depression has reached bottom.

Roosevelt Picks 16 Generals, One Admiral

Col. Wesson, Aberdeen Commander, Will Be Chief of Ordnance.

As part of the general program for increasing the efficiency of the national defense forces, President Roosevelt yesterday nominated 16 ranking Army officers for promotion to the grades of major general and brigadier general and recommended the appointment of one new rear admiral.

Col. Charles M. Wesson, commanding officer of the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground, will become Chief of Ordnance, with the rank of major general, succeeding Maj. Gen. William H. Tschappat, whose term expires in June.

Capt. David W. Bagley, who shortly will assume command of the Mare Island, Calif., Navy Yard, was nominated to be rear admiral.

Assistants Chosen.

Assistants to the new Ordnance chief will be Col. Earl McFarland, ordnance officer of the Second Corps Area with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y., and Col. Charles T. Harris, head of the planning branch in the office of Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson. Both will have the rank of brigadier general. They succeed Brig. Gen. Herman W. Schull, who retires May 31, and Brig. Gen. Edward M. Shinkle, whose term of office expires next August.

Brig. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commanding the Eighteenth Composite Wing of the Air Corps stationed at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, will become assistant to Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the Air Corps, replacing Brig. Gen. James E. Chaney, whose term expires in July.

Brig. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney, Brig. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis and Brig. Gen. Ben Lear, who were nominated to be major generals of the line, enlisted in the military service in the Spanish-American War. Brig. Gen. Walter S. Grant, who was also recommended for promotion to major general, is a West Point graduate.

Eight New Brigadiers.

They will succeed Maj. Gen. Harry E. Knight, Maj. Gen. Andrew Moses, Maj. Gen George Van Horn Moseley and Maj. Gen. William E. Cole, who are retiring from active duty in the next few months.

Eight officers were nominated for promotion to brigadier general.

Col. Robert C. Richardson, jr., commander of Fifth Cavalry, Fort Clark, Tex., will succeed Brig. Gen. Sweeney and Col. Francis W. Honeycutt, assistant commandant of the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., will follow Brig. Gen. Alfred T. Smith who retires from active duty next month.

Col. George V. Strong, now on duty in the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department general staff, will become a brigadier general, replacing Brig. Gen. Laurence Halstead, who also retired in May.

Col. Irving J. Phillipson, who commands the Thirtieth Infantry, San Francisco, Calif., is scheduled to succeed Brig. Gen. Van Voorhis.

The commander of the First Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., Col. Donald C. Cubbison, will be promoted to brigadier general, following the retirement of Brig. Gen. George R. Spalding, who leaves active military life in July.

Col. Charles F. Thompson, now serving at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., will be the successor of Brig. Gen. Robert S. Abernathy, who is to retire next August.

The Governor of the Canal Zone, Col. Clarence S. Ridley, succeeds Brig. Gen. Grant.

Col. Henry T. Burgin, ommmanding the Sixth Coast Artillery, Fort Winfield Scott, Calif., will replace Brig. Gen. Lear.

Col. Wesson was in command of the Watertown, Mass., arsenal during the early part of the World War, but later served overseas as officer in charge of ordnance maintenance. Since the armistice he has been assistant military attache at London.

Col. McFarland, a former professor of Ordnance and Gunnery at West Point, was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his World War services in organizing industry to meet the demands for advance materiel of the A. E. F.

A native of Texas, Col. Harris was chief of an American mission of powder and explosive manufacturers which visited England during the World War to study British production methods.

Gen. Yount, a 1907 graduate of West Point, began his career in the Infantry but transferred to the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps during the World War. During the course of conflict he commanded the School of Military Aeronautics at Austin, Tex.

COL. C. M. WESSON. CAPT. D. W. BAGLEY.

Sixteen Army officers were nominated for promotion and the appointment of a new rear admiral was recommended yesterday by President Roosevelt. Col. Charles M. Wesson, commanding officer of the proving ground at Aberdeen, Md., will become new chief of ordnance with rank of major general, succeeding Maj. Gen. W. H. Tschappat, whose term of office expires in June. Capt. David W. Bagley soon will assume command of the Mare Island, Calif., Navy Yard with rank of rear admiral.

Supreme Court Invalidates Wallace Order, Asks Fair Play

Court

no way cripples or embarrasses the exercise of their appropriate authority," Hughes said in his opinion.

"On the contrary, it is in their manifest interest. For, as we said at the outset, if these multiplying agencies deemed to be necessary in our complex society are to serve the purposes for which they are created and endowed with vast powers, they must accredit themselves by acting in accordance with the cherished judicial tradition embodying the basic concepts of fair play."

Fifty Kansas City companies had challenged the rate reductions ordered by Wallace, maintaining that the Secretary had depended too much on subordinates in determining the fees and that the order was "arbitrary and unsupported by substantial evidence."

Awaiting yesterday's ruling, the old rates have been collected and the difference between them and the reduced fees have been impounded by the District court. Meanwhile, an increase in rates had been authorized. Impounded amounts are said to range between $600,000 and $1,000,000.

Hughes said that Congress in giving Secretary Wallace extraordinary powers under the packers and stockyards act explicitly required that his action depend on a "full hearing."

"Those who are brought into contest with the Government in a quasi-judicial proceeding aimed at the control of their activities are entitled to be fairly advised of what the Government proposes and to be heard upon its proposals before it issues its final command," said the chief justice. "No such reasonable opportunity was accorded appellants."

Hughes said the question of adequate hearings "goes to the very foundation of the action of administrative agencies entrusted by the Congress with broad control over activities which in their detail cannot be dealt with directly by the Legislature."

"The vast expansion of this field of administrative regulation in response to the pressure of social needs is made possible under our system by adherence to the basic principles that the Legislature shall appropriately determine the standards of administrative action and that in administrative proceedings of a quasi-judicial character the liberty and property of the citizen shall be protected by the rudimentary requirements of fair play."

The court's validation yesterday of the municipal bankruptcy act of 1937 cleared the way for 2,000 small cities, towns and school districts, and some 1,000 irrigation and reclamation districts defaulting on their obligations, to obtain debt adjustments. Litigation before the court involved an appeal by the Lindsay-Strathmore irrigation district of Tulare County, California, on a debt adjustment proposal.

Hugh said the revised law was "carefully drawn so as not to impinge upon the sovereignity of the State."

"The State acts in aid, and not in derogation, of its sovereign powers," said the court. "It invites the intervention of the bankruptcy power to save its agency which the State itself is powerless to rescue. Through its co-operation with the National Government the needed relief is given. We see no ground for the conclusion that the Federal Constitution, in the interest of State sovereignty, has reduced both sovereigns to helplessness in such a case."

Other rulings by the court yesterday:

Sustained the legality of the 1923 filled milk act which prohibited interstate shipment of milk to which other oils or fats have been added. Yesterday's decision by Justice Stone reversed a ruling by the Southern Illinois Federal District Court holding the law unconstitutional.

Refused to review and in effect sustained a Federal District Court in Chicago which denied citizenship papers to Abraham Warkentin, a Mennonite preacher. Warkentin had refused to take the required oath to bear arms if necessary in defense of this country.

Upheld Interstate Commerce Commission orders directing certain railroads to cease paying allowances to industrial plants which perform switching operations within their own yards.

Upheld right of the Public Works Administration to make a $4,330,000 loan and grant to Chattanooga, Tenn., for construction of an electric plant, contested by the Tennessee Electric Power Co.

$50,000,000 CCC Bill Signed by Roosevelt

President Roosevelt signed yesterday the measure providing an additional $50,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation Corps for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1. The appropriation will prevent the closing of 300 CCC camps.

Industrial 'Arsenals' Assailed by Cummings

Attorney General Cummings said last night it was "barbaric" for industrial firms to buy "arsenals" of firearms and gas guns for possible use in labor conflict. Speaking on the radio, he suggested his firearms control bill might be one remedy for the situation.

Burdette Lewis Named to Head Relief Inquiry

Resources Aide Is Chosen for D. C. Investigation; Will Start May 6.

Burdette G. Lewis, economist and statistician, now engaged by the National Resources Committee, yesterday was appointed director of the unemployment relief inquiry authorized in the 1939 appropriations act.

The appointment was made by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairmen of the Senate and House sub-committees on District appropriations, respectively.

Selection was made by a special advisory committee comprising Ringgold Hart, chairman; William L. Beale, vice president of the American Security & Trust Co., and Dr. Robert E. Moran.

Has Job at Present.

"Your committee has given careful study to the character and qualifications of the various persons considered for this assignment," the committee stated in a letter to the chairmen. "At this time Mr. Lewis is making studies in the States of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Nebraska in his capacity as field consultant and research consultant of the National Resources Committee.

"He expects to complete these studies in the near future and will be available for the authorized investigation in this city beginning May 6, 1938, or possibly a few days sooner.

"He assures your advisory committee he will be able to complete and submit his report and recommendations upon the question of relief in the District of Columbia by August 1, 1938, the date fixed by law for the purpose.

Will Name Own Aides.

"Between the date of his actual appointment and May 6 he will begin the selection and organization of his staff of assistants, the personnel to be submitted for the approval of this committee."

Lewis will be paid $35 a day for each day actually engaged in the survey. The salary scale of the assistants has not been fixed. The District has $10,000 to finance the investigation.

Upon the outcome of the inquiry will depend the total appropriation for relief in the District during the next fiscal year and possibly for the following year. The amount carried in the 1939 act is $900,000, which welfare officials insist is inadequate. No appropriation can be made, however, before next January as Congress will have adjourned before the survey is completed.

Lewis, who is 58 years old, has had wide experience in both public and private affairs requiring special investigational qualifications. He has been associated with the New York City and New Jersey State administrations, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Wisconsin State Tax Commission, and various professional organizations. He was commissioner of correction in New York from 1915 to 1917.

Inquiry Proposed Into Group Health

Group Health Association, Inc., yesterday was included in the Scott resolution seeking a congressional investigation of the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society.

Representative Scott (Democrat), of California, amended the resolution at the suggestion of Representative Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, who has been siding with the District Medical Society in its row with the G. H. A.

Courtesy of the Treasury Department Art Projects.

The history of the United States postal system in its various phases may be seen in the Postoffice Department Building murals, the last sets of which have been installed. At left is a general country store and postoffice mural, one of two panels just installed in the sixth-floor elevator lobby, executed by Doris Lee. "Franklin Signing the Post Receipt Book" is the title of the mural at right, one of two panels by George Harding, which have been installed in the sixth-floor south elevator lobby.

Postoffice Art Mingles Rural, Historic Scenes

Murals Depict Franklin, Washington, General Store, Countrymen.

History and humor both have their places in the final set of Postoffice Department murals, recently installed on the sixth floor of the building. The new murals complete the Treasury Department's plans for the building's decorations except for a series of circular wood portrait reliefs to be placed on the walls of the Postmaster General's reception room.

The more serious of the murals, two panels by George Harding, of Philadelphia, occupy the south elevator lobby of the sixth floor. One panel, "Franklin Signing the Post Receipt Book," shows Benjamin Franklin as a colonial postmaster, recording the receipt of mail from post riders.

The riders made weekly trips to New York and Baltimore, the Treasury Department art projects officials explain, and delivered their collections to Franklin at his printing shop in Philadelphia. In the crowded shop are depicted the texts of Indian treaties and of Philadelphias' original city charter, which Franklin printed.

The second Harding panel, entitled "Dispatch Riders in the Revolutionary War," shows armed horsemen delivering papers to Gen. Washington in the midst of a battle.

The two panels in the north lobby, by Doris Lee, 33-year-old Illinois native, show the importance of postal service in rural areas. Her purpose, she said, was to "try to get the earthy dignity of country life."

"General Country Store and Postoffice" shows two country women and a little girl (the latter's stockings are on the verge of collapse) calling for mail at the general store. A box labeled "baby chicks" is in the background. Three men cluster around the stove while one of the group reads a newspaper article to them. Miss Lee has included in the panel such typical general store products as brooms, workmen's gloves, gasoline, fruit, groceries and crockery.

The project of decorating the building's north and south elevator lobbies with murals and the Postmaster General's anterooms and reception room with sculpture was launched three years ago by the painting and sculpture section of the Treasury's procurement division. Fourteen painters and 14 sculptors, most of whom were selected by competition, have contributed their work.

Harding, during the World War, served as captain of engineers and was detailed as official artist during the battles of the Marne, St. Mihiel and the Argonne. At present he is critic of mural decoration at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, where he studied in his youth.

Miss Lee studied in Kansas City, San Francisco and Paris. She won the Chicago Institute's Logan Medal last year and has been honored similarly by the Worcester Museum.

2 Reckless Riders (Horse) Forfeit $4 In Police Court

Mounted Patrolman R. J. Bartmess, who distinguished himself in Potomac Park Saturday by charging a pair of equestrians with "fast and reckless riding" was denied the privilege of testifying yesterday because the riders failed to appear in Police Court, forfeiting $2 collateral apiece.

The youths were Andrew R. Kirk, 18, of 1733 North Capitol street, and Vincent C. Healy, 17, of 322 Todd place northeast. Bartmess—one of the park police mounted squad of two—galloped off in search of them after receiving a complaint that the boys had charged at top speed through a group of other riders.

When he arrived on the scene, Kirk and Healy were putting on an exhibition of rough riding on the polo field path, he said.

Irwin Gets First Airing

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

ROBERT IRWIN, a cigarette hanging limply from his lips, is shown as he stepped out of the gloomy Tombs Prison at New York into the sunshine and fresh air, the first time he has been outside the bars since he gave himself up nearly a year ago. The former mental institution patient and sculptor yesterday went to court, where his attorney argued in vain for an immediate trial of Irwin for the mass slaying of Veronica Gedeon, artists' model, her mother and a lodger.

9 More Join 11 Pleading Guilty At Liquor Trial

D. C. Ring Broken as Only 5 Original 33 Face Justice Adkins.

A giant liquor ring that is alleged to have defrauded the Government of liquor taxes estimated at as much as $500,000 went on the rocks in District Court yesterday before Justice J. C. Adkins when 9 of the original 33 men indicted joined 11 of their colleagues who had previously pleaded guilty in admitting participation in the ring's activities.

The score at end of the day was strongly in favor of the Government. It was: 20 have pleaded guilty, 5 went on trial, charges against 5 were dropped and 3 are fugitives.

Through Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly, the Government charged that the ring had been smuggling liquor into the District from nearby Maryland and Virginia for two years.

Those standing trial are Frank Posey, Henry Johnson, Carroll Thomas, James Miles and James Hutchinson, all colored.

Those who pleaded guilty were Alton B. Cissell, Tom C. Young, James Allen McEaddy, Melvin Sparrough, Aldridge H. Sutphin, Hampton Bailey, Manuel Bailey, Walter Bailey, Samuel Lucas and Norman Sparrough. Ten others, listed as "smaller fry," also admitted their guilt.

Charges against George F. Burns, James Jackson, Clinton Eugene Colvin, John Hiter and Channing Strother were dropped for lack of evidence.

Dwarf Cows Tiger, Loose in Circus, by Blow on Its Nose

New York, April 25 (AP).—The 8-year-old Bengal tigress Lady broke loose outside the arena of Madison Square Garden at the matinee of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus today, causing injuries to several circus employes before she was recaptured.

The 200-pound tigress dashed toward a group of clowns made up as Snow White's seven dwarfs. Sleepy, in real life 3-feet-high Frank Harumpo, smacked her on the nose with a stick. She backed into a corner where Terrell Jacobs, animal trainer, grabbed her leash.

D.C. Convict Loses Fight for Freedom

Ruling that action of the Parole Board in revoking the parole of James F. (Bugs) Donovan without any charges having been placed against him was not arbitrary and therefore not subject to the jurisdiction of the courts, Justice Jennings Bailey in District Court yesterday dismissed a petition by Donovan seeking release from the few remaining months of his sentence.

Donovan was paroled to a farmer in Indiana, but was forced to leave there when neighbors, finding he was a parolee, threatened him. He came here and his parole was revoked because the board could not find a place to put him.

Thieves Ransack Jewel Store Here Over Week-End

Thieves broke into Castelberg's Jewelry Co., 1004 F street northwest, over the week-end, systematically ransacked it and escaped with an undetermined amount of gems and watches.

Store employes discovered the theft when they came to work. The thives had selected rings and trinkets from the showcases and even from the window displays, and practically wiped out the watch repair section. Police said the care shown in their selection led to the theory the intruders were experienced jewel robbers.

Beauty Shop Pay Parley Set May 17

Public hearings on a basic rate for 4,000 women workers in the beauty parlor industry will begin May 17, officials of the Minimum Wage Board announced yesterday.

This wage conference, fourth since the present board began operations last year, will be the last until fall, they said. Arthur L. Schoenthal, labor representative to the board, announced he will call a meeting of all employes of the industry May 6 at 10 a. m. in the boardroom of the District building to select conference representatives.

The final public hearing on basic rates for the laundry and dry cleaning establishments is scheduled May 4.

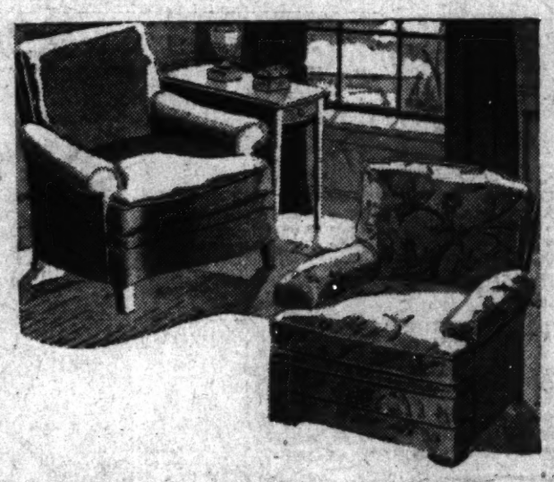

Adventurous Trip In Borrowed Car Ends in Jail Term

John Dixon, 27, colored, of the 700 block of Thirteenth street northeast, borrowed an automobile Friday, struck Slo How, 45, of 608 H street northeast, with it, later drove into a taxicab operated by Edward C. Warren, for which he got a black eye and gave one in return.

Dixon was sentenced to serve 90 days for striking Slo How, to pay $100 or serve 90 days on a charge of leaving after colliding and to pay $10 or serve 10 days for assaulting Warren.

COMPETITION FORCED US TO MAKE ALUMINUM CHEAP

A LITTLE REALIZED FACT ABOUT THE ALUMINUM BUSINESS

From our start, fifty years ago, we have had to meet tough competition. No one ever bought a pound of aluminum until he was convinced it would serve his purpose better than any other material. He would buy only when he could see an immediate cash saving, or obvious value in months or years of service. We had to make aluminum cheap.

Then we discovered that we were actually creating another kind of competition. One of aluminum's virtues is that it resists corrosion. There is little loss of the metal. Used aluminum can be melted down and made into something else. Aluminum made a few years ago is being sold today in the open market as "scrap."

In recent years, more than one half of the ingot aluminum purchased by industry has been this so-called secondary metal. We have to meet that competition, as well as the competition of imported metal.

We have been able to grow only by making and selling new aluminum as cheaply as possible, and by showing industry how to save money by using more of it.

Japan's Army 12 Miles From Vital Railway

3 Columns Drive on Line; Chinese Wipe Out Force in West.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Tuesday), April 26.—Three Japanese Columns advanced today almost within striking distance of the vital Lunghai Railway.

A Japanese army spokesman said Japanese forces were "systematically occupying outlying Chinese positions surrounding Pihsien," 12 miles north of the Lunghai, and another column had captured Tancheng, 18 miles from the railroad.

A third column was reported locked with the Chinese in a furious conflict at Likwoyi, 20 miles north of Suchow, junction of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow railways.

While these columns were strung out over a 50-mile battle front in the biggest drive of the nine-months-old undeclared war, a Japanese force was striking savagely at Taierhchwang, where the invaders suffered a smashing defeat April 6.

On the Tientsin-Pukow front northwest of Nanking, where the Japanese offensive has been stalemated for many weeks, an attempt was made to renew the drive, but Chinese asserted the attacking Japanese had been annihilated.

These reports said Japanese shock troops from Pengpu and Hwaiyuan had launched a strong attack on the north banks of the Hwai and Kwo rivers. After a night of attacks and counterattacks, ending in bayonet charges, the Chinese reported, the Japanese force was wiped out.

The Japanese column advancing toward Sinanchen faces danger of having its communications cut unless it can clean out the area to the west.

In anticipation of a possible direct attack on Suchow, the four remaining American missionaries there were evacuated. They were Dr. A. A. McFayden, Morganton, N. C.; the Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Brown, Northrup, Va., and Mrs. M. B. Grier, Montreat, N. C.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman said all Americans at Lini were safe and their property was undamaged.

Hull Asks About Flier.

By the Associated Press.

Joseph C. Grew, American Ambassador in Tokyo, has formally asked the Japanese foreign office why Elwyn Gibbon, American aviator, is being held by Japanese authorities.

Grew advised the State Department of this step yesterday. Another dispatch said Consul Richard F. Boyce, Yokohama, was keeping in close touch with developments.

The sole information thus far obtainable by American authorities was that the Japanese, who arrested Gibbon when he arrived on the liner Empress of Asia, en route to Vancouver, B. C., suspect Gibbon was a pilot in the Chinese air force.

British Warning Sent to Russia On Secret Arrest

Moscow, April 25 (U.P.).—Great Britain today warned Soviet Russia against acts "detrimental" to Anglo-Russian relations in a protest over secret arrests of British subjects on espionage charges.

The protest, presented to Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff by British Ambassador Viscount Chilston, particularly concerned the arrest of Rose Cohen, a former British Communist, under circumstances similar to the famous "Robinson" case involving an American woman, Ruth Marie Rubens.

Like Mrs. Rubens, the British woman was held in prison for some time before Russian authorities admitted her arrest.

Berlin Blames Powers.

Berlin, April 25 (U.P.).—The German foreign office asserted semi-officially tonight, in what was interpreted as a veiled attack on France and Russia, that foreign powers striving to serve their own interests have contributed to the plight of the German minority in Czechoslovakia.

Henlein, it was added, demands only "equality, safety and the right for the Sudetens to live their own lives."

It was assumed Henlein's demands were known in advance and approved of by the German government, inasmuch as he visited Berlin three weeks ago.

the first quarter of the year, compared with an excess of imports totaling $113,271,000 in the first quarter of 1937.

Sales to foreigners reflected, in part, the world armament race. Aircraft exports, for instance, set a new record for any month of $5,977,319. Automotive exports increased 10 per cent.

Other goods going out in greater volume in March than in February were cotton textiles, lumber, paper manufactures, crude petroleum, iron and steel products, electrical apparatus, chemicals, machinery and certain vegetables and fruits.

The month's exports were 5 per cent higher than in February and 7 per cent above March, 1937. It was the sixteenth consecutive month in which American exports were larger than the corresponding month of the previous year.

The principal increases in American imports were the result of larger purchases of foreign vegetable oils and unmanufactured tobacco.

Hartford, Conn., April 25 (AP).—Francis B. Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State, in defending the Government's trade agreement program today, warned that "uneconomic trade barriers forge the thunderbolts of war."

In an address for a meeting of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Sayre asked

"If trade barriers grow to impassable heights and ordinary processes of trade break down, how can nations secure the foodstuffs and raw materials necessary for their economic life and for the lives of their people? How can national populations sell their surplus products and thereby gain the wherewithal to live? Men will fight before they starve."

Sayre said that predictions of disaster for New England's manufacturers from the Czech trade agreement had proved unfounded and asked that manufacturers "combat this unjustified sowing of fear" regarding the projected British and other trade pacts.

"None of our 17 trade agreements thus far negotiated has caused substantial injury to well-established, sound American industry," he said. "The same will be true of the eighteenth."

London, April 25 (AP).—The cabinet approved plans today for meeting a year's spending of more than $4,650,000,000 and faced a spreading storm on a lag in warplane manufacture.

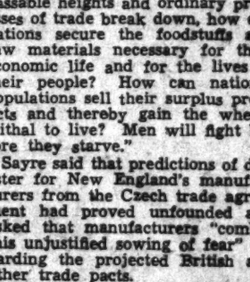

An urgent demand for mass production methods in the air rearmament program threatened to overshadow tomorrow's presentation to the House of Commons of the 1938-39 fiscal year budget.

Senators Rake 'Vicious' Policy In Big Navy Bill

'Jingoists' Are Seeking an Overseas Weapon, Johnson Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Senate opponents raked the naval expansion bill yesterday with charges that it would implement a "vicious" foreign policy, but supporters replied that the $1,156,000,000 measure was designed only for adequate national defense.

Senator Johnson (Democrat), Colorado, led the attack, asserting the measure could be justified only on the grounds that it would give this country "a fleet with which to go overseas to fight a war thousands of miles from our shores."

The bill, urging Colorado Senator Johnson told the Senate that it was dealing not alone with a Navy bill, but with the question of foreign policy. He charged that "American jingoists" had chosen this time, because of troubled world conditions, "to slip through a big Navy bill" and notify the world that the United States foreign policy is to become "domineering."

Neutrality Law Attacked.

Meanwhile, in a radio speech, Representative Bernard (Farmer-Labor), of Montana, declared the peace of the world depended upon whether this country lifted its embargo against Loyalist Spain.

"The American people are not 'neutral' when they look beyond our borders at what is happening in the world today," he said. "They are passionate partisans of democracy and peace."

Bernard, an opponent of the neutrality act, said it was "un-neutral" and "not consistent with American traditions nor with the spirit of our people, nor with the words President Roosevelt spoke at Chicago when he called for a 'quarantine of the aggressor.'"

Lewis Defends U. S. Policy.

"We have quarantined the victims of aggression and opened the way for aggression to spread throughout the world," he declared.

Diminutive, bewhiskered Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, rose to the defense of the Administration's foreign policy in the Senate, however, declaring that this country must be prepared to meet the changing policies of other nations.

Answering Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, who demanded last week that foreign policy be enunciated clearly, Lewis said that it could not be defined because it must remain pliable.

Lewis declared that if Russia, Japan and Germany joined in an assault on the United States, Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippine islands could not be defended with a "defense" navy.

Moving steadily toward the coast from the mountains inland, Gen. Jose Varela's insurgent column closed in around a huge pocket formed by a line extending from the Ebro Delta to the southwest toward the ruined city of Teruel.

The fighting east of Teruel was designed to entrap 18,000 loyalists, who have been driven eastward from the Del Popo range, and clear the way for Varela to send his brigades down the Teruel-Valencia highway to join the coastal column for the assault on Valencia.

In the terrific bombardment of the port of Valencia, base of many of the war supplies for the southern section of dismembered loyalist Spain, one member of the crew of the 1,742-ton British merchant ship Stanlake and three sailors aboard the British steamer Celtic Star ere killed. Several others aboard the ships were reported wounded by bomb splinters.

Loyalist dispatches said damage to Valencia would have been far greater but for government anti-aircraft batteries that drove the air raiders towad Sagunto.

Troops in the north battled their way eastward from the Tremp hydro-electric center toward the loyalist stronghold of Seo de Urgel on the French border. A 15-mile advance carried the insurgents along the road between the Noguera-Pallaresa and Segre valleys to a point near Abella de la Conca

Daladier Bars 4-Power Pact Including Reich

Britain Abandoned Plan Because of Paris Stand, French Assert.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, April 25.—Premier Daladier tonight made known his government's flat opposition to any four-power European pact that would include Nazi Germany.

The premier's stand was disclosed as he warned Frenchmen to unite in speeding industry or face dictatorship.

French officials said the foreign office "understood" the British government had given up its idea for a four-power pact linking France, Britain, Germany and Italy to guarantee European peace.

Such a pact, many observers had thought, would result from the new Anglo-Italian accord and pending French-Italian friendship treaty negotiations.

Informed sources said the British had abandoned the plan when they saw France was determined to back her Czechoslovak ally and Hitler equally was determined to keep his hands free in eastern Europe.

Seek Military Alliance.

In disclosing Daladier's stand, the premier's associates said a four-point plan for Franco-British discussion would be taken by Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet on their visit to London when they depart Wednesday.

The outline of discussions was said to call for:

Reinforcement of Franco-British military co-operation providing for joint purchase of certain war materials in event of war and further economic collaboration.

A survey of diplomatic questions—the new agreements with Italy, the Spanish war and League recognition of Ethiopia.

Daladier Copies Fascists.

Daladier's dictatorship warning was disclosed by cabinet ministers after they approved his plans for pulling the nation out of economic and financial difficulties.

The "national defense" premier said the first decree carrying out the plan would be ready May 1. This will be the first use Deladier has made of his new powers to rule the nation by decree until July 31.

He did not make public his entire plan, but the parts he disclosed indicated he took tips from both Soviet Russia and the Facist states.

The premier said his plan included:

Re-establishment of budgetary balance through measures not fettering production; modernization of tools and machinery and organization of work with a view to improvement of production; support for local handicrafts; a public works program for removal of slums; development of credit for industry and commerce; full utilization of colonial resources; and increasing the tourist business.

Spanish Envoy Sails Tomorrow For Barcelona

Dr. Fernando de los Rios, Spanish Ambassador to the United States, will sail from New York tomorrow on the Ile de France for his homeland.

The Ambassador, who is expected to return to Washington within three weeks, is making the trip "for strictly personal reasons that have nothing whatsoever to do with politics," Juan Antonio Meana, second secretary of the embassy, told The Post last night.

Emphatically denying that Dr. de los Rios has been recalled, Meana insisted that the scholarly, bearded envoy decided to pay a brief visit to Barcelona solely because of private affairs. Numerous members of Dr. de los Rios' family, including his mother, are at present in the Spanish capital, recently the scene of disastrous air raids.

The Ambassador's wife and daughter will remain in the United States, but he will be accompanied to Spain by Gustavo Pittaluga, second secretary of the embassy, and Sra. Pittaluga. It was explained that Pittaluga is returning to Barcelona to enter army service, as his class has recently been called to the colors.

Buerckel Will Head Austria Annexation

Berlin, April 25 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today issued a decree appointing Joseph Buerckel "federal commissioner for the reunion of Austria with the German Reich (nation)," thereby further curtailing the power of Arthur Seyss-Inquart, governor of Austria.

Hitler notified Seyss-Inquart of Buerckel's appointment and promised the Austrian governor a post in the Berlin cabinet after Austrian union was completed.

Refugees From Nazis Arrive in New York

Boston, April 25 (AP).—A dozen Jewish refugees from Germany and Poland today arrived here aboard the Cunard liner Scythia, silent on their experiences save that they had been allowed to bring nothing with them.

On board were two American girls, Ruth and Zena Dikstein, of New York City, who had been imprisoned in Poland after an altercation with a border guard. Given an opportunity to leave the country, they decided to remain for trial, and received 2-year suspended sentences.

Indian Police Besiege Revolting Rajah's City

Jaipur, India, April 25 (AP).—Three hundred military police today besieged the town of Sikar after the Rajah of Sikar had entrenched himself in his fortress in revolt against his overlord, the 26-year-old polo-playing Maharajah of Jaipur, a state in Rajputana, northwestern India.

F. S. Young, British inspector general of Jaipur, went to Sikar, a town of some 18,000, to direct operations against the rebels.

Britain, Ireland Sign Pact to End Trade Disputes

3-Year Accord Subject to Adoption by Both Parliaments.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 25.—Great Britain and Ireland embarked today on an era of good neighborliness with the signing of a sweeping accord which must be ratified by both parliaments.

Heading the signers in a historic ceremony at No. 10 Downing street was Prime Minister Chamberlain, son of the anti-home rule champion, Joseph Chamberlain, and Prime Minister De Valera, New York-born statesman, who once was a prisoner in a British jail.

Then they clasped hands.

The accord provided for termination of trade and financial disputes and for Ireland to be responsible for her own defense.

Chamberlain added another trophy to his belt in his "realistic" appeasement policy.

Highlights of the treaty, which did not touch on the question of union of Ireland and Northern Ireland, include:

Britain unconditionally leaves the ports of Berehaven, Cobh and Lough Swilly, where she has maintained naval defense stations.

Ireland pays to Britain £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) outright in settlements of the old land annuity payments which, if they had continued until 1990, would have reached an estimated total of £150,000,000 ($750,000,000.) The payments formerly were collected by the London government for former landlords who had sold their Irish holdings to peasant farmers.

Ireland will continue to pay £250,000 ($1,250,000) annually to settle debts for property damaged in rebellions.

Britain and Ireland both abolish retaliatory duties which were outgrowth of the trade war of the last six years.

Ireland generally gains free access to British markets.

Certain British goods will get preferential treatment in the Ireland market; British coal will enter Ireland free as against a three-shilling (75 cents) duty on foreign coal.

Ireland understakes to scale duties on her tariff-protected infant industries to a level allowing "reasonable competition" from British producers and manufacturers. The latter will have an audience before a prices commission.

Both governments intend to consult frequently in order to regulate trade by quantitative restrictions.

Roosevelt Asks Statute to End Tax Immunity

Tax

1938 revenue bill is out of conference, Chairman Robert L. Doughton said last night. He said no decision has been reached on whether to attempt action this session.

The President proposed that Congress, by legislation, subject all future State and local bonds to existing Federal taxes, and confer similar powers on the States to tax future Federal issues.

In the same statute, the President said, Congress should subject State and local employes to existing Federal income taxes, and confer on the States the equivalent power to tax the salaries of Federal employes.

Sixteenth Amendment Quoted.

"The sixteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, approved in 1913, expressly authorized the Congress 'to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived,'" said the President.

"That is plain language. Fairly construed, this language would seem to authorize taxation of income derived from State and municipal, as well as Federal bonds, and also income from State and municipal as well as Federal offices."

The President said the courts have not followed "this seemingly obvious construction," but instead have read "a policy of reciprocal tax immunity" into the sixteenth amendment.

As a result, he said, a vast reservoir of tax-exempt securities have been created "in the hands of the very persons who equitably should not be relieved of taxes on their income," constituting a "serious menace" to the fiscal systems of both the States and the Nation.

The President said "expressions in recent judicial opinions lead us to hope that the assumptions underlying these doctrines are being questioned by the court itself and that these tax immunities are not inexorable requirements under the Constitution itself, but are the result of judicial decision."

A sharp difference of opinion on legality of legislative action developed in the Senate. Even the two chief Senate proponents of a blow at tax immunities were divided on the President's plan.

Senator Byrd said he would support Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for statutory action, but recommended that a constitutional amendment also be submitted to the States "to avoid any possibility of constitutional difficulties."

Says Court Set Precedent.

But Senator Lonergan said he stood on his statement in the Senate last week that the Supreme Court has established in a long line of decisions "that the Federal Government has no power to tax the income of State securities, notwithstanding the provisions of the sixteenth amendment."

"I think it is clear therefore that the opinion of some persons that the United States Supreme Court would reverse itself on this question if again presented to it, and that the Federal Government should go ahead on that assumption and levy such a tax is a mistaken opinion," Lonergan told the Senate. "There is no indication that the court would reverse itself, and there is every indication that such a tax would be declared illegal."

Lonergan also recalled unequivocal Treasury espousal of the constitutional amendment method. In reply to a query to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill wrote Lonergan last June:

"If this result could be achieved by legislation alone, the solution of the problem of the tax-exempt security would be quite simple. Unfortunately it seems perfectly clear under the decisions of the courts that the desired result cannot be attained in the case of State and municipal issues by any action short of the submission and ratification by the States of a constitutional amendment."

Clark Proposal Recalled.

Substantially the same proposal made by President Roosevelt yesterday was put up to the Senate in an amendment to the revenue bill by Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), of Missouri. It was defeated. But the Senate adopted an amendment by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, to permit Federal taxation of future issues of Federal government securities. That amendment has yet to be disposed of in conferences now proceeding on the tax bill. The Treasury opposes removal of immunity on its own issues until State and municipal securities can be subjected to the same tax.

Borah said yesterday that so far as the legal issues in the President's proposal are concerned, "I haven't changed my mind that it will take a Constitutional amendment. Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, also declared a constitutional amendment would be necessary.

Among Senate and House Republicans who indorsed the President's plan if it can be shown that Congress has authority to proceed were Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary and Representative Allen T. Treadway, ranking minority member of the House Ways and Means Committee. Speaker William B. Bankhead predicted "a sharp difference of legal opinion" but expressed belief that Congress would proceed under the sixteenth amendment.

It gives an inkling that ether may be a sea of energy which is stationary and fills all known space.

By other deductions the discovery indicates that man himself may be a peculiar parcel of the universal sea of energy, free to move about in it but not disconnected from it.

For his experiment Dr. Ives needed clocks which could move at high rates of speed. He used what is called "atomic clock." Through a vacuum tube he shot luminous bits of hydrogen gas at 1,000 miles a second. The bits of gas were the clocks.

Through delicate measurements with a spectroscope he found that ionized molecules of the gas moving at that speed were redder than similar molecules at rest. That meant that they were vibrating more slowly than the normal rate of 5,000,000,000 vibrations a second. Thus the clocks in motion were found to be slower than those at rest.

"Cancer is a great group of diseases caused by a variety of agents which often are well known and generally incurable except in earlier stages," Dr. John Ewing, director of cancer research of Memorial Hospital, New York City, and one of the world's leading cancer authorities, said.

"The ultimate problem of cancer is as obscure as the nature of growth itself and until science has progressed much farther than its present stage we may not expect any solution of the secret of cancer or any universal cure.

"While there is no justification for the hope that sensational discoveries will appear in the field of fundamental cancer research, the outlook in this field is more promising than ever.

"Among the many important lines may be mentioned the search for a chemical agent which will specifically attack cancer cells, the study of immunity from cancer, investigation of the peculiar metabolism of cancer tissue, the relation of hormones and vitamins to tumor growth and the study of viruses.

"Likewise in the field of clinical research the solvable problems are very numerous and alluring and their solution tends immediately to improve the outlook for the cancer patient. Much may be expected from further development of supervoltage X-ray therapy. The knowledge of many varieties of cancer is making steady progress, and results in improved cure rates in many forms of the disease."

Dr. W. W. Coblentz and R. Stair, of the Bureau of Standards, described how the automatic radio balloons show one of the principal reasons why life is possible on earth.

A light meter, a clock and a miniature broadcasting station are hooked to a balloon which goes 10 to 12 miles above the earth's atmosphere. More accurately than could a human being, the apparatus radios back the amount of ozone in the upper atmosphere.

The ozone acts as a creen to keep most intense ultra violet light rays from reaching the earth's surface. These rays would burn or kill most plants and animals if they reached the earth. What little amount does reach the earth causes sunburn.

An oddity of science which may throw light on one of the most fundamental processes of life was reported by O. L. Inman, of C. F. Kettering Foundation, Antioch College, and A. F. Blakeslee, department of genetics, Carnegie Institution of Washington.

In one strain of the common jimson weed the green coloring matter of leaves was found different from any chlorophyll ever seen before. This strain is the only known in the world in which the substance with which plants use energy from sunlight to manufacture their food has not been found standard.

It is hoped that discovery of the difference in chemical formulae of standard and the new chlorophyll will give some hint of the manner in which plants make this substance which makes possible their growth, and hence all forms of life.

Dr. R. A. Milliken, of California Institute of Technology, reported that the origin of cosmic rays must remain a mystery. Experiments of the past summer have proved that the minute particles of energy cannot come from the interior of stars. Scientists have speculated on these rays which fall on all parts of the earth but come from unknown regions.

"Their arrogance is so great," said Margiotti, "their greed is so consuming—that after the President had unwittingly done their bidding—after he had achieved what he thought was harmony for Pennsylvania's democracy . . . they betrayed even the President.

"After they had eliminated Senator Guffey from the race (for Governor) they threw him overboard and selected Charles Alvin Jones as their candidate—a man they can control. They ignored the President's suggestion."

likely that it will reach the White House before the end of the week.

Members of the House sub-committee on fiscal affairs have indicated they will accept the business privilege levy written into the revenue bill by the Senate District Committee because of the refusal of the House to approve an income tax.

According to estimates of District officials, the tax measure will raise about $900,000 in excess of the deficit now anticipated.

The Commissioners asked that they be allowed a "cushion" so that they would not have to propose an additional tax if Congress makes a deficiency appropriation early next year for unemployment relief.

The revenue-raising provisions of the bill as it passed the Senate are:

Continuation of the temporary $1.75 realty and personal property levy, which will produce $3,000,000 above the return from the normal $1.50 rate.

Renewal of the business privilege tax as permanent law with a sliding scale, $2,000,000.

A tax of 50 cents a barrel on beer, $200,000.

The business tax rate ranges from one-tenth to two-fifths of 1 per cent of gross receipts above $1,000. The rate depends upon the margin of gross profit.

Suffrage was the chief topic on the agenda at a meeting of the District Federation of Woman's Clubs held at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Fifteen members of the North Capital Citizens Association volunteered to act as election officials and to canvass the community to get out voters after the purposes of the referendum were explained at the association's meeting last night by Harry NN. Stull, vice chairman of the conference.

James A. Crookes, association secretary who also is chairman of the thirtieth voting precinct, said that the four Boy Scout troops of the community would be used in circularizing residents in the next few days. Circulars have been prepared giving referendum details including location of polling places.

E. B. Lawless, association president, is precinct registration officer. Members of the association will cast their ballots at McKinley High School.

The Georgetown Citizens Association discussed the referendum and exhibited to members attending last night's meeting a map of polling places.

George A. Warren, of the suffrage conference, appealed to members of the Mid-City Citizens Association, meeting at the Thompson School, to turn out in full force for the plebiscite.

Poet In Stone.

In the grandeur of his vision, in boldness of execution and in his firm belief in Nature as the inescapable foundation of Art, George Grey Barnard was sometimes compared with Michelangelo. But if there was a touch of the great Italian master about him there was also more than a touch of Walt Whitman.

The good grey sculptor, like the good grey poet, was a man with a passionate faith in the American people and their destiny. Like Whitman, Barnard also had sublime confidence in himself. And for all the disparity in their years they were both children of that great period of expansion in the United States which automatically drew an intense and conquering effort from all who really felt its creative force.

Not surprisingly, Abraham Lincoln was the hero both of the sculptor and of the poet. It becomes curious, with the perspective of years, to recall the fuss that was made over the apparent "crudity" of Barnard's Lincoln when it was first unveiled in 1910. The romantics of the day denounced the work as a libel on the Great Emancipator. Actually Barnard's characterization has stood the test of time far better than many prettier conceptions.

Barnard will be remembered not only as one of America's greatest sculptors but also as a collector of importance. His patient gathering of Romanesque-Gothic art from the farms of French peasants, presented to the Metropolitan Museum after purchase by John D. Rockefeller, jr., several years ago, is one of the finest of its kind on this side of the Atlantic.

Barnard did not live to complete his great Rainbow Arch, with its 400 figures portraying the futility of war. It was the most grandiose of his many grandiose projects. In another medium, it might have illustrated the same sort of sorrowful moral Orozco has painted on the walls of the library at Dartmouth College.

Finger Exercises.

Wars by the pageful have swept over Constantinople (now properly Istanbul). Romans, Saracens, Greeks, Bulgars, Venetians and Turks, among others, have in the course of the centuries commanded this swinging door between two continents. Today Moslem, it was once the seat of the chief prelate of eastern Christendom; and, before that, pagan. Ankara has suppressed its fezzes and more lately ordered Roman letters to supplant the Ottoman's adapted Arabic script. But none of these changes can have reached as deeply into the fibers of the city's being as a new law recently announced in Turkey.

Henceforward, merchants must display set prices on their wares and stick to these prices under penalty of heavy fines. Perhaps the earthquake reported recently from Anatolia is a reaction to the ukase. No haggling in Constantinople, no bickering to be allowed? Close down, then, the Grand Bazaar and all the lesser honeycombs of murky stalls in which the city has performed its age-old function of pawnbroker for the world. For few ever buy for intrinsic value the dubiously jeweled gurkhas, the Russian translations of Dickens, the Java batiks or the rusted branding irons there on sale. It's the experience that's bought. It runs roughly this way:

"Gud da," in an oily voice from the robed merchant in a doorway. But the passerby is not Swedish. Next, "Bitte schoen" is ventured together with a pluck at the elbow. "No, thanks; go away," is the reply. Ah, the gentleman is not German but English or perhaps American. The chant begins: "Geev look, plizz; very old, very cheap, very nize." Startled, the gentleman turns. A ruby pendant catches his eye. In a trice the merchant has him inside ensconced on a lumpy divan. Syrupy coffee is poured in tiny, handle-less cups; helvah is proffered.

"Very old, very cheap, very nize," the seller parrots in his only English. The pendant lies casually on the taboret.

"How much?" Eight grubby fingers are displayed. The gentleman tosses his head and draws one bill from his wallet. The seller is mortified. They sip their coffee. Seven fingers? Ridiculous! Both shrug, the gentleman looks at his watch and rises. Polite hands on his shoulders return him to his seat. Five fingers, then? The gentleman shakes his head.

"Very old, very cheap, very nize," wheedles the seller. "Very expensive," is the response and the seller, understanding nothing but the tone, indulges the gentleman his humor. The Turkish paste is passed again; both munch. Very well—with a great sigh—four fingers? Two bills are dropped on the table. But the seller is adamant; four is his figure.

The gentleman bows and goes out the door. After five paces he is overtaken by the panting seller. Three, three, three! Still no. Two, then? Two, agreed. The bauble is passed over.

With a tag of $1.98 or its equivalent it would still be gathering dust in Istanbul, instead of Alexandria.

Not As Simple As It Looks.

President Roosevelt's proper desire to tax large sources of income untouched by present revenue laws is shared by the great majority of citizens. Simple justice calls for taxes on income from Federal and State bonds, for extension of Federal income levies to the State employes and vice versa. In a period when there is great need for more revenue, and when tax-exempt bonds and salaries are rapidly multiplying, it is imperative to grapple with the problem in a realistic way.

No question is likely to be raised, therefore, as to the desirability of the objective set forth in the message which the President sent to Congress yesterday. Neither Federal nor State employes can reasonably object to paying their share of the costs of Government. Nor can it be said that such taxation would impair the independence of either national or local regimes. Assuming that States could tax the salaries of Federal employes only on a basis of equality with other salaries, the possibility of interference with any Federal function would seem to be very small indeed.

Perhaps even more important is the abolition of tax-exemption for future bond issues of both the Federal and local governments. In a democracy there certainly should be no reservoir of securities in which large fortunes can be invested with the primary purpose of escaping taxation.

As to the method by which the President seeks to bring about these desirable reforms, however, many questions will be raised. Mr. Roosevelt assumes that these far-reaching changes can be brought about by direct legislation. That belief is based upon "expressions in recent judicial opinions." Because the Supreme Court recently held by a 5-to-4 decision that States may levy taxes on the gross income of contractors on Federal projects, the President has rather summarily concluded that it will be willing to reverse a line of decisions running back more than a century.

There is a clear distinction between the income of a contractor whose bid for construction work is accepted by the Government and interest derived from Federal bonds. That distinction was emphasized by the Supreme Court in the decision to which the President apparently refers. Said Chief Justice Hughes: "Vital considerations are there involved respecting the permanent relations of the Government to investors in its securities and its ability to maintain its credit—considerations which are not found in connection with contracts made from time to time for the services of independent contractors."

As to the Federal taxation of State employes, there seems to have been no change whatever in the attitude of the Court. Last spring it ruled that an employe of New York's municipally-owned water system is not subject to the Federal income tax. To sustain the legislation recommended by the President the Court would have to revise previous positions fundamentally.

A certain misconception of this vital problem is indicated in the President's statement that "the legislation should confer the same powers on the States with respect to the taxation of Federal bonds hereafter issued as is granted to the Federal Government with respect to State and municipal bonds hereafter issued." But Congress cannot confer powers on the States. If those political entities do not now have authority under the Constitution to tax Federal bonds no act of Congress can give it to them.

It is the assumption that basic issues involving constitutional questions can be dealt with by legislation alone that has led to most of the difficulty between the Administration and the Supreme Court. The solution of several vital problems has been delayed because the Administration has ignored constitutional restraints. In the interests of permanent elimination of tax exemptions, as well as those of good government, it should not make that mistake again.

Objections Removed.

In upholding the revised municipal bankruptcy act yesterday the Supreme Court did not reverse its decision by which the original law was invalidated nearly two years ago. The chief objection of the court majority to the previous statute was overcome by proper safeguards written into the current law.

There was a widespread belief at the time of the previous decision that the court had considered the potentialities of the statute instead of the specific case then at bar. The majority feared that the law might permit a Federal invasion of the States' right to control their own subdivisions. A minority of four thought the act contained ample safeguards against such abuse. Possibly Congress and the court were both at fault—the former for neglecting to write specific restraints into the measure, and the latter for letting fears of abuses overshadow the realities of the case before it.

Whether or not the court acted wisely in declaring the first act unconstitutional, the present measure is obviously more satisfactory. The aim of the Administration has been achieved, and any potential threat to the control of the States over their cities, counties and improvement districts appears to have been removed.

The Pressure On Prague.

On March 7, the recently-established Masaryk Institute, which seeks "to foster closer cultural relations between Czechoslovakia and the United States," held its first formal meeting at the Cosmos Club, here in Washington. Five days later German columns poured into Austria and the annexation of that country threw the precarious position of the nation founded by President Masaryk into the forefront of the news. What promises to keep this Central European democracy in that unenviable position is the increasingly close relations—not merely cultural—between Czechoslovakia and Germany.

The distance traveled since Hitler seized Austria, less than seven weeks ago, is made clear to all by the proceedings of the Sudeten German Party in its conference at Karlsbad last week-end. Under the leadership of Konrad Henlein, fresh from a conference with assistant Fuehrer Goering in Berlin, the Bohemians presented a series of sweeping demands to the Prague government.

Among these are two with far-reaching implications. One of these demands complete autonomy, under local German officials, for the German-speaking parts of Czechoslovakia. The other, correlative, demand is for the complete freedom on the part of the Sudeten Germans to profess German "Weltanschauung," or world-outlook. Taken together these mean that the Czech government should practically relinquish any centralized authority over much of Bohemia, and at the same time should legalize the Nazi Party there for such activities as it sees fit to prosecute.

If this were all that is involved the Prague government might counter the development by a dramatic counter-stroke. It might offer a plebiscite to the border districts on the subject of their union with Germany. Faced with that decision, at this stage, many of the Sudeten Germans would undoubtedly hesitate to abandon the democratic leadership of Prague. And if a majority did vote for union with "the greater Reich" the Czech government might do worse than let those districts go. It would mean loss of territory and population for the little republic. But it would also mean that the Nazis would have the wind taken out of their sails for prosecuting the larger schemes they have in mind.

These larger schemes clearly embody the disintegration of Czechoslovakia as an independent nation. This is indicated by the campaign against the very existence of the country which is now noticeable in the German press. It is indicated by the way the Hungarian and Polish minorities in Czechoslavia, though the former is not large and the latter very small, are being encouraged to press for full autonomy of their own. And it is indicated most sharply in the failure of Germany to demand for the southern Tyrolese any of the aims called essential for the Bohemians, though the Germans under Italian rule have suffered far more oppression than have those in Czechoslovakia.

An independent Czechoslovakia, particularly the strong liberal republic which Masaryk founded and of which Benes is now president, stands like a barrier against the Nazi aspirations of a great Germanic Mittel-Europa. To undermine this barrier every device of pressure and propaganda will undoubtedly be utilized. The autonomy demands of the Henlein spearhead are to the fore largely because a very good case can be made in Bohemia on the ground of self-determination. If the Prague government yields on this point, however, it will do so without any reason to believe that it is granting the real objective of Berlin.

"Truth Conquers" was a favorite saying of Masaryk, and has been adopted by the Masaryk Institute as its motto. That belief is the faith of the democratic mind and is justified, at least ultimately, under democratic procedure. But a power far less abstract than that of truth will conquer in Czechoslovakia if the entering wedge of the Henlein program is adopted there.

Boston: A Study In Subsidies.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Boston is a natural seaport. It is about a day's steaming-time nearer Europe and South America than New York. Yet 67 per cent of New England's export products goes to New York by rail for shipment abroad. Why? Because it is cheaper. In order to make it cheaper for exporters to ship freight the more expensive roundabout way, the Interstate Commerce Commission authorizes the railroads to impose a "fine" of so much a mile on freight shipped the less expensive direct way. Only they don't call the difference between the two rates a fine. It is called a "rate differential."

The differentials were designed to divide business among railroads serving competing ports on the North Atlantic seaboard. Actually it has placed Boston at an unfair disadvantage. The outside railroads which have gained control of New England roads are routing much of New England's export shipments through the port of New York. Furthermore, the effects of monopolistic control by railroads outside New England have discouraged capital investments for upkeep and development of docks, terminals and railroads serving the port of Boston.

Secretaries' Expenses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding traveling expenses for Congressional secretaries: In your issue of April 22 appeared a letter signed "P. D. Q." who spent so much effort in trying to be sarcastic that he presents an entirely biased view of the question.

Let me state this: Secretaries to Senators and Congressmen are the only employes, in Government or private business, who are required to pay their own traveling and other expenses when traveling on business for their employers. And I challenge anyone to point out any instance where this is not so.

"P. D. Q." seems to assume that when we leave here we go home to a rest and vacation. We don't. We go to wherever our employer's home is located, whether it happens to be our own home town or not, open an office and continue our official work. Sometimes it happens that it is our home town also, but that doesn't lessen our expense or work. We simply transfer our activities from Washington office to the home office. In these days when the Government has extended and enlarged its activities, a very large percentage of constituents have business with some of the various bureaus. Few of them take up their business directly with the bureau. They do it through their Congressional office. So the Senator or Congressman is the liaison officer between the constituent and his Government.

"P. D. Q." says we are not drafted into these jobs. True. Neither is any employe of the various departments. Yet he gets not only traveling expenses, but a per diem when out of the city on business.

A Memorial Site.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to add my indorsement to "A. E. A.'s" suggestion in The Post of April 21, that we forget the Tidal Basin location for the Jefferson Memorial, etc., etc.

While I rather favor Walter H. Beal's suggestion in The Post of April 23, for placing the memorial on the Virginia side of the Potomac River, it appears to me that a very good location for it would be on the island which is situated across the Potomac River opposite Georgetown and just below the Virginia end of the Key Bridge, and which, I believe, was formerly known as "Analostan Island," but lately, I understand, has been designated as "Roosevelt Island" or "Columbia Island."

This island offers a splendid opportunity for development into a magnificent picture, simultaneously placing the memorial where it would command an unobstructed view from nearly all directions to be observed by the thousands of people who cross and recross the Key Bridge daily, as well as a clear vista from Potomac Park Drive and the Memorial Bridge, and avoid the necessity of disturbing any already beautified location.

The 'McNutt Palaces.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The "McNutt palaces" in Manila should be built. Front and face are great assets in the Orient. Our Nation can afford to have impressive buildings in the Philippines. They are going to be the home and offices of our future ambassadors when the Philippines become independent in 1946.

The Filipinos want to separate from us and they should be permitted to go. Let the "McNutt palaces" be constructed now and let the Filipinos know by that that we are pulling out of their country for good.

JOHN G. H. WHITE.
Washington, April 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the building of the so-called "McNutt palaces" in the Philippines, may I ask if it is not the plan of our Government to build a suitable residence for our future diplomatic representatives at Manila when the Philippines become an independent republic, as contemplated by the Hawes-Cutting act?

It is puzzling to me to learn that the principal author of the Philippine independence act, former Senator Harry B. Hawes, is now against Philippine independence in 1946 or ever. May we know what made him change his mind? He was considered as the Edmund Burke of the Filipino people. Now he has turned a Lord Cornwallis to them.

HARRY K. SMITH.
Washington, April 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The building of two palaces in the Philippines for our Resident Commissioner which will surpass the White House in size and luxury is absolutely unjustified. A modest residence should serve the purpose, especially when Philippine independence is not certain.

Even the author of the independence bill, former Senator Harry Hawes, is now against independence. And Manuel Quezon, the Filipino President, by his oft-changing attitude, is really against independence. Mr. Hawes is the sugar lawyer of the Philippines. The picture has now changed.

MARY CARTER HIGDON.
Washington, April 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is only a matter of fairness to state that the so-called "McNutt palaces" in the Philippine Islands are the plans and ideas of Paul V. McNutt's predecessor, Frank Murphy, now Governor of Michigan. If I am correctly informed, it was Murphy who selected the site to be filled in and reclaimed from Manila Bay; it was he who made the suggestions for the architecture, the size, and the amount to be appropriated. McNutt has absolutely nothing to do with the whole thing except to answer a House committee on the subject reading from the records.

The mansions should be known as the "Murphy palaces," or, better still, "Murphy's Folly." I hope the Congress does not approve the appropriation because it is extravagant.

A Vote Of No Confidence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to express my profound appreciation of the editorial in The Post of April 10, entitled, "A Vote Of No Confidence." It is beyond criticism in form and in substance. It is right to the point, and epitomizes all the disastrous errors of the New Deal, and the follies of Roosevelt, in such a way that its influence for good will be incalculable.

You have made an historic and epochal contribution to the subject, and placed the people under a very great obligation to you.

A. S. L.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thanks for your admirable article "Bankrupt Statesmanship." May it be read by every Congressman. It should be reprinted for general distribution.

From An Opponent To Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an editorial in The Post April 23, the third paragraph reads: "Not much has been heard from the opponents of suffrage. Every Washingtonian must be aware of the fact, however, that a number of intelligent citizens prefer the present setup in spite of its obvious shortcomings. Leaders of this group might well come out with their arguments. Full and free public debate is the first step toward improvement of conditions which a very large percentage of the people regard as unsatisfactory."

As one of the leaders in opposition to suffrage for the District as so far proposed by any of its proponents for the last 20 years I have appeared before committees of Congress in every hearing so far held in opposition to the several bills introduced. I think that established my position.

However, in these 20 years I have been unable to get any of the leading proponents to debate the subject with me in public, as suggested in the paragraph quoted from The Post. In fact, I have letters in my possession indicating such refusals or requesting delays until some future time. While challenges were sent to others by personal letter, or by press release, I have received no response either of acceptance or proposing a different kind of debate.

I even made a challenge on the floor of the Federation of Citizens Association, where there were about 75 delegates sitting, asking any one of them or their organizations to debate the subject. There was no acceptance—not one reply of any nature, except smiles. This is rather strange, since a majority, a large majority, are for District suffrage.

Among the local newspapers, only The Post has granted me the use of its space as an opponent. The Post, so far as I can get its policy on the question, is not opposed to District suffrage, nor does it see suffrage as the only solution of the problem we all—most decidedly including myself—feel can and should be remedied in the local government. I subscribe to many of the recommendations suggested in the Prettyman report. Several I consider unnecessary, and one or two unwise, and one altogether opposed to the best interests of the residents and the Federal Government.

Two of the local radio stations refused the opposition time several years ago when the proponents were getting about all the time they requested.

Now I submit that the opponents of District suffrage do not have much of an opportunity to speak to the public. That is the reason why "not much has been heard" from them.

So far as I have had opportunity I have advised opponents of suffrage not to vote.

The reasons are as follows:

1. The leading proponents of District suffrage have refused to debate the subject with the opponents.
2. None of the local papers, with the single exception of The Post, has granted space to the opponents.
3. None of the local radio stations has offered time to the opponents, but they have been lavish with time for the proponents.
4. The new suffrage organization for local (municipal) suffrage primarily, has wholly ignored the opposition in the arrangements for the referendum. That organization has selected all the voting precincts and all the officials. It will supervise every act in taking and counting the ballots—all outside the law governing elections of any kind which have any official status in the several States. So the opponents are not sure there will be no dead persons voted, no repeaters, no non-residents voting, no persons under age voting, no rejected ballots, no lost ballots or ballot boxes, no stuffed ballot boxes.

Thus I have given the reasons why I have advised the opponents of District suffrage not to vote in the referendum. And so far as I have time and opportunity, I shall continue to advise this procedure.

I shall, however, be pleased to receive a challenge from the topmost proponents of suffrage to a public debate on the subject. One high-up gentleman has advised me by letter that we should wait until after the referendum to hold a debate we had agreed upon.

The Post Impressionist

Penny Wise.

TAN, my half-grown daughter, was watching me count on my fingers, as I worked over the family budget. "Must be hard for you," she remarked "to come down to brass tacks after being used to boom times." I looked up startled. I had all but forgoten that gay tinsel interim, the twenties. But she reminded me, "You know, the things they sing about in "Thanks for the Memory."

For candelight and wine,
Du-dum-de-dum the Rhine,
And parties where you sang
Sweet Ade-li-ine!

"Sure, Sugar," I agreed, "and 'that was swell while it lasted,' but penny-pinching's nothing new to me. You forget there were four of us chillums growing up on service pay—that's not the millionaire bracket!" I stood for a space recalling the simple economy of my childhood.

* * *

Bert was the oldest and most emcient; he always came out best when he traded things. Bob was the next, the one who told me things for my own good—but he always took my side in fights. He sang loud opera in his bath, and treasured above all things a second-hand mandolin Lieut. Hard had given him for running errands to the Post Exchange. He dusted it daily with a purple silk handkerchief. Buddie was the youngest boy; we could always make him be "It" in tag, and when excited he squeezed my arm and made a funny sound in his throat, "geekham, geekham," like a duck.

We three younger ones were upset this particular year by the approach of Mother's birthday, for she had been ill and deserved some special gift. Bert was making her a wonderfully professional-looking bookrack, and we wanted to outshine him. We had seen just the thing—a Swiss watch in the jeweler's windor next to Kahn's bakery; but it cost seven dollars and a half! Totaling up our allowances before the date we had only four-fifty. Buddie added a dollar thirty-five left from his own birthday treat, and I managed to shake the ninety cents out of my china pig bank. But we didn't know where we'd ever get that other seventy cents.

"It's mostly up to you, Bob," I pointed out bluntly, "because Buddie and I have already coughed up some extra." He nodded and mumbled, "Can't sell old school books this late in the term, can't shovel snow, too early for garden truck . . . " he screwed up his forehead—seventy cents was a lot. We all went to Bert's workshop to observe him glumly, while he matched the bookshelves together with a flourish.

Each day going to grammar school Buddie and I looked at the watch, instead of at the eclairs in the bakery window. No one bought it. Still two weeks went by without Bob thinking up any scheme. Then one day Buddie came home wiping whipped cream from his mouth, refusing to lift his eyes from the pavement. He confessed that he had spent a dime of his allowance on cream rolls "because I owed some goodies to Vern; we're in divvies, and I hadn't given him any for weeks." His mouth squared off like a baby's about to cry.

"Oh, well," I put in to Bob flatly, "a dime doesn't make any difference, if you can't get that other dough." Bob walked off snapping his fingers desperately.

The next afternoon he didn't come home till nearly dark. Buddie and I were pasting stamps in our albums. At first he said nothing, only helped lick glue-stickers to fasten the stamps in with. He licked about a dozen, then sat back and jabbed his thumb nail into one rubber heel. "I got that money. Ninety cents. I sold some old junk to a fellow at high school."

"Ninety cents for junk?" I exclaimed. "Why, we can't get but a dime for ever so much from the rag-and-bone man."

"Come on," he ordered, rising and dusting his knees. "let's go for the watch before dinner." On our way home he let Buddie and me take turns carrying the packages, and put the odd dime into spice cookies for us.

That night after I'd finished my lessons, I tip-toed down the hall to the boys' room to gloat over our purchase. But the quiet made me stop and peer uncertainly through the cracked door. Only Bob was there, standing before his study table just looking. The table was strangely neat and bare. What was missing? There were books, papers, his big fat eraser, but—oh, now I knew! There was no second-hand mandolin lying in back of his inkwell. There was no second-hand mandolin anywhere in the room. Bob was staring at the empty space as if it surprised him. Suddenly he bent over and took something small and thin from the desk. It was a mandolin pick. He held it to his palm, smoothing it gently as if it were alive—or newly dead.

I leaned up against the door jamb, and pinched my lips tight together to keep from making a sob. "Some old junk," he had called his mandolin—when he had had to get rid of it for money! And it was all my fault for shaming him into knuckling down about the extra money. I hated myself—hated.

I went back to my own room. I didn't know how to put it into words then, but I thought it wasn't fair for the smaller folks to depend too much on those like Bob just because they were bigger. I leaned my head out of my window into the puffs of evening air. Presently I heard Bob's whistle making a duet with the thrum of his bath water. his fingers marking brisk time on the tub-tiles . . . Da-de-da-a-dum-de-Dees.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Senate Must Have Heard.

THERE IS no reason why the Senate should not investigate the recent telegraphic lobby against the reorganization bill, but certainly the boys should not be permitted to call it a day after they have finished with the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

PEGLER

The case cannot be regarded as closed until the statesmen have made an equally thorough and equally hostile and harassing inquiry into the basis, if any, for certain reports which were carried out of Washington on the day of the vote. These reports were much more grave than the mere news that Senators were being swamped with telegrams. They reflected on the sacred honor of the Senate itself, and surely the Senate, wearing its honor on its sleeve, cannot honorably ignore them.

It was reported on that day that White House messengers were busy on the hill and Jimmy Roosevelt, the selfless secretary with the passion for anonymity, whose passion for anonymity, incidentally, seems to be in need of a strong aphrodisiac, was mentioned by name as one of those who lobbied for the bill. The others were not mentioned by name. They seemed to be sinister and mysterious figures, but the committee, with all its powers and its talent for gouging facts out of bashful victims on the stand, could easily identify them and drag from them the details of their conversations with the statesmen regarding their position on that bill.

A BROAD interpretation of the news wired out of Washington as the bill went to a vote would have it that Senators were being offered something mighty like bribes to vote for the bill and threatened with reprisals by the Administration should they vote wrong. All right, who were the messengers and precisely what did they say to what Senators? What promises did they make? Did the promises, if any, involve chunks of public money for distribution in their States to help the re-election, and, if so, why should the committee bother with anything so petty as a mere overnight paper organization which kicked up a public alarm and whose opinion of the bill later was confirmed by the House of Representatives?

If the investigation is to be thorough and not merely a punishment for opposition, the Senators should now look into the lobbying in favor of the bill. Their inquiry should bring to the stand every member of the Senate and every messenger who approached any Senator that day or any other day during the contest, to tell under oath exactly what was said and what assurances were exchanged. It may be remembered that after the Senate had passed the bill the President remarked that the vote proved they could not be purchased. But it may be remembered further that, in view of the reports about the White House lobby, many persons thought and still believe that it proved exactly the opposite.

• • • •

THE COMMITTEE has powers that newspaper reporters have not. Yet reporters on the hill observed or were told of the operations of a lobby, which, if it had been working in the same way for the other side of the question, would now be laid over a barrel. If the newspapermen could learn about this with their limited privileges, then the Senators must have heard of it, and if the reports are true then some members of the Senate are guilty of withholding information which they ought to volunteer.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Henry Ford And The President.

President—Henry, what I want to know is what you would do if you were in my shoes.

Henry—Shoes wouldn't make any difference; we're in a situation now where we are swimming, not hiking.

President—You know what I mean: if you were President what would you do?

Henry—Well, for one thing, I wouldn't run the car without having the brakes adjusted.

President—My brakes are all right.

Henry—Do they hold?

President—No; that's what makes the ride so exciting!

• • • •

Henry—Speed is a great thing and I always emphasize it in the sales talks, but there are other things just as important.

President—What?

Henry—For one thing, you've got to have good headlights.

President—Now, Henry, you're no fellow to talk about headlights. I never saw a Ford with both headlights working except once.

Henry—Where was that? I heard there was one, but I've never been able to trace it.

• • • •

President—Getting down to cases, I can't understand why you aren't with me heart and soul. You were a pioneer in giving labor higher pay and a better break.

Henry—I'm glad to know somebody remembers that. My point, Mr. President, is that I think an employer is also entitled to a break.

President—Where did you get that idea?

Henry—I think it must have been in a book.

President—Don't tell me you have read a book, Henry!

• • • •

President—Are you against the Government in business?

Henry—Yes. I hate to think what would have happened to Lizzie if I'd had to raise her under Federal supervision.

President—You believe in spending vast sums if necessary, don't you?

Henry—Yes, but you never can convince me that when the car has broken down all you've got to do to make it work again is to keep doubling the orders for oil, gas, new tires and expensive varnish.

• • • •

President—You're like all industrialists; you criticize without making any helpful suggestions. Why don't you tell me what I ought to do?

Henry—How do I know you'd listen?

President—I listen to everybody.

Henry—That's the trouble!

President—And they told me all the knocks had been taken from the Fords!

• • • •

Henry—Well, we don't seem to be getting anywhere in this chat. But it's nice seeing you, just the same.

President—What was the crack you made about coming here to show me a man who didn't want anything?

Henry—Oh, I said something like that to a reporter. And I mean it. I ain't asking a thing. There's nothing I want from the Government.

President—Up in the attic I found some of the finest antiques last week. There's a fiddle up there that must be 200 years old and a . . .

Henry—Oh, well, that's different!

(They hasten to the attic.)

As Others See Us

British Editor Predicts Deadlock In American Affairs Unless President And Business Can Compromise Differences.

Under the title of "American Deadlock," the following article appeared in the London Economist of April 16, from which it is reprinted.

IT IS BY NO MEANS a new thing for the American Congress and the President to be quarreling. Indeed, ever since the days of President Washington, the rare periods of harmonious concord have been so exceptional as to excite wonder whenever they have occurred. But the present rift at Washington amounts to much more than the customary bickering which goes on between the two ends of Pennsylvania avenue.

An extraordinary change has come over the American political scene since the Presidential election of November, 1936. Before that election the President had to face opposition as bitter and as personally venomous as any that even his most unpopular predecessors had encountered. He appealed to the country, and the country gave him the largest majority in its history. He seemed to be in an impregnable position.

The picture of Roosevelt triumphant was changed to that of Roosevelt crestfallen by the ill-starred proposal for the reform or, as his enemies called it, the packing of the Supreme Court. It is still difficult for outsiders to understand how the attempt of a government just decisively indorsed at the polls to enforce its legislative acts could be genuinely believed to be an attack on the fundamentals of democratic government. The fact remains that it was so regarded, that Mr. Roosevelt was accused of seeking an unconstitutional dictatorship for himself, and that sufficient credence was attached to both contentions to defeat the proposal, in spite of Mr. Roosevelt's stubborn defense of it.

Court Fight Charges Defeat Reorganization.

THE SAME CHARGES have been raised against him in the last few weeks during the fight over the reorganization bill. In essence, this is a badly-needed measure empowering the President to rationalize and realign the amorphous bulk of the executive branch of Government. Each of his recent predecessors has asked for something of the same sort, and Mr. Roosevelt's bill differed very little from the drafts of earlier years. In so far as it did so differ—for example, in the proposal to abolish the office of Comptroller General—it would have been fully open to Congress to delete the offending clauses, while leaving the rest of the bill intact.

But the opposition chose to see in this bill another sign of dictatorial ambitions. Mr. Roosevelt having dared last year to attack the judicial branch of the Government, he was counter-attacked on his own ground and charged with planning tyranny because he wished to organize more efficiently the executive branch, for which he has an incontestable mandate from the people. The counter-attack, borne on the crest of a flood of a quarter of a million telegrams to Congressmen, has succeeded. The President has been told not merely to mind his own business, but to be very careful how he does even that.

The reversal of Mr. Roosevelt's political fortunes has, of course, been powerfully assisted by the astonishing intensity of the depression that has swept across the country in the last six months. It is true that the sensationally rapid decline in business activity in November, December and January has not been continued at anything like the same rate in the last two months. But it is equally true that there is no convincing sign of recovery yet to be seen.

The official index of industrial production, which was as high as 117 as recently as last August, had fallen to 79 in February, and little change is expected in the March figure. The appearance of figures such as these, at a time when the hopefulness of recovery was beginning to pass over into confidence, has been sufficient to induce in the American people a mood of the blackest pessimism.

President At First Denied New Depression.

AT THE FIRST onset of this recession the President, like all administrators in office, attempted to deny its existence. There was a second phase in which he left it to cure itself. But the pressure of facts is now forcing him to take active steps. The remedies of 1933 have been taken down from the shelf and re-examined, and the most effective of them had been readopted. The pump is once more to be primed with a Federal deficit; Congress is to be asked to appropriate $4,250,000,000 for relief payments, for loans to States and municipalities for public works, and for loans to business.

This decision, coupled with the Congressional humiliation of its author, has lifted Wall Street's spirits, and once more there are hopes that the next few weeks will see some beginnings of industrial revival. But it is not possible to feel very happy about the reversion to depression measures. Pump-priming, even when it succeeds, may be a dangerous narcotic. And it is doubtful whether pump-priming of less than heroic dimensions will be of much avail, unless some truce is called in the present savagery of political conflict.

For the bitterness of the dissension that now divides the President and virtually the whole business community, blame can be placed on both sides. The President professes to believe in an economic system in whic the greater part of industrial enterprise is in private hands, and in any case he has neither the mandate nor the power to substitute for it a system of state control. But many of his actions have certainly had the effect of discouraging the exercise of ordinary business enterprise. He has done this by the wording of his speeches, by his labor policy, by his campaigns against an ill-defined notion of monopoly, by his enmity against the public utilities, above all by his innovations in the field of taxation, which have seemed to discriminate against bigness, wealth and conservative finance as such.

Each one of these things in itself is doubtless defensible. Together they have been a frankly deflationary force. But business is also far from blameless. The leaders of industry and finance have resisted needed reforms and criticized the method of recovery, while offering no consistent and coherent alternative to the New Deal. They have been content to live on contradictions, as when they insist on the removal of taxes and the balancing of the budget in one and the same breath. Too much of their opposition has been neither responsible nor constructive.

Above all, the business community can be criticized for deliberately working itself up into such a lather of hatred (no other word is strong enough) of the President, that its fury is choking the whole industrial and financial machine. These faults on both sides are now being reinforced by bitter obstinacy. In either camp the moderate counselors are at a discount. The President, in particular, has broken with many of his wisest friends, both among the politicians (like Vice President Garner) and among the business men (such as Mr. Bernard Baruch). Both sides are now in the mood in which each protagonist delights to obstruct the efforts of the other, with the result that American affairs are rapidly moving toward deadlock.

Lack Of Confidence Assigned Large Blame.

It would be an exaggeration to say that the chief trouble with America today is psychological: a community of 125,000,000 is run on more than emotions. But it is true that the main cause of the recession is to be found in a stoppage of the channels that connect the community with the means of their concrete investment in capital goods, and now that the deflationary monetary policy of a year ago has been reversed, the hindrances are mainly those that arise out of the lack of confidence.

If political bitterness could be forgotten and a practical short-run program worked out by the President and his adversaries, there is no doubt about the improvement of the atmosphere that would follow. It would be necessary in any such bargain for the President to concede the amendments in the taxation system for which business is clamoring, and he would also have to declare a moratorium on any further measures likely to diminish business profits. The other side would need to accept those reform measures that are already on the statute book; they would have to abandon their present attempts to vilify the President; and would need to accept him as being, in constitutional law and in actual fact, the only possible leader of the Nation.

It is, of course, for Americans themselves, and not for the outsider, to say whether some such proposal as this would involve too much swallowing of personal pride on the one side and the other to be acceptable. But it must be clear to all, on both shores of the Atlantic, that unless animosity can in some way be transmuted into agreed action, the peculiar frustrations of Congressional government will soon resume their sway, and, as with Wilson in 1919-20, or with Mr. Hoover in 1931-32, for two vital years there will be no government in Washington.

Pretense Over

By Barnet Nover.

Henlein Shows His Hand.

THERE WAS no finesse in Konrad Henlein's speech to his followers of the Sudeten-German party at Carlsbad on Sunday. It was a virtual declaration of war against the Czechoslovak republic and all it stands for both as a democratic nation and as a sovereign power.

It was a demand that as a price of peace between Czechoslovakia and Germany the Nazi tail should be allowed to wag the Czech dog. The demands made by the spokesmen of the Czechoslovak Nazis have been rejected. But what then?

• • • •

FOR SOME TIME the Prague government has been doing everything possible to bring about a settlement of its long standing disputes with the German minority.

A year ago Premier Hodza made a very comprehensive effort to meet the legitimate grievances of the 3,500,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia. Although better treated than many other minorities in Europe, the Sudeten Germans had reason to complain of discriminations practiced against them in the distribution of government posts and so on. These grievances the government sought to meet at least half way.

• • • •

SINCE THE SEIZURE of Austria the Czechoslovak leaders, from President Benes and Premier Hodza down, have done all in their power to manifest a conciliatory attitude on the minorities question. The other day President Benes issued a sweeping amnesty for political prisoners—almost half of them followers of Henlein. About the same time Premier Hodza sought through direct negotiations with the German minority to bridge the gap between them.

These conciliatory efforts Henlein has rejected with scant grace. Assured of the support of Hitler, under whose banner he now openly sails, he is apparently in no mood for compromise. The Prague government must capitulate—or else!

What in effect he now demands is that Czechoslovakia cease being a barrier to the German Drang nach Osten (push to the east); that Czechoslovakia completely revise her foreign policy so as to make it less anti-German, i. e., abandon the alliances with France and Soviet Russia and in other ways voluntarily agree to become a satellite of the Third Reich.

• • • •

AS FOR THE GERMANS within Czechoslovakia, Henlein demands they be given a corporate status on the basis of full equality with the Czechs. "The Sudeten group of the German race" would thus be endowed with a "legal personality."

What this means is simply that all the Germans living in Czechoslovakia would be governed by laws and regulations of their own, presumably the laws and regulations of the Nazi regime at Berlin. While living in Czechoslovakia they would only technically be citizens of that state. Their loyalty would be to a foreign ruler—Hitler.

In other words what Henlein is asking is extra-territorial rights which may be said to exceed those which foreigners have long enjoyed in China. Presumably the demand to protect the German minority in its extraterritorial status by the dispatch of foreign troops would not be long in coming, were the original demands acceded to.

• • • •

WHAT MAKES the whole business so deathly serious is that Henlein is not speaking for himself alone or even for the majority of the Germans in Czechoslovakia. His voice is the voice of Hitler. His demands, therefore, constitute a pistol pointed at the Prague government's throat. And it is to be noted that every conciliatory move made by the Prague government has so far been interpreted at Berlin as a sign of weakness.

The Nazi appetite grows with the eating. What is happening in Vienna today is proof of that. The Prague chapter of the Third Reich's expansion is not likely to be any more pleasant or humane than was the Austrian.

Complacent Youth

By Martha Bensley Bruere

Maryland's Sample.

MOST OF US who are adult have a clear and exciting mental picture of the generation which is treading on our heels. We see them strong and aggressive . . . wild locks streaming in the winds of adventure . . . torches held high not only to light the way ahead, but to set fire to the toppling past. Do we see reality or a movie set?

To read Howard Bell's report to the American Youth Commission of the American Council on Education is to look into Snow White's mirror which reflects only truth.

This preliminary report is called "A Study of How the Needs of Youth Are Being Met in Maryland."

Why Maryland?

For 50 years, that State, balancing precariously on the old division line between our North and South, has reflected national political thought, for in 13 of the past 14 Presidential elections the popular vote has been for the candidate who was elected. In Maryland are examples of most of the different American environments.

There are 20,000,000 young people between the ages of 16 and 24 in the United States; 250,000 of them live in Maryland and 13,528 of these have been studied for this report.

• • • •

About 9,000 believe that wages are too low; about 6,000 have ideas about how they ought to be raised. The greater number would have the Government regulate both wages and hours. The next largest group feel that labor unions could do it. Less than four in every hundred think that it could be safely left to the employers. Only one in ten relies on his own hard work to get him what he thinks he ought to have.

And only four in a hundred want any sort of economic system or any change in our form of Government. Where are those dangerous "reds" who are supposed to be leading the next generation to revolution? What these young things chiefly wanted was a government with power to do much more for them than ever before, but they were very slightly concerned with using their votes to get it.

They feel that the Federal Government should supply work relief, not on a "subsistence" basis, but at a "health and decency" level.

How about war?

"Two-thirds of them said that they would volunteer or go if drafted and another 10 per cent said they would go if the country was invaded."

This from the report as a conclusion:

"At a time when there is so much talk about the dangers of reactionary oldsters, it might be an excellent idea to give a little thought to the dangers of developing a generation of apathetic youth. In the old, a smug conservatism may be a menace, but in the young, a listless apathy can quite easily become a national calamity."

(Survey Graphic.)

Must Books Be Read?

The collector of books need not fear the challenge that is sure to be made, sooner or later, by his skeptical acquaintances: "Have you read them all?" The first idea he ought to get out of his head is that he must only buy books for immediate reading.

"The charm of a library," said that devout book lover, the late Arnold Bennett, "is seriously impaired when one has read the whole or nearly the whole of its contents."

Bennett confessed that he had hundreds of books he had never opened, and which perhaps he never would open. But he would not part with them. He knew they were good, and as he gazed on them, he said to them, "Some day, if chance favors, your turn will come. Be patient!"

Text Of Tax Message

The Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States approved in 1913, expressly authorized the Congress "to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived." That is plain language. Fairly construed this language would seem to authorize taxation of income derived from State and municipal, as well as Federal bonds, and also income derived from State and municipal as well as Federal offices.

This seemingly obvious construction of the Sixteenth Amendment, however, was not followed in judicial decisions by the courts. Instead a policy of reciprocal tax immunity was read into the Sixteenth Amendment. This resulted in exempting the income from Federal bonds from State taxation and exempting the income from State bonds from Federal taxation.

Whatever advantages this reciprocal immunity may have had in the early days of this Nation have long ago disappeared. Today it has created a vast reservoir of tax exempt securities in the hands of the very persons who equitably should not be relieved of taxes on their income. This reservoir now constitutes a serious menace to the fiscal systems of both the States and the Nation because for years both the Federal Government and the States have come to rely increasingly upon graduated income taxes for their revenues.

Nation and States Deprived of Revenue.

Both the States and the Nation are deprived of revenues which could be raised from those best able to supply them. Neither the Federal Government nor the States receive any adequate, compensating advantage for the reciprocal tax immunity accorded to income derived from their respective obligations and offices.

A similar problem is created by the exemption from State, or Federal, taxation of a great army of State and Federal officers and employes. The number of persons on the pay rolls of both State and Federal governments has increased in recent years. Tax exemptions claimed by such officers and employes—once an inequity of relatively slight importance—has become a serious defect in the fiscal systems of the States and the Nation, for they rely increasingly upon graduated income taxes for their revenues.

It is difficult to defend today the continuation of either of these rapidly expanding areas of tax exemption. Fundamentally our tax laws are intended to apply to all citizens equally. That does not mean that the same rate of income tax should apply to the very rich man and to the very poor man. Long ago the United States, through the Congress, accepted the principle that citizens should pay in accordance with their ability to pay, and that identical tax rates on the rich and on the poor actually worked an injustice to the poor. Hence the origin of progressive surtaxes on personal income as the individual personal income increases.

Tax exemptions through the ownership of Government securities of many kinds—Federal, State and local—have operated against the fair or effective collection of progressive surtaxes. Indeed, I think it is fair to say that these exemptions have violated the spirit of the tax law itself by actually giving a greater advantage to those with large incomes than to those with small incomes.

Considerable Wealth Termed Locked Up.

Men with great means best able to assume business risks have been encouraged to lock up substantial portions of their funds in tax-exempt securities. Men with little means who should be encouraged to hold the secure obligations of the Federal and State governments have been obliged to pay a relatively higher price for those securities than the very rich because the tax-immunity is of much less value to them than to those whose incomes fall in the higher brackets.

For more than 20 years Secretaries of the Treasury have reported to the Congress the growing evils of these tax exemptions. Economists generally have regarded them as wholly inconsistent with any rational system of progressive taxation.

Therefore, I lay before the Congress the statement that a fair and effective progressive income tax and a huge perpetual reserve of tax-exempt bonds cannot exist side by side.

The desirability of this recommendation has been apparent for some time, but heretofore it has been assumed that the Congress was obliged to wait upon that cumbersome and uncertain remedy—a constitutional amendment—before taking action. Today, however, expressions in recent judicial opinions lead us to hope that the assumptions underlying these doctrines are being questioned by the court itself and that these tax immunities are not inexorable requirements under the Constitution itself but are the result of judicial decision. Therefore, it is not unreasonable to hope that judicial decision may find it possible to correct it. The doctrine was originally evolved out of a totally different set of economic circumstances from those which now exist. It is a familiar principle of law that decisions lose their binding force when the reasons supporting them no longer are pertinent.

Recommends Action To End Exemptions.

I, therefore, recommend to the Congress that effective action be promptly taken to terminate these tax exemptions for the future. The legislation should confer the same powers on the States with respect to the taxation of Federal bonds hereafter issued as is granted to the Federal Government with respect to State and municipal bonds hereafter issued.

The same principles of just taxation apply to tax exemptions of official salaries. The Federal Government does not now levy income taxes on the hundreds of thousands of State, county and municipal employes. Nor do the States, under existing decisions, levy income taxes on the salaries of the hundreds of thousands of Federal employes. Justice in a great democracy should treat those who earn their livelihood from government in the same way as it treats those who earn their livelihood in private employ.

I recommend, therefore, that the Congress enact legislation ending tax exemption on Government salaries of all kinds, conferring powers on the States with respect to Federal salaries and powers to the Federal Government with respect to State and local government salaries.

Such legislation can, I believe, be enacted by a short and simple statute. It would subject all future State and local bonds to existing Federal taxes, and it would confer similar powers on States in relation to future Federal issues.

At the same time, such a statute would subject State and local employes to existing Federal income taxes, and confer on the States the equivalent power to tax the salaries of Federal employes.

The ending of tax exemption, be it of Government securities or of Government salaries, is a matter, not of politics, but of principle.

Ten Minutes Used By House to Pass Five District Bills

The House took ten minutes to pass five minor District bills yesterday, only one of which caused any discussion.

Representative Cole (Republican), of New York, of the House District Committee, said he believed one of the measures established a bad precedent in relieving a religious institution of a special paving assessment.

District officials had opposed the bill to prevent the city from collecting a roadway assessment from Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The other four measures, passed in rapid-fire order, propose:

That the ABC act be amended to permit railways to obtain blanket on-sale licenses for their dining cars for $60 a year.

That the $2,500 limitation on the salary of the executive secretary of the Minimum Wage Board be removed.

That the United States Power Squadrons be incorporated.

As all the bills originated in the House, they must be approved by the Senate before becoming laws.

Prochniks Move Out of Legation, But Not Too Far

Edgar L. Prochnick, former Austrian minister, and his family, yesterday moved from the old Austrian Legation, 2343 Massachusetts avenue northwest, to a red brick house at 1813 Twenty-fourth street northwest, just around the corner from the legation.

With Prochnik, went his wife, Mrs. Prochnik, the former Gretchen James, of Boston, and their two youngest children, Patricia and Edgar, jr. Two other daughters are married. The former minister now bears the title of Minister Plenipotentiary of Germany to the United States and a attache to the German Embassy here.

Coercion Inquiry For Pennsylvania Launched by WPA

Philadelphia, April 25 (AP).—The Works Progress Administration commenced today an investigation of "political coercion" charges in Pennsylvania's Democratic primary campaign row, as the Public Works Administration sent extra project inspectors into the State for "PWA's protection."

Francis Dryden, WPA field representative, studied what Philadelphia Democratic Chairman John B. Kelly described as a "mass of evidence" that representatives of United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey were "coercing" WPA employes for votes.

Dryden said Kelly's first "evidence" was a "generalization" of the coercion charges. Kelly said he would send the WPA representative tomorrow photostatic copies of "many affidavits" from WPA workers.

The Public Works Administration said at Washington its sending of additional inspectors to Federal-aid projects carried on by the Pennsylvania State Authority was self-initiated.

The announcement was made, however, after Secretary of the Interior Ickes was sent a telegram by Mayor Wilson asking the Government to suspend temporarily more than $9,000,000 worth of contracts awarded Matthew H. McCloskey for State Authority jobs.

Convicts' Farm Appeals for Aid

An appeal for funds to support former Washington convicts on a rehabilitation farm in Huntington, W. Va., was received yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

The letter was sent to Maj. Brown by Earl E. Dudding, a former convict, who operates a large farm for the benefit of men who have served time in prisons.

Dudding stated he is supporting 121 men who have been released from District jail. He said he will be unable to care for the men unless he receives contributions.

New Deal Faces Test in Florida Primary Fight

Democrats in Alabama and S. Dakota Also Ballot Early in May.

By the Associated Press.

Florida's primary election contest for the Democratic senatorial nomination may provide the first real test of the Roosevelt Administration's popularity at the polls this year.

The Florida Democrats will ballot a week from today. Primaries in Alabama and South Dakota will be held the same day, and two more—in Pennsylvania and Oregon—will follow late in May.

None of these, however, now appears likely to furnish such a clear test of Administration strength as will that in Florida.

James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, announced in Florida several weeks ago that "we" would like to see Senator Claude Pepper returned to office. He did not define "we," but President Roosevelt never has revoked the indorsement.

New Deal Critics in Race.

Pepper, who has supported New Deal measures, is opposed for the nomination by Representative J. Mark Wilcox; Dave Sholtz, former Governor; T. C. Merchant, weekly newspaper publisher, and Finley Moore, of Lake City.

Wilcox has been a frequent critic of Administration policies. He opposed wage-hour legislation and the Government reorganization bill, and was an outspoken foe of the court bill.

Sholtz has been a New Deal advocate.

Both Sholtz and Wilcox have charged use of WPA workers for political purposes.

South Dakota's Contest.

In South Dakota Senator Hitchcock, an Administration backer, is opposed by former Gov. Tom Berry, wealthy cattleman, and by Representative Fred H. Hildebrandt. Political dopesters have predicted that Berry will get considerable conservative Democratic support.

The Republican senatorial primary in that State has drawn four contestants: Gov. Leslie Jensen; Chan Gurney of Yankton, onetime unsuccessful nominee against Democratic Senator Bulow; Paul Bellamy, Rapid City businessman, and George Danforth, Sioux Falls attorney.

In Alabama Senator Lister Hill, who was appointed after defeating former Senator Heflin in a special party contest in January, is unopposed for the nomination.

Indiana Primary.

Indiana will have a primary election May 3 to select delegates to June conventions at which Senatorial nominees will be chosen. The name of Senator Frederick Van Nuys, who has lost the support of the State Democratic organization, may be placed formally before the party's convention, but Van Nuys himself says he has no chance of winning the nomination and will run instead as an independent.

The most bitterly fought political battle of May will be in Pennsylvania. There the regular State organization headed by Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence is opposing the combined forces of Senator Joseph Guffey and Labor Leader John L. Lewis.

In the May 20 primary in Oregon issues are more local than national in importance. Senator Reames, Democrat, appointed to succeed Senator Steiwer, Republican, who resigned, has eliminated himself from the race.

Sholtz, Wilcox Hurl Charges.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 25 (AP). Charges that the Works Progress Administration has loaded its relief rolls with paid political workers to aid New Dealer Claude Pepper, bidding for re-election to the Senate, warmed up Florida's Democratic primary campaign today.

Former Gov. Dave Sholtz and Representative J. Mark Wilcox (Democrat), Florida, two of Pepper's four opponents for the Democratic nomination, made the charges in protests to Washington and in campaign speeches.

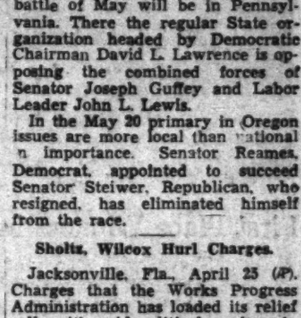

Sholtz wired WPA Administrator Hopkins asking that President Roosevelt be advised of the situation.

Malcolm Miller, WPA investigator, conferred with Aubrey Williams, assistant administrator, in Washington today before beginning an investigation of the Sholtz and Wilcox charges.

Finley Moore, of Lake City, another candidate for the senatorial nomination, said at Miami he had telegraphed Secretary of the Interior Ickes insisting that colored voters be removed from appointive Federal positions in this State.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Child's Greatest Need Is Association With Inspiring Personality, Writes Mother of Grown Sons.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I feel very strongly on the subject of mothers. It is obvious that they need guidance quite as much as children do. The strong emotional attachment that mothers have for their children is regarded by most people as something quite perfect, quite fool proof, and by virtue of its intensity, quite infallible. I don't mean that young mothers don't eagerly seek counsel on the subject of infant feeding, child psychology and the technique of handling Junior's tantrums.

• • • •

But they seldom realize the necessity for studying their own reactions and learning something of the powers and dangers that lie within themselves. They seem to think that being a good mother consists of working day and night on the child—coaxing, molding, pushing, [illegible], scrubbing, worrying—instead of realizing [illegible] are fine, good simple and fine, beyond these, his chief need is association with a wonderful person.

• • • •

Why mothers think they can develop amazingly satisfactory children when they themselves remain mediocre is more than I can see. Unless they are acquiring wisdom, self mastery and a deeper consciousness and knowledge of love and all it means, they won't be of any more value to their children than a hired nurse.

• • • •

Mothers ought to be schooled in the fundamental intangibles, such as the difference between love and desire. If an average mother were asked to define love and desire and to differentiate between the two she would probably say: "Well, love is—er—love, and desire is animal," instead of, "Love is richness, a fullness, an overflowing of goodness and beauty, a passion to give joy; whereas desire is a hunger, an emptiness, a longing for something, not bad in itself, but denoting immaturity." I remember once telling a kindergarten teacher: "You teachers give our children facts, while we mothers are supposed to give them realities." She looked surprised, but I think she understood what I meant.

• • • •

The fundamental intangibles mean also being self-reliant (on God); having a supple, resilient and vigorous spirit; having access to the deep, clear wells of laughter, and the ability to adjust one's self to circumstance and in so doing to master it. There is such a limitless wealth of wonderful qualities for mothers to make manifest to their children! And when and if done indirectly, the children absorb what they need, without resistance. They are very hungry for spiritual food. They are always trying to pierce the surface of the tangible and get to the heart of things.

• • • •

For instance, one of my sons, at the age of 5 (they are now all grown) said to me: "Mother, how long did it take the angel to bring me here?" I replied: "Why, C, I didn't tell you an angel brought you here. Don't you remember I said you——." He interrupted impatiently with, "Oh, mother, I know about that. I'm not talking about my body. I'm talking about my soul."

MOTHER OF GROWN SONS.

• • • •

DEAR CORRESPONDENT: Thank you for a really inspiring contribution. I congratulate you on the wisdom, beauty and utility of your philosophy concerning the opportunities and responsibilities of motherhood. (And in an aside to readers, I wish to say that the writer of the above letter is a woman who is, today, professionally affiliated with a world famous men's university; and the surname she signs to her letter is distinguished in Southern annals). M. H.

When to Shake Hands?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was educated in a private school, but I was not educated to shake hands when introduced. The proper procedure was to shake your head, say how-do-you-do and give a sweet smile. Of course, if someone offered his hand, naturally you were to shake hands. Now I am employed, and a man whose judgment I respect tells me I am not friendly enough with people, because I do not shake hands. I contend that it is not necessary; but he insists that I am mistaken. If you can settle this question I shall appreciate it. But don't give a general answer; just tell me whether I am right or wrong.

BUSINESS GIRL.

Use Common Sense.

DEAR BUSINESS GIRL: I'm sorry, but I must claim the privilege of answering any and all questions put to this column in my own way. Now, to proceed: If you had an intuitive sense of the fitness of things, you would bring a common sense, rather than an academic approach, to this question of handshaking. The manner to which you have been schooled applies to the drawing room. Customary usage endorses a definitely less stilted form for the business and professional worlds. If persons around you shake hands when introduced, or when greeting business acquaintances or habitual callers at the office, you will be proving the worth of your supposedly superior private schooling in doing likewise.

• • • •

After all, the whole purpose of education is to enable the individual to adjust harmoniously to his environment. The hallmark of the true gentlewoman is her gracious readiness to put other persons at their social ease and she does not hesitate to improvise a technique to suit the occasion. Furthermore, the accent is less on one's being a so-called lady (of the drawing room variety), and more on one's being a cordially approachable human being, when one has taken one's stance in the business world. I should say that, in essence, your man critic is probably right; and you are probably wrong. You are thinking of yourself as a lily in a garden patch, whereas he is seeing you (in better perspective) as a rather too studiedly stand-offish young lady. M. H.

Beware of the Season's Furbelows If You Are Short, Warns Singer

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

IF YOU ARE in the petite classification and find it difficult to plan your wardrobe to give the illusion of tall nonchalance, here are some tips from Kathryn Reece, singer, who is in Washington this week. "The little woman," she commented, "should have her clothes designed with simple, long lines, not too short in length, and forget all about frills and furbelows which only accentuate her shortness." Miss Reece, who is just a bit over 5 feet herself, goes in for costumes of the spectator sports type because of their simplicity, and evening clothes which are softly tailored in styling rather than the bouffant versions.

In the [illegible] of color tones and color combinations, this diminutive actress also has definite ideas, largely due, she ventured, because in her leisure time she paints portraits of her family and people of the theater. "I am very fond of rather bold colors for house, decoration," Miss Reece remarked, "but when it comes to clothes, I prefer muted colors and soft pastels." She is particularly keen about all shades of blue, and when interviewed was wearing a medium blue lace gown that she had recently designed and made; sewing and knitting being other leisure-time pursuits.

Dress to Type.

Too many women slavishly follow trends and modes in preference to becomingness, Miss Reece volunteered. Dressing to type rather than to fashion, is her own rule for smart individuality. "An extensive wardrobe is not necessary in order to appear chic at all times," she said. "Several good costumes with a variety of accessories is a much wiser plan and promotes self-assurance, because you know the clothes are not cheap or shoddy."

Hats are among this singer's favorite items of dress, although she says she never indulges in the so-called silly or exotic versions. "When I am low in spirits, I go out and buy myself a new hat," she exclaimed. "It always acts as a tonic and changes my mental attitude."

Good grooming is most essential for the business girl, Miss Reece contends, and her advice to the girl looking for a job is to "give the appearance of being successful "regardless of what the finances happen to be at the moment. Another suggestion to the business girl from this authority is to cultivate a pleasing speaking voice—and, she added, "I mean quantity as well as quality, as most women talk too much and say nothing."

Miss Reece, who said she began singing at the age of 3, studied at the Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati, and the Juliard School in New York, and has sung in the leading cities of the United States and Canada, as well as a number of European countries. She is appearing this week in Washington with the Gilbert and Sullivan Operetta Company—the prima donna in several of the productions.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 25.

WELL, LITTLE Osa Johnson, the game and pretty widow of explorer and wild-life photographer Martin Johnson, has come, spoken her little piece and gone on the long trail again—and we are all the richer for her having passed our way this year.

Maybe you've seen Osa, as feminine a woman as I know, who shared Martin's long trips into the wilds of the world. I recall how he used to call her "Osie" in his talks. Many of us were amused at the smart toggery she wore in the depths of deepest Africa—it didn't seem to check with wild life on the Dark Continent. When I was with her on her recent visit, I asked "Osie" about this. "You couldn't stand the jungle if you went around looking like a tramp," she said. "Why, I tried to dress for dinner every evening!"

ALICE HUGHES

It does make sense when you think of it. Certainly the little woman, who for 27 years poked around far places, likes and knows nice clothes and things. Sitting in her ivory suite, at the Waldorf, she looked far from the African veldt. Her skin was nice and pink, and her brown hair had been done by clever hands—and on her tiny feet were little gold kid mules. Just the same, she liked to talk about those endless treks—as she sat there above luscious, heedless Park avenue.

Will Rogers, Chic Sale and Harry Lauder financed their second adventure 28 years ago, she says, when all were appearing together in vaudeville. Now she has collected the best bits of all the movies they ever made in wild places, and "Osie" lectures as the film unwinds. Maybe she's visited you by now.

When the tour is over, Osa wants to set off on another adventure, for after nearly 30 years she has grown to love many of the sights and sounds of these remote lands. And she'll always look nice, and serve good food in the jungle, and come back to us all dressed up and smart-looking, and we'll all have to go and listen to little "Osie" again, for she's good and game—and smart.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Kindly springtime thought for all customers: Miss Elsa Maxwell, cafe society's pet boredom-chaser, has finally thought up a Maypole party for her swanky friends, and it will be tossed on May 4, and this is the last mention of it I'll ever make. Isn't that sweet of me?

The Quakers seem to be doing all right in this big wicked city. Their annual meeting learned that 47 more members lived here this year than last, and that Greater New York now has 2,100 members of the Society of Friends, out of our 7,500,000. Some mention was made of compromising with the ban on the evils of tobacco and liquor, but I doubt this. My goodness, a few people must be uncompromising about such things, and if the Quakers quit, who then?

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

'Female Complaints.'

"My Life as a Country Doctor," is a book by Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler, which should be amusing to anybody. Dr. Hertzler likes to call himself a country doctor but, as a matter of fact, he is one of the best surgeons in the United States, although, like the Mayos, he works in a small country town.

As indicating the quality of book, Dr. Hertzler's remarks on female complaints are very illuminating:

Female complaints are generally understood to be diseases of the organs peculiar to women. They are handled by doctors who are called gynecologists or "specialists in diseases of women." The doctor's definition of a gynecologist is "an unfortunate individual whose mission in life it is to aid the human female to correlate her biologic instincts with the dictates of Christian ethics."

Women with female complaints are capable of a kind of classification as they walk into a doctor's office. One is the middle-aged woman, who is suffering from many complaints, chiefly because she is middle-aged. Then there is the adolescent girl. Christian lady and plain animal sometimes wage a terrible subconscious battle. Many of these girls can be relieved by a method which appeared as long ago as Hartshorn's "Practice of Medicine," which described it, by the use of potassium iodide, because these patients have small goiters and when they disappear the dysmenorrhea does likewise.

Quite a large group of female complainers come to the doctor's office accompanied either by husband or mama. Mama has had all the symptoms and daughter unconsciously imitates her. When there is a strong nervous element in such cases, as there usually is, operation should be avoided if possible because the result will be disappointment.

There is a story about a woman who told her mate that she had just had a talk with daughter. Papa asked: "What new did you find out?"

Another type is the female complainer who comes to the doctor's office unattended and says she wants a physical examination. The diagnosis is plain enough. She thinks hubby has been out visiting the blonde and has brought something home. The chances are he hasn't. If he is a real rounder, his wife will swear by him. If he is faithful, she swears at him. The jealous woman nearly always has a faithful husband.

Most female complaints, according to Dr. Hertzler, are not due to any real disease, but to the circumstances of the woman's life.

"The Awful Truth."

"What a DARLING new dress!"

"NEW! It came out of the Ark!"

"Well, I never saw it before."

"THAT! That's not a dress. I didn't pay a thing for it."

"Well, I simply got this for nothing."

"Well, I know one thing. If I don't have some clothes soon I'm going to be run in by the police."

"I'm going to [illegible] to join a nudist's colony. I [illegible]

"Look at my hair! I look just like an African [illegible]

"Look at mine! [illegible] down to my knees in [illegible]

"I don't get a [illegible] soon I'm going to have to join the Tribe of David."

"I'm afraid to get one. The last time the barber literally scalped me."

"My skin's turned into leather. I mean it!"

"Honestly, I want to ask you—did you ever see as ugly a woman as I am? I'm afraid to look in the glass."

"Look at me! I scare children."

"Mine are in rags. I look JUST like a witch."

"I simply can't face people. I'm going to go into a cave."

"I'm going to—say, LOOK at that clock! I'll be six hours late for my luncheon engagement. Good-by."

"Good-by. Say, are you going to be at the Trotters' for cocktails?"

"I guess so. Good-by."

Glasses Are Now Aids to Beauty as Well as to Eyes

New York.—Glasses are now definitely "styled" to face and occasion. American Optical designers give the following fashion pointers on modern eyewear:

Wear dark shell-rimmed glasses for golf, tennis, motoring, at the beach, or races. They are boldly conspicuous and go perfectly with tweeds and sports outfits.

Consider your face! If glasses are too large, they will dwarf your features; too small, and they'll seem to inflate them.

A round face is given a narrower appearance by lenses with flat sides. If your face is heart-shaped, see that your glasses are broad at the top and taper downward.

The profile, too, must be taken into consideration in determining which style is most becoming. Spectacles with high-up bows give a lift to your face, just like the new brushed-up coiffures.

If your brow line is good, you'll want the upper edge of the glass to follow the arch. If you use mascara, have your glasses placed a trifle forward. A high bridge will help make a short nose more becoming.

For a last word, use slightly less make-up around the eyes, and take plenty of time for a fitting, just as you do with your clothes.

Where, How To Entertain Is a Problem

But It Is Possible to Play the Host Even in One Room.

By Margaret Wallace

THE PROBLEM of entertaining for the man or woman living alone in Washington must be considered from the viewpoint of a city with more democratic social standards than any other in the country but also with strict ideas as to the necessity of returning social obligations.

The hosts of Government workers and officials are entertained and entertain other "back home" folk living in Washington. Whether to take their guests to a hotel or restaurant or to entertain them in apartment, hotel suite or room in a rooming house presents many problems. Some of the bachelor men and women of this city who live in small apartments, even in one room and bath, have developed a system of entertaining remarkably hospitably. But when one entertains in a room which serves as bedroom, dining room, living room and even kitchen, the entertainment must of necessity be of an informal type and the guests be of the character suitable to such entertainment. Otherwise, it is better to entertain at a hotel or restaurant.

The woman who lives alone and wants to include men in her entertainments may do so provided the party is more than two. It is very hard to make a hard and fast rule in this day of independence of women as to chaperonage. Certainly a business or professional woman is poised enough to dispense with chaperonage when she invites men to her home, whether it be a de luxe apartment or a one-room one. It is certainly wiser and "looks better" for a young girl living alone to have a married woman present when she entertains a party that includes men.

Some "nice women" do invite men guests to their apartments for dinner or luncheon alone when the meal is served by a maid, but from the strict rules of etiquette it would be better to invite more guests.

Women who feel under obligations for entertainment to men may invite them to dinner in a party or even singly in a restaurant. It is good form to pay the bill in advance. A man from the West recently felt highly insulted because he had been invited as member of a hotel dinner party of four by a Washington woman and she had the waiter bring the bill to her. He was committing a real social error when he insisted on seeing the bill and trying to pay it. He was a guest and it was as rude to try to pay the bill as it would be for him to offer to pay for a meal in a private home. It is always necessary, however, to be very plain about this hostess and guest situation in advance. When a woman asks a man to come to luncheon in a hotel and states that she is having two other guests, this means that the man is a guest and must not assume any of the prerogatives of the hostess.

A man who entertains in his home or apartment cannot dispense with a chaperon of some kind if his guests include unmarried women. If there is a married woman among the guests, he will not need other chaperonage. It is not considered good form for a man to entertain one woman guest in his apartment; it is better to take her to a club or restaurant.

A woman who entertains at a theater party obtains the tickets in advance if possible. She may present them all at the door or hand them to the guests or designate one man in her party to take charge of them.

Your Figure Madame!

4-Pounds Gain One Year, 40 the Next, Well Within Possibility.

By Ida Jean Kain.

HOW MANY POUNDS of weight did you gain in 1937 . . . and how many will you gain in 1938? This little weight quiz was inspired by an SOS from someone who took on 40 pounds last year. Even spread over five years, so great a gain in weight would still be far too much.

Excessive as it is, this weight gain has produced one good result. The gainer is already on a rigid reducing program and is determined to bring her weight down to normal. If you gained only two or three pounds last year, and can only recall a pound or so the previous year, you probably think so slight an increase is not worth noticing, but excessive overweight usually begins with just such small weight gains.

For a year or two you gain only three or four pounds. This is very easy to do. You can gain four pounds in a year simply by taking one-half pat of butter—50 calories—per day more than you need. Then you grow a bit careless and add six or eight pounds, but you are used to the increase in weight and do nothing about it. Finally, you can build up to 17 pounds in a year. After all, that only takes 200 excess calories a day.

At that rate you can certainly add 40 pounds in five years! You can do it by taking daily one extra pat of butter or one chocolate cream, or the calorie equivalent, beyond your actual requirements. Figure it out for yourself. Only 4,000 extra calories make one pound of adipose tissue.

You think of obesity as a calamity that overtakes someone else, but it can happen to you. The unfortunate part is that the weight accumulation is often so gradual that it is so much easier to keep your weight down than to get it down.

Statistics show that a 10-pound gain over 20 years is the average, but if you should gain that amount in one year, or even in two, do something about it! Something has gone wrong with your weight mechanism and it is probably your fault. Every now and then overweight can be blamed on the glands, but in almost every instance it is the penalty of eating more food than you can turn into energy.

Clamp down on your appetite when the scales begin to climb. You may not need to go on a diet. You can easily check an upward trend of the scales by cutting calories here and there. Substitute fresh fruit for rich desserts, take a little less gravy and other forms of fat, and go without the in-between-meal calories. You might make it a rule always to leave the table feeling as if you could eat a little more. Ten minutes after you have left the table you will have lost all interest in food. Try this plan instead of relying on your appetite, which is untrustworthy.

How much did you gain in 1937? If careless in diet, it's easy to add 40 pounds in five years!

South African Minister Is Host at Cocktail Party

Mr. and Mrs. Close Entertain in Honor of Their Daughter, Mrs. W. S. Mann, Who Will Sail Soon on the Queen Mary.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Social notables turned out in droves yesterday afternoon for the cocktail party at the Legation of the Union of South Africa. One of the biggest gatherings of the "little season," the event was by way of being a farewell party given by the Minister, Ralph William Close, and his wife for their daughter, Mrs. W. S. Mann, who has been a very attractive addition to the Washington social scene since she arrived the middle of January. When the Queen Mary sails tomorrow, Mrs. Mann will be on board, going back to her home in London.

HOPE R. MILLER.

Several guests at yesterday's party knew the guest of honor when she was Miss Heather Close, a belle of the British colony in South Africa. Others among the hundreds present have known her only since she has been visiting here; but everyone was lamenting that she was leaving and that such a delightful party had to be a "good-by event."

Receiving yesterday with her mother and father, Mrs. Mann wore a floor-length turquoise lace frock made with a full skirt, fitted bodice and puffed sleeves. Mrs. Close was gowned in black crepe fashioned with a short pleated cape and a square neck.

Low bowls of scarlet tulips and huge vases of dogwood were here, there, and everywhere in the spacious drawing room of the legation, which is one of the most attractive and most handsomely furnished in Washington. Doors to the balcony at the rear of the house were open during the afternoon and many a guest in passing had an opportunity to see the smoothly-mowed lawn and fragrant garden below.

Cocktails and tea-time tidbits were passed in the drawing room; but most of the guests without lingering there longer than time for a greeting with the hostess and guest of honor found their way on into the dining room, where a lavish spread was on the long center table.

At a smaller table nearby guests had their choice of drinks; and before the party was half over, the entire dining room was completely filled with social notables circling around one table and then the other.

Woodrings Glimpsed Among the Guests

Among the scores of guests were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, who arrived with the latter's mother, Mrs. Marcus Coolidge. Mrs. Woodring wore a dark print frock with a broad-brimmed black hat. The Attorney General was there, being asked on all sides when his wife would return. "She'll be back Thursday," was his stock reply.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson was glimpsed among the guests; also Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Minister, whose brown print dress and small hat were most attractive; the Minister of Finland and Mme. Eero Jarnfelt, who had some interesting things to say about the forthcoming anniversary celebration of the Finns and Swedes in Delaware, and who have already made plans to take a trip to their homeland after the celebration closes; the Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, the latter trimly turned out in tailored black suit with a small straw hat to match; Emil Hurja, the former United States Minister to the Union of South Africa, Ralph Totten, who was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. B. Totten.

Miss Pauletta Guffey in handsome navy blue ensemble was there; also Mrs. Mrs. William D. Leahy, Mrs. George Pettingill, Mrs. Harry Baxter, in a black frock and small hat; Mrs. Herbert Howard, Mrs. William Phelps Eno, who was accompanied by her house guest, Mrs. Hollister Sturges, of New York; Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem.

Many Diplomats Among the Guests

Among the many members of the diplomatic corps, there in addition to those already mentioned, were the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Alexander Troyanovsky, the latter in a navy blue ensemble set off with white accents; Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, in a brown and white outfit; the Honorary Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Harold Sims, the latter in a smart black suit and a black turban circled with white daisies; Mme. Abhibal Rajamaitri, wife of the Minister of Siam; Mme. de Bianchi, wife of the Minister of Portugal, whose stunning black Schiaparelli hat with its green band looked very much like the type circus ringmasters wear; Mme. Emmanuel Dimitriu, of the Rumanian Legation, and the Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, who were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Anne Mahoney.

Among other guests were Mrs. Effingham Townsend, Mrs. Francis Walker, Mrs. Sol Bloom, who returned yesterday morning from her trip to South Carolina as a member of the Congressional "Azalea Special"; Clarence Hewes, who was squiring Miss Irene Boyle toward the dining room; Mrs. Esther Bissett Norment, in one of the prettiest hats there—a broad-brimmed straw circled with a variegated band; Representative and Mrs. Ralph Brewster, Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, Mrs. Carlos de Mar, Mrs. Fred Britten, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sprucks, Mrs. Dion Williams, Mrs. Monroe Johnson, Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., in a black ensemble set off with a silver fox neckpiece; Maj. and Mrs. Parker West, and scores of others.

General, Mrs. Holcomb Return Here Thursday

The Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb are expected to return to Washington on Thursday after spending ten days at Parris Island.

Miss Eudora Clover, sister of Mrs. Holcomb, who was their guest at their quarters at the Marine Barracks, has returned to New York, and will sail tomorrow for Paris, where she lives.

Theater Goers At First Night

The regular Theater Guild group missed an awfully good play last evening at the National Theater when "Yes, My Darling Daughter" opened. There were comparatively few of the familiar faces in the audience, although there was a sizable showing of officials and diplomats.

The Hill was represented by Senators Theodore Francis Green, Carter Glass and John Overton, of Louisiana, who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Katherine Overton. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers also was there, wearing a silver lame gown and a mink coat, with her usual corsage, this time an orchid.

Dr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Bayne were present, the latter wearing a white fur wrap over her black evening dress. Another person with a similar brief wrap was Mrs. Atherton Macondray, accompanied by Lieut. Comdr. Macondray.

Occupying a box were Frau Scholz, wife of the First Secretary of the German Embassy, and her mother, Frau von Schnitzler. Frau Scholz wore a frock of pink brocade and a long wrap of crimson velvet.

Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, an enthusiastic first nighter, was gowned in black with a fur-trimmed wrap to match. Others at the play were Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, Mrs. Edward Sturdevant, Gould Lincoln and his son, Nathan Lincoln, and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin.

Senora de los Rios Plans Tea Despite Envoy Trip Home

Since the Spanish Ambassador, Dr. Fernando de los Rios, will sail tomorrow for his homeland, plans have had to be changed regarding the tea tomorrow afternoon at which he and Senora de los Rios were to entertain delegates to the current biennial convention of the National League of American Pen Women. The tea will take place as scheduled but guests will be received by Senora de los Rios and Senorita Laura de los Rios, who will come down from New York to substitute for her father.

Senorita de los Rios will be in Washington the remainder of the week and will entertain at a luncheon at the Embassy Thursday.

Society Will Be At Opera Here

Society will be widely represented at the performance of "Madame Butterfly" Wednesday evening and "Il Trovatore" Thursday evening at Constitution Hall. Both operas are being produced by the New York Grand Opera Company with casts drawn entirely from the forces of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Rose Bampton, Sidney Rayner and Carlo Morelli will head the cast of "Il Trovatore;" while Rosa Tentoni and Armand Tokatyan will head the "Butterfly" cast.

Senator and Mrs. Ernest Lundeen are following the career of the Minnesota-born Rosa Tentoni, while the Ambassador of Chile has reserved two boxes to hear his country-man, Carlo Morelli. Following is a partial list of patrons in addition to those mentioned: The Minister of Honduras and Senora De Lozano, Commander and Senora De Puga, Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kramer, Lieut. Comdr. R. E. Blick, Mrs. Mabel Walker Wildebrant, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bang, H. G. Roberts, Mrs. Charles Schwartz, Col. C. C. Schieffler, Miss T. Ironi, Capt. I. Bell, Mrs. E. M. Thompson, Mrs. M. Mesrobien, George H. Jennings, Mrs. Wm. Justice Lee, Miss Nora Lee Orandorff, Lieut. Forrest Caraway, Dr. F. J. Eichenhaub, A. S. Maifon, Miss Ruth Jackley, Mrs. J. M. Wise, J. P. Leech, Mrs. Hennan Jennings, Juan R. Quizano, Harry H. Cohen, O. H. Huntsman, W. B. Young, William K. Ryan, E. H. King, Dr. and Mrs. George Goetzman, W. P. Redeng, King Smith School, Gunston Hall School, Holton Arms School.

To Entertain.

The Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis have issued invitations to a reception on Sunday, May 15, from 5 until 7 in celebration of the regeneration anniversary of the Republic of Latvia.

To Entertain for Bride-to-Be

Hessler Studio.

Miss Carolyn Chantry, daughter of Capt. Allen J. Chantry, U. S. N., and Mrs. Chantry. She will entertain at a cocktail party tomorrow for Miss Helen Brereton and Robert Dwight Swezey, whose wedding will take place on Friday.

'Jock' McLean Married at Reno

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Reno, Nev., April 25.—Thirty minutes after divorcing Robert Ogden Bacon, jr., of New York, Mrs. Agnes Pyne Bacon, New York socialite, today became the bride of John R. (Jock) McLean, 22-year-old son of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, of Washington, owner of the famous Hope diamond.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Brewster Adams, Baptist minister, at Drowsy Pines, the home of Attorney Clyde Souter who handled the divorce proceedings.

No sooner had the couple been pronounced man and wife than the young bridegroom went to a telephone and called his mother in Washington. He said the news had made Mrs. McLean "very happy" and that he had told her he and his bride would sail tomorrow for a two-week honeymoon at Honolulu.

Alleging cruelty, Mrs. Bacon received an uncontested decree at a secret, 10-minute trial held before Judge Thomas F. Moran. Papers in the case were sealed.

The divorce, giving McLean's bride custody of her 2-year-old daughter, Sandra, was obtained from Bacon, cousin of the late Robert Bacon, United States Ambassador to France, at 3:30 p. m.

At 4 p. m. Mrs. Bacon and McLean were standing before the minister.

McLean said he would return to Washington about the middle of next month to be best man at the wedding of his brother, Edward B. McLean, jr., to Miss Ann Carroll Meen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meen of Georgetown, May 25.

Mr., Mrs. Hall Give Tea Party

Dr. Percival Hall, the president of Gallaudet College and Mrs. Hall entertained at an informal tea yesterday in honor of Miss Katherine Gallaudet of Hartford, Conn., and her sister, Mrs. William S. Closson, of Newton, Mass.

The hostess wore a black satin dress trimmed with lace, while Miss Gallaudet was in green lace, and Mrs. Closson in blue chiffon. Miss Charles Ely, wife of Professor Ely of Gallaudet, and Miss Elizabeth Peet, dean of women of the college, assisted.

Those present were members of the faculty of Gallaudet and Kendall School.

The two guests of honor who have been visiting with Miss Elizabeth Peet are now the house-guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hall. They will return to their homes in a few days.

Capt. and Mrs. O. M. Hustvedt entertained at a breakfast on Sunday noon at the Army and Navy Club in compliment to their house guests, Mrs. George W. Bailey, of Boston; Mrs. James Pine, of Norfolk, and Alfred D. Cooper, of Manila, P. I., sisters and brother of Mrs. Hustvedt. Mrs. Bailey is the Alice Cooper Bailey whose novel for girls "Footprints in the Dust" was awarded a prize Saturday evening by the National League of American Pen Women at their biennial convention at the Hotel Willard.

Other guests, all of whom had lived in or spent some time in Honolulu, were Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Judge Advocate General of the Army; Col. and Mrs. C. T. Hardigg, Capt. and Mrs. Harold C. Train, Capt. and Mrs. W. H. Munter, Commander and Mrs. W. N. Derby, Mr. and Mrs. Magruder Maury.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

FOUR SONS, 4 daughters-in-law, 8 grandchildren, and a mere 1,000 out-of-town friends have been invited to the celebration Monday marking the golden wedding anniversary of our envoy to Mexico and Mrs. Josephus Daniels.

DUDLEY HARMON.

The Daniels, who seem to have more friends even than Elsa Maxwell, will leave today for their home in Raleigh, N. C., after a brief stay at the Hay-Adams House here. While in the Capital, they have avoided formal parties, preferring to spend their leisure time with the son and daughter-in-law here, Dr. and Mrs. Worth Daniels.

Mrs. Daniels is naturally excited about all the fuss being made over their golden wedding anniversary, but yesterday said modestly:

"My husband has four loves: first, newspapers; next, the Democratic Party; third, the church, and fourth, me."

MR. AND MRS. J. L. Houghteling have asked a few young people in next Monday afternoon for tea to meet Mr. and Mrs. Henry Varnum Poor. Mr. Poor is studying with the State Department Foreign Service School here, and is a relative of the other Henry Varnum Poor, the artist, who, among much notable work, did several of the murals in the new Postoffice Building.

The Houghtelings reside at 2424 Wyoming avenue. The former is commissioner of immigration, and Mrs. Houghteling is a daughter of Frederic Delano, uncle of the President.

IT TAKES the British really to think up resounding titles. Instead of being called just plain captains or colonels, officers of their air force boast such complicated handles to their names as "Wing Commander" and "Squadron Leader."

A group of them arrived in New York yesterday on the Queen Mary to look over the field here preparatory to buying a lot of United States aircraft. They will come to Washington shortly for several days before going out to the West Coast, and will be at the Mayflower.

EVEN such prosaic objects as typewriters and file cases take on a pleasant air when seen after a highball or two, as guests discovered at the cocktail party given yesterday by Hazel Edgar and Gladys Taylor. The party was held in their office at 1653 Pennsylvania avenue to celebrate its remodeling, and enough bouquets of flowers had been sent them to make an opera singer jealous.

Hazel and Gladys are two of our best-known and best-liked publicity women, and that they are original goes without saying. Yesterday they received their guests wearing businesslike blue smocks over their dresses.

Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry was among the first arrivals looking very handsome in a black frock, a green straw hat with a scented pink rose and a silver fox cape. Mrs. Joseph Himes, just off the train from Ohio, in blue chiffon trimmed with fur; Mrs. William Moffett in a beige cape suit; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lamb (Mrs. Lamb gets credit for the sandwiches); Mrs. Gouverneur Hoes, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph G. Bishop, Mrs. Mary MacCracken Jones, Miss Mary Randolph, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. A. M. Nevius, H. E. C. Bryant, and Miss Doris Fleeson, president of the Women's National Press Club, were others who stopped by to christen the new office with a cocktail. Several ladies of the press also were much in evidence.

On the little fire escape outside their window, the hostesses had placed two chairs borrowed from a nearby drugstore. Here one could sit and peek over into the lovely garden of Maj. and Mrs. Gist Blair, whose historic home is next door. Their tulips are in fine shape, we noted.

Rumania Envoy 'Mikado' Patron

The new Minister of Rumania, Radu Irimescu, is a recent addition to the list of those who are patrons and patronesses for the three benefit performances of the "Mikado," at the Rialto Theater, on Friday and Saturday of this week. Miss Junia Culbertson, will sing the role of "Yum-Yum." Mr. Culbertson, it will be recalled, was Minister to Rumania before he was appointed Ambassado to Chile.

Other recent additions to the patron list for the performances, the funds from which will go to the National Open Parish of which Dr. John Carruthers is founder and organizer, include Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; Mrs. William B. Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House; Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, Mrs. Howard S. LeRoy, Mrs. Charles R. Wood, Miss Mabel Turner, Mrs. Carlos del Mar, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Harold B. Hinton, Mrs. Peyton C. March, Mrs. Charles M. Lea, Mrs. Harold H. Sims, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Ernest Daniel, Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Mrs. William Phelps Eno and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb.

Overtons Hosts To Trade Group

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Overton, who are entertaining at a series of luncheons before their return to London, gave another one yesterday at the Louis Seize room of the Shoreham Hotel. Mr. Overton heads the British Trade Delegation, now in Washington.

Guests yesterday included Henry Grady, chairman of the committee on reciprocity information; Leo Pasvolsky, of the State Department, and Mrs. Pasvolsky; John Minter, also of the State Department, and Mrs. Minter; the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. O. Chalkley.

Sponsors Named For Humane Play

Additional patronesses for the benefit performance of "A Scrap of Paper" tomorrow and Thursday evenings at the King-Smith Playhouse include Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mrs. Henry Flood, Mrs. Lawrence Benet, Mrs. William D. Thomas, Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mrs. Vachel Lindsay, Mrs. August King-Smith, Mrs. Robert M. Ferguson, Miss Katharine Frost, Mrs. John Allen Davis and Miss Katherine Elliott.

Wesley Heights Tour Tuesday

A tour of private gardens in Wesley Heights will be conducted Tuesday for the benefit of the Florence Crittenton Home.

Mrs. C. Chester Caywood is chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Freeland, vice chairman. Tea will be served from 3:30 to 6 at the home of Mrs. Louis Montfort, 5121 Broad Branch road.

Some of the gardens to be shown are those of Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Moffett, Dr. and Mrs. Victor Alfaro, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rollow, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Parke Galleher, Mrs. Eugene DeReeves, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Seay, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Montfort, Mrs. Benedicta Regenstein, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Putzki, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Howell, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Leadbetter, Mrs. J. W. Brawner, Dr. and Mrs. Roy Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shorb, and Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Bentley.

Assisting Mrs. Montfort at the tea will be Mrs. Craig Peacock, Mrs. Roger Arundel, Mrs. John W. Townsend, Mrs. Frank Nesbit, Mrs. K. D. Loose, Mrs. Harold Brooks, and Mrs. Luther Johnson.

Mary Nichols Engaged To F. M. Van der Does

Of interest to Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. James Osgood Nichols, of Short Hills, N. J., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Meredith Nichols, to Florus Marcel van der Does, son of the Honorable Lady Wilhelmien van der Does, of Scheveningen, Holland, and the late William Charles van der Does.

Miss Michols, who is a member of the New York Junior League, frequently visits Washington and is the brother of Osgood Nichols, who makes his home here. She was graduated from Ashley Hall in Charleston, S. C., and attended the Sorbonne.

Miss Frances Aull Will Be Married to Hugh Edward Wall

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances Clare Aull and Hugh Edward Wall was made yesterday afternoon at a tea at the Raleigh Hotel. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome James Aull, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh E. Wall, of Dayton, Ohio.

Individual corsages of calla lilies carried the announcement to guests at the tea, given for the bride-elect's mother and Mrs. James M. Brady, the latter of Idaho Falls, Idaho. Among the guests were Mr. Aull and Mr. Brady, who also were in Washington for a visit.

Miss Aull, a member of the faculty at the Immaculata Seminary, is a graduate of Sacred Heart Academy in Clifton, Cincinnati, and of St. Mary-of-the-Woods College in Indiana. Since being graduated from the latter school in 1936 she has been connected with Immaculata Seminary.

Mr. Wall is a graduate of the University of Dayton and the University of Notre Dame, from which he received his law degree. He is practicing law here. The wedding will take place in October.

Bentonelli, First Lady Are Stars At Congressional Club Breakfast

By Elizabeth Ford.

Billowing in the breeze of an electric fan, the stars and stripes long did wave over the all-American breakfast given yesterday at the Mayflower by members of the Congressional Club. The guest artist, Joseph Bentonelli, hailed from Oklahoma and the Oklahoma contingent, ensconced in the middle of the ballroom, carried away autographed programs when the party was over.

Mrs. Roosevelt, guest of honor at the annual affair, sat behind the biggest floral centerpiece at the speakers' table, wearing a blue dress and wide-brimmed hat trimmed with flowers. Next to her was Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, president of the Congressional Club, also attired in blue, and wearing a wide-brimmed hat with a cluster of blue and lavender posies.

In fact those anxious to see had quite a task because there was hardly a guest who hadn't gone in for large-sized headgear, which obstructed many views.

Urges Thought On World Affairs

The First Lady spoke unhurriedly and not into the microphone, on the value of a fundamental understanding of international problems for the sake of the next generation.

Also at the speaker's table, although only Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Reed spoke, were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, in a flowered print dress; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, whose bonnet was topped with red and yellow; Mrs. Harlan F. Stone in a black hat trimmed with yellow; Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Stanley Reed, all in black; Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Mrs. Harry S. Woodring with a big green ribbon on her hat; Mrs. William M. Whittington, Mrs. Porter Dale, Mrs. James F. Byrnes and Mrs. Ralph Brewster.

Glimpsed over the new asparagus tips polonaise, the baked Alaska and the demi tasse, were Mrs. Ralph Church, Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. Edward T. Taylor and Mrs. Fred Biermann, in a canary yellow coat and blue hat.

Congress Set in Full Attendance

Also present were Mrs. Edward R. Burke, whose black hat was touched off with accents of white; Mrs. Patrick Hurley, who wore an ensemble of black and white and sat with the Oklahoma group; Mrs. Dave Satterfield in blue; Mrs. Ernest Lundeen in a cherry red cartwheel hat; Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell and Mrs. Schuyler Otis Bland.

Others at the breakfast were Mrs. Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. Richard M. Duncan, Mrs. Karl Stefan, Mrs. John Taber and Mrs. John E. Rankin, Mrs. Charles F. McLaughlin, Mrs. Ewing Thomason, Mrs. Sam McReynolds, Mrs. John J. Dempsey, Mrs. John J. Cochran, Mrs. George W. Norris, Mrs. James P. Pope, Mrs. George H. Mahon, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mrs. Wright Patman, and Mrs. Robert L. Doughton.

Through it all music was furnished by the Marine Band Orchestra.

Mrs. Roosevelt Tells 'System'

How Mrs. Roosevelt manages to shake hands with thousands of women in one afternoon and still survive was revealed yesterday morning at her press conference. Admitting that she has something of system for negotiating the feat, she said it was not difficult "once you get started." She added she had just "as soon shake hands with 4,000 as 2,000 in an afternoon."

Her "system" is to take the hand of the guest, and propel the latter on down the line as greetings are being exchanged. At the end of a couple of hours of handshaking her upper arm sometimes aches and her feet usually ache, she added. Sometimes, too, her throat gets dry, and the line is stopped long enough for her to drink a glass of water.

Her most recent reception for thousands of guests was the one for the Daughters of the American Revolution Saturday afternoon. Yesterday afternoon, she shook hands with hundreds of delegates to the biennial convention of the National League of American Pen Women, and later received two other groups—wives of motion picture executives now meeting in Washington, and members of the Farm Credit Board. Last evening she was guest of honor at the dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

The First Lady read these engagements, along with others for the week, at her conference at which was discussed a variety of subjects—including the "Birth of a Baby" motion picture, which she saw in the past week; and "pump priming" for recovery.

Comments on Value Of 'Birth' Film

The motion picture, she said, is a very good educational film for mothers and mothers-to-be. As a picture, aside from one dramatic moment, it was not particularly interesting, she continued. She said further she could understand the viewpoint of persons who thought it should not be shown indiscriminately. Parents should be the ones to judge when, or if, their children should see it, she said.

She believes the referendum on whether District of Columbia residents should have suffrage is a good thing, but declared she was not eligible to vote for or against it since she is not a resident of the District.

Going to New York And Then to Boston

This morning at 11 o'clock Mrs. Roosevelt will receive Sherwood Eddy and a group he is conducting on a tour of this country. Tomorrow she will be in New York, where a full schedule awaits her. In the morning she will visit the office of the Vocational Service for Juniors, and in the afternoon she will attend the tea for United Feature columnists at the Waldorf-Astoria.

On Thursday, she will go to headquarters of the National Braille Library, where she will read the first chapter of her autobiography, "This Is My Story," for recording on "talking book" records. That night she will be off to Boston, where on Friday morning she will visit two hospitals and in the evening will give an address at Simmons College.

On Saturday, she will speak at the fiftieth anniversary luncheon of the Welfare Association in Fall River, Mass., and on Sunday she will be in Hyde Park for a brief visit.

She will be back in the White House on Monday, where she will receive members of the Daughters of Norway at 10 o'clock, and have her press conference an hour later. Also, on Monday she will speak at the Child Health Day luncheon, and that afternoon, she will attend the annual spring garden party at St. Thomas' Church.

Public Servants' Training, Character Must Fit Them for Their Jobs, Mrs. Roosevelt Tells Business, Professional Women of Washington

First Lady Stresses Club's Responsibility to Keep Public Informed.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Public servants must be chosen for their fitness both from the standpoint of training and character for the job to be done, Mrs. Roosevelt told members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Washington last night. And it is up to the people to understand the situation well enough to know what that job is so as to choose intelligently, she added.

She emphasized the need for a study of conditions so as to understand the whole picture. "What is good for one is good for all," she asserted, "We either rise or fall together and in this country we are going to rise by considering the good of the whole.

"You have the training to choose the right kind of people—of women or of men—to do the right kind of work in public affairs. Many of us feel a great change has come about. Some still think the old kind of service will do, but it will not. There must be a change in the kind of work which is done. It must not be a matter of how much patronage we have; exactly how we advance or what we make out of the job.

Character Must Count With Voters

"We must choose people in public life, regardless of whether men or women, because their training fits them for what we want them to do and because their character fits them to do the kind of a job we want done. A more intelligent study of their field of service is needed, and, if we require that of public servants we must require it of ourselves. If we don't understand what is to be done, it tends to have us put into office those who don't understand the whole picture."

Stressing the responsibility of such an organization as the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which has 1,500 groups throughout the country, Mrs. Roosevelt commended its program theme for the year, "Our Town's Business." "What we need to do is to understand life in the community around us—in all that we touch," she said.

"We don't want to put in positions today people who are not capable of looking at all questions they have to meet and making decisions on the basis of what is good for the whole—what benefits the greatest number.

Declaring that choice of a public official should never be made on the basis of sex but on that of qualification for the position, Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out that a woman must be better than a man would have to be to fill a similar place—"not only to get in but to be accepted," she added. "A woman can no longer hide behind the excuse she's being kept out by men. If she's good at the job she'll be successful."

First Lady Gives Homely Advice

Mrs. Roosevelt, in the beginning of her address, said she had come prepared to talk on the responsibility of businesswomen in government, but as she looked around she had decided to say something about the qualifications of women in public affairs. She smilingly looked down the table at which sat Senator Hattie Caraway, Representative Caroline O'Day, Representative Mary T. Norton, Representative Nan Wood Honeyman and Miss Mary Dewson. Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, assistant adminstrator of the WPA, in charge of the woman's division, as public affairs chairman of the club, was in charge of the dinner.

"It is well for us to stop and think how far we have come in public affairs in a very short time," said the First Lady. "Nobody thought that in 20 years we would be in the place in which we find ourselves today. As I sat and looked at these women I began to sum up the things which had made them successful. Almost all of them have had in their background business or professional training.

"They have all learned two things which we all must learn—first they have learned how to work and, second, how to get on with others. They have also learned not to take themselves too seriously. The job is serious; the thing you have to do is serious, but you aren't so very important. When you learn that, you become much more useful."

Explaining that she had known Representative O'Day longer and worked with her probably more than with any of the other women at the table, she said she had never known her to feel hurt if someone else took credit for something she thought her due; or to seek to be in the limelight or to put the blame on anyone if anything went wrong.

"In public affairs, you are often blamed for things you didn't do and you might as well learn to face it with equanimity. If you learn to care about what you do and not about yourself, you will be relieved of an enormous amount of worry.

Mrs. Roosevelt also paid tribute to "Molly Dewson" as a person who "had a lot of good common sense."

Miss Earlene White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was introduced by Miss Nina Kinsella, president of the local club, and expressed her appreciation of Mrs. Roosevelt's interest in the organization and her membership in it. Music for the occasion was provided by Mrs. Helen Turley.

Prize Drama by Iowa Member Is Presented Before Pen Women

Maude Hickman Is Winner in Contest; Ann Darlington, of D. C., Ties for Third; Mrs. Roosevelt Receives Delegates; Reception at Chilean Embassy.

"My Tony" by Maude Hicks Hickman, of Waterloo, Iowa, was presented last night at the Willard before the National League of American Pen Women as the prize play in their annual drama contest. Francesca Falk Miller, president of the northern Illinois branch of the league and national chairman of drama, was in charge of the production, assisted by Joan Southward, of the District, who directed it. It was part of the program of the biennial convention now in session.

There were nearly 50 entries in the contest, winners in which were announced by Grace Thompson Seton, chairman of awards. She also announced winners in the feature and radio contests. The evening program followed a day devoted chiefly to business, with Phyllis Fergus Hoyt, national president, presiding.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt received the delegates at tea and there was also a reception attended by Mrs. Hoyt and other officers at the Chilean Embassy. There the Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Trucco, conferred a medal of honor on Dr. Barbara Ring, of Miami, in recognition of her work in promoting inter-American friendship. For six consecutive years she has produced pageants for the City of Miami on Pan American Day, one of which was on the history of Chile. She visited each country to gather material before staging the production.

Four of the 50 plays entered in the drama competition were written by members of the Baltimore branch. Second prize went to Margaret McClure Stitt, of the Cincinnati branch. For third prize, the vote was tied between Ann Darlington, of the District, and Beulah Jackson Chamley, of Madison, Wis.

Gangster Plot Wins First Prize

Mrs. Hickman's play is the story of a young Italian who comes to New York and falls in with gangsters. The day his aged mother arrives from Italy, he is arrested at the pier while he waits to meet her. So many years have passed, she does not recognize him and, rather than have her know he is being taken to prison, he tells her "Tony" has died.

Members of the cast included Lee Schubert, as Tony; Francis Lee Sabers, Spike; Dan O'Rourk, Pat; Denise Denson, the Italian woman, and John B. Wells, a detective.

Lillian C. B. McA. Mayer was national chairman of the feature contest in which prizes were announced in two classes. In that for articles of general interest, Mrs. Vivian Williams Utley, of Little Rock, Ark., won first; Mrs. Irene Barrington Selby, of Minneapolis, second. First prize for articles built around a scientific idea went to Mrs. Mary Brandel Hopkins, of Randolph, Wis., and second to John Frances Steele, of the District of Columbia branch, for "Trinidad's Asphalt Lake," published in The Washington Post.

Prizes Are Given For Radio Skits

Winners in the radio contest, of which Lulu Gabel Giese, of Pittsburgh, was national chairman, were announced. There were 22 entries. First prize for a 15-minute radio play, "Hidden Treasure," went to Ona Barroda, of Hollywood, Calif.; second prize, on "Mrs Morton Entertains," to Etta Gilbert, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and third on "The Beige Pony," to Carmea L. Kesting, of Kansas City, Mo.

First for a 30-minute radio play was won by Elva C. Magnusson, of Seattle, Wash., on "The Prize," second by Ona Barroda, on "Sharpest Pencil," and third by Carmea Kesting on "Corn and Pigs."

The awards for 15-minute radio articles went to Laura Grant, of San Francisco, first; Etta Gilbert, second, and Irene J. Crandall, of Chicago, third.

Lulu Gabel Giese was awarded first prize for having broadcast the greatest number of times during the past two years, the late Grace W. Hitt, of San Francisco, was named as winner of the second award in this class, which was received in her name by the president of the San Francisco branch, Mrs. Laura Grant, and third prize was awarded to Winifred O. Long, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Robert Saudak, continuity director of KDKA, in Pittsburgh, addressed the Pen Women on "Building a Radio Program," and "Hidden Treasure," the 15-minute prize play, was broadast over an installed mirophone under the direction of Ann Gillis, of Station WJSV.

The closing event of the evening was the book fair which opened at 11 p. m. under the direction of Dorothy DeMuth Watson, with books on drama, radio and markets featured.

The business session of the convention included reports showing the league to be in excellent financial condition and showing a record growth in membership. Mrs. Mathilde Kolb Bartlett, of Washington, reported as treasurer, and Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, of the local branch, as national chairman of membership.

Mrs. Tyler's report showed a gain of 579 new members during the administration of Phyllis Fergus Hoyt. The State of California, with nine branches, showed a gain of 66, and Illinois, with four branches, a gain of 59. Honolulu branch, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Helmick, formerly of Washington, is president, was another which made a substantial gain.

MYRNA MORSE MACKLIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin W. Macklin, will present a recital tonight at the meeting of the Ohio State Society in the Raleigh Hotel. Melody and Carl Schimer, children of Col. and Mrs. C. C. Schimer, who are members of the society, will also contribute to the program, playing their own composition, "The Epic of Pioneer Days." The selection, for four hands at one piano, is in six movements.

Miss Macklin, before coming to Washington with her parents, was the youngest member of the Fortnightly Musical Club of Cleveland and was presented in a concert at Severance Hall at the age of 12. She won first prize in the contest sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs in 1935 and received highest honors in the National Piano Contest here last spring.

CARDS have been issued by the Peirce Guild, of which Mrs. Frank W. Mondell is president, for the annual "May Party" at Washington Home for Foundlings on Friday afternoon, May 6.

There will be bridge at 2 o'clock, with tea served from 4 to 6. During the afternoon the sale of fancy articles, home-made cookies and candy will take place.

The guild is an auxiliary to this well conducted charity, where any infant or child under 6, in need of care, can be placed. The endeavors of the guild are now in the interest of necessary building repairs not provided for in the Community Chest budget.

Other officers of the guild include Mrs. Lloyd B. Wilson, Mrs. Henry B. Patten, Mrs. William H. Sholes, Mrs. Paul A. Blair, and Mrs. Harry H. Semmes.

DR. MARGARET CARAWAY and Mrs. Jane Walsh, both of the Federal Writers' Project of Gulfport, Miss. are in Washington to attend the biennial convention of the National League of American Pen Women. Among others are Mrs. Laura Lewellyn and Mrs. Ruth Leveck, of Little Rock, Ark., and Mrs. B. Y. Williams, widely known poet of Cincinnati, Ohio, and editor of "Talaria," popular magazine of verse, is among the many prominent writers here to attend the biennial convention of the N. L. A. P. W.

• • • •

MRS. THEODORE TILLER, of the local branch of the League of American Pen Women, is supposed to be attending the biennial convention but so far she has had little opportunity to look inside and see what's going on. She was making out tickets for the White House reception and the reception to be given at the Spanish Embassy tomorrow, sitting at her post in the hallway all morning long and well into the afternoon without even a break for luncheon.

• • • •

ONE OF the other busy persons at the convention yesterday was Francesca Falk Miller, president of the Northern Illinois branch, who was not only in charge of the drama program last night for the N. L. A. P., but also arranged all the music for the convention of the Daughters of 1812, also in session.

A benefit bridge party is to be given by Abigail Hartman Rice Chapter, D. A. R., at 8 p. m. Saturday at Martha Washington Seminary. The proceeds will be used to send underprivileged children to summer camp.

Miss Marie Rice, regent, has appointed Mrs. Edgar E. Good chairman of the general committee; Mrs. Goodwin W. Miller, chairman of the prize committee.

Patronesses for the affair include Miss Lillian Chenoweth, State regent, and the other newly elected State officers, as well as the outgoing State officers, D. A. R.

Self-Help Exchange Directors To Be Photographed 'at Plow'

Mrs. Coyle Announces Farm as New Project at Tea at Mrs. Meredith's Home for Backers of Welfare Effort.

Board members of the Self-Help Exchange will be photographed tomorrow "putting their hands to the plow" when they visit the Perry Farm, north of Kensington, Md., of which they have been given use for an indefinite time.

Announcement of the farm as a new part of the exchange project was made yesterday by Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, secretary, at a tea at the home of Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith for officers and others interested in the welfare undertaking. Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., opened the meeting and brief talks were made by other board members on accomplishments of the exchange.

Mrs. Leonard Elmhurst, of London, who became interested in the work when she was here a short time ago, has placed the 160-acre farm in the hands of the board to be cultivated by the Self-Help Exchange as a means of supplying food to participants and their families.

Hugh V. Keiser, president of the board, emphasized the fact that the exchange rehabilitates men and women who work there, giving them back their self-respect and serving to tide them over until they find permanent employment. They are paid in script and are able to secure, through the various production departments of the organization, food, clothing and services.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle told of how a bakery had been set up, not only providing bread for the workers but giving a job to an old baker who had trained two young men so they later found employment.

Miss Edna Lonigan, administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, has been another actively interested in the project and she, too, cited examples of the practical help it has been in giving unemployed a means of providing for themselves and others.

Robert Woods Bliss, chairman of finance, appealed for interest and co-operation for the exchange. He asked that the women visit it and take their husbands with them. Mrs. Doyle had previously told, to the amusement of the guests, that her husband was one of the men who protested when he found his old clothes had been given away—but, when he saw the need of the people at the exchange, he had told her to take them all down there.

Little things which would appear useless are materials of value in the hands of the resourceful workers, said Mr. Bliss.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, first vice president, who was to have been a joint hostess with Mrs. Meredith and Mrs. Morgenthau yesterday, was unable to be present. Mgr. John F. O'Grady, second vice president, and Frederick P. H. Siddons, treasurer, were also unable to attend. Officers present included Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, third vice president, and Mrs. Coyle, secretary. Members of the board who were introduced, in addition to the speakers, were L. T. Brueninger, C. C. Glover, jr., Mrs. Emil Hurja, Miss Mae Helm, John Ihlder, Udo Rall and Elwood Street.

Colonists Group Convenes Here

The Daughters of American Colonists heard reports and conducted a memorial service yesterday at their annual convention in the Bamboo Room of the Willard Hotel. Mrs. William Franklin Stone, of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., presided at the one day session and today leaves for Virginia to join the D. A. R. tour of historic spots.

The morning session opened with the invocation by Mrs. William F. Miller, of Baltimore, national chaplain, and greetings from Mrs. David D. Caldwell, State regent of the District of Columbia, to which Mrs. Howard H. McCall responded.

All officers were present with the exception of Mrs. George Thatcher Guernsey, of Missouri, and Mrs. John Laidlaw Buel, of Connecticut, two of the honorary national presidents. The other two are Mrs. Livingston L. Hunter, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Joseph S. Calfree, of Tidioute, Pa.

Mrs. Frank B. Steele, of Washington, reported as national recording secretary. Other national officers who presented reports at the morning session included: National vice presidents Mrs. Maurice A. Blake, for the Atlantic Coast section; Mrs. Benjamin Wyche, Southern section; Mrs. Alexander C. Smither, Pacific Coast section; Mrs. Thomas C. Mell, of Atlanta, Ga., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry B. Gall, of Lancaster, Pa., organizing secretary; Mrs. Rollin L. Charles, of Lancaster, Pa., treasurer; Mrs. Grant F. Chase, of Washington, auditor; Mrs. Rufus K. Noyes, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., historian, and Mrs. Andrew J. Sanford, of Washington, registrar.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, was a guest Sunday evening at the banquet at which Robert Lincoln O'Brien was speaker. Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt was toastmistress for the affair, held in the Willard. Mrs. John Franklin Little was chairman of convention arrangements.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

We received a disquieting letter from Lee H. Shugar, director of the N. F. F. E.'s Union Playhouse, relating how some dark mind is spreading the rumor that the Playhouse is actually a blind to capture new members for the N. F. F. E. This is the first we had heard of it. The Playhouse, to our innocent mind, had been but a vehicle for the expression of Federal talent, and that, sir, we'll believe until we actually see Lee Shugar standing at the door with union application blanks in his hand. Even then, we've got to see him hand one to somebody.

But of the rumor, he says: "There seems to be a fallacious idea that the Union Playhouse performances are simply a ruse to bring Federal employes together and then sell them unionism. Such an idea is extremely erroneous.

"The Playhouse is simply a showing of pertinent Federal, State and industrial films combined with vaudeville acts performed by Federal employes. The Playhouse endeavors to help those persons who have talent to develop same. It gives them an opportunity to develop and present their talents and to secure stage training. It also allows persons who have composed music, written playlets, etc., to give their compositions a public hearing . . . You need neither be a member of the union, nor will you be asked to become a member of the union in order to attend these performances or to take part in them."

Agent 2-Q gloats twice, then writes in, as follows: "This is too good to keep. The corridors of Interior are ringing with the news of it. It isn't the fact that the Reclamation Bowling Team—champions of Interior—got beat in a special three-game match with the Reclamation No. 2 team, but the climactic manner in which it was accomplished. With the score practically tied in the last box of the third game—each team having won one game—the anchor man on the number two team came through with a rasing and decisive strike to cinch the contest. A candid camera picture of the faces of the defeated champions could have been captioned "Reunion in Hell." The I. D. R. A. championship team consisted of Charles Dey, Carl Oberheim, Harold Rocker, Pat Collins and Le Mar. Reclamation No. 2 included Walter Meyer, Frank Shiner, Andy Smith, Charles Peckham, Mel Jenkins and Sam Barrett. High sets were registered by Dey—384, and Meyer—330. In all fairness to the champs, it must be stated that the winning team received a handicap, based on averages of 80 pins each game.

An all-Government golf tournament, sponsored by Local Union No. 2, N. F. F. E., will be held at Indian Spring Country Club Thursday, beginning at 11:30 a. m. There will be 18 hole medal play, putting, pitching and driving contests. Luncheon will be served on the grounds. The committee consists of Joseph E. Hayes (GAO), general chairman; E. A. Johnson (War), vice chairman; Commander Eaton (Coast Guard); Marvin Pope (House of Representatives); H. L. Emslie (Agriculture); Arthur Seaton (Board of Tax Appeals); William Carmack (Procurement, Treasury); H. I. Power (ICC); Harrison E. Meyer (Civil Service Commission); Joseph I. Menehan (Interior); Eddie T. Collins (Navy Yard); J. Balestri (GPO); Winthrop Davenport (Federal Power Commission); John Wimer (Veterans Administration); John Deeds (North Building Interior); Frank Butler (Main Building, GAO); William Walsh (Moses Building GAO), and Louis Silverman (Main Building, GAO).

The extension of civil service protection to non-civil service employes will be discussed in a forum to be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the U. S. Chamber of Commerce auditorium under auspices of the United Civil Service Employes. All Federal employe organizations have been invited to send representatives. Commissioner Harry B. Mitchell will attend. The objective is to arrive at a mutually agreeable formula for extending the competitive classified service, while protecting the security of present civil service personnel.

Interior announces a program, based on the human interest of the Civil War. It is these stories, a few of them, which the National Park Service-Civic Theater "America's Hours of Destiny" script will tell tonight over WOL from 6:30 to 7: "stories of Rebels and Damnyankees who were friends between battles; of the Northern lieutenant who swam the Rappahannock to attend the Southern army ball; of the 16 women and children in the Chancellor house during the Battle of Chancerlorville, and of the Battle of the Crater fiasco where thousands of soldiers died while their officers drank rum behind the lines." The Interior lady who typed the announcement we got hit the wrong key, to make the generals drink "dum." And in all reality, that's the right word, the whole outcome of the Crater fight has shown.

Following requests from Federal workers, the School of Public Affairs is offering a five-weeks' training conference on efficiency ratings under directions of Oliver C. Short, assistant to the director of the Census Bureau. The first four weeks will be turned to discussions of the matters to be taken into consideration by supervisors and administrators prior to the reporting of efficiency ratings. The last week will be devoted to a consideration of the use which can be made of these ratings throughout the year. The conference will meet each Thursday evening from 8 to 10, ending May 19.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Too Many Club Bids.

Mr. Culbertson and I are both amused and alarmed by the popularity of a so-called club convention, the invention of which has been attributed to us. In some quarters an opening club bid is used as an out-and-out artificial convention which purports to show a definite number of honor tricks and which demands an answer from the partner. In its most virulent form the convention is used to force a game bid, i. e., partner is not permitted to drop the bidding until game has been reached. In this form the convention is too horrible to merit much comment. That a player should dare demand that the bidding be held open to game, merely because he holds something like 3½ to 4 honor-tricks is a species of bridge insanity that merits pity, more than censure.

But even in those bridge circles where the club bid, as a forcing convention, is not used, there is entirely too much emphasis laid on the virtue of an opening club bid as a normal approach. It has become the habit in many sections of the country to open hands with a bid of one club whenever there may be the slightest danger in bidding any other suit or notrump. I refer to such a hand as North's in the following deal:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

This bidding occurred at several tables, and, in fact, on two occasions when North opened with one club South persisted to a grand slam in hearts. As a matter of fact, a small slam contract was fulfilled at two tables because East was not on his toes.

Declarer stripped the spades and diamonds from dummy, after throwing a club on the diamond king, and then led the ace and a low club. Although it was certainly easy to see what was going on, two Easts lacked the foresight, or judgment, to throw the club king on the ace, thus avoiding the end-play. When the club king was foolishly retained, East had to return a heart or a spade, which permitted declarer to discard his club while ruffing in the dummy.

On the combined holdings, however, a slam certainly should not have been bid. That it was bid was due almost entirely to the opening club bid and the fact that South then thought he had an excellent "fit" with the North hand. It would have been far wiser on North's part to have started out with one diamond. A three-card minor suit to the A-K-10 is certainly better than a four-card minor to the seven spot. Partner will not be so misled, because at least he finds the tops of the suit advertised.

Players will do well to remember that a club bid is not a cure-all for bidding troubles!

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Not long ago the Japanese Embassy made a discreet inquiry to find out whether the Chief Justice would attend the dinner given each year by the Japanese here in his honor.

The reply was a polite but quite positive no; it appeared that other engagements made it impossible for Mr. Hughes to attend.

D. C. Girl Crawls 4 Miles in West As Foot Is Hurt

Boulder, Colo., April 25 (AP). — Ruth Gleissner, 17-year-old University of Colorado freshman from Washington, D. C., nursed a fractured foot in a hospital here today and recounted how she spent 22 hours alone in rugged mountain country, unable to walk. The girl became separated from a hiking party 10 miles west of Boulder Saturday. A falling rock fractured a bone in her foot. She crawled four miles to an old ranch road where Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Tavis of Boulder found her yesterday afternoon.

Miss Gleissner is a daughter of Max J. Gleissner, topographical engineer for the Department of Interior, who formely lived at 3116 Rodman street northwest.

F. H. Goetzger Wins First Prize In Woodridge Club Tulip Show

$75,500 Goal As Cathedral Starts Drive

3d Annual Membership, Maintenance Campaign Opened.

A goal of $75,500 was set last night for the third annual membership and maintenance campaign of Washington Cathedral, launched at a dinner attended by 75 members of the staff and workers in the National Cathedral School for Boys on Mount St. Alban.

Richard W. Hynson, assistant Cathedral treasurer and chairman of the campaign committee, announced the sum would be appropriated as follows:

For maintaining the Cathedral worship and work, $53,500; to help build and furnish the activities building of the school, $15,000; to provide scholarships at the National Cathedral School for Girls, $6,000; for holding lay conferences and expanding library service at the College of Preachers, $1,000.

Clarence Phelps Dodge, who resigned recently as president of the Community Chest, is chairman of the special assignments unit of the campaign committee, with H. L. Rust, jr., member of the Cathedral council, as vice chairman. Walter B. Clarkson, vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., will head the membership solicitation group, with W. W. Wheeler as vice chairman. Edwin N. Lewis, executive secretary of the National Cathedral Association, will act as publicity chairman for the drive.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, in making the principal address, said he looked "forward to the time when Washington will set the pace in a Nation-wide effort to enroll at least 100,000 annual members" of the association.

Chairmen of the campaign teams include: Mrs. Laidler Mackall, Mrs. Walter Gleichman; Mrs. P. L. Wilson and Mrs. Brent S. Drane as co-chairmen; Mrs. James Henderson, with Mrs. Charles C. Wright as vice-chairmen; Miss Sylvia Meredith; Charles T. Clagett, John H. Bayless, with Mrs. F. M. Knox as vice chairman, and G. Waldron O'Connor.

Rev. H. W. Manley Is Given Farewell Party by Church

The Rev. H. Waldo Manley, rector of Esther Memorial Episcopal Church, was guest of honor at a farewell party last night at which he was presented with a photograph of his congregation. He has accepted a call to St. Paul's Church, Bantam, Conn., taking up his new charge May 1.

Before he came to Washington, the Rev. Mr. Manley was acting rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church at Ellicott City, Md., for two years. Before that time he was on the staff of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Baltimore and was director of religious education in that parish's Chinese Sunday School.

He was born at Canton, Pa., in 1902 and was graduated from the Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa., and General Theological Seminary, New York City. He was made deacon in 1927 and elevated to the priesthood in 1928.

Allan Jones to Aid Ad Club Jamboree

Allan Jones, stage and screen singing star, will head a long list of celebrities who will help the Advertising Club of Washington celebrate its twenty-first anniversary at its annual jamboree at the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel tonight. Jones wil be accompanied by his wife, the former Irene Hervey.

Speeches have been banned, according to an announcement by Wilmot R. Squier, who at 24 is the youngest president of any large advertising club in the country.

Father O'Hara Asks New Emphasis on God As Notre Dame Celebration Is Centered Here

At the banquet table at the Mayflower Hotel last night for "Universal Notre Dame Night" were the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of Notre Dame University, Postmaster General Farley and Ambrose O'Connell, executive assistant to Farley.

Cancer Project Launched Here By Clubwomen

D. C. Federation Sponsors Educational Voyage of Big Schooner.

A cancer control project, to be conducted in a four-masted schooner in the principal ports of the country, was launched yesterday at a meeting of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs.

The 205-foot schooner, which has 24 cabins, has been loaned for the project by William D. Rockefeller, of New York City, a cousin of John D. Rockefeller, jr. Named "Queen Arabella" in honor of his mother, the boat will carry on a campaign against cancer as a memorial to her.

Rockefeller made the offer in a letter to Dr. Edith SeVille Coale, a member of the federation and of the D. C. Medical Society's committee for neoplastic diseases. The two have been friends for many years. Dr. Coale explained last night, and Rockefeller made the offer on the condition that she would be responsible for the funds for the project.

Will Visit New Orleans.

Dr. Coale read the letter yesterday at a health conference held jointly by the Federation of Women's Clubs and several local health and welfare organizations. Members of the federation voted unanimously to accept the sponsorship of the project.

The boat has a large reception room and would lend itself to various anticancer activities, Dr. Coale explained. Tentative plans call for a stop in New Orleans during next year's Mardi Gras, in New York and in other suitable harbors. The project probably would include exhibits, motion pictures, lectures and perhaps a floating clinic.

In the principal address of the conference, Frank Kiernan, director of the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association, declared that the District needs 315 more beds for tubercular patients merely "to conform to the standard as accepted throughout the United States."

Dr. Whitmore Speaks.

Speaking on "What's Ahead in Tuberculosis?" he pointed out that the disease is the leading cause of death in the 15-to-25 age group, the period when men and women are in the most productive period of living.

"It is poor economy for any community to pile up debts to be paid later in increased mortality and greater expense to the community through loss of life. By failure to provide these things which will guarantee the reduction of mortality," he said. Kiernan succeeded Harry Hopkins as head of the New York Association.

Participating in the conference, which was held at the Roosevelt Hotel, were the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association, the health committee of the Council of Social Agencies and the Women's Auxiliary of the District of Columbia Medical Society.

Undergraduates, Alumni United in Three-Way Broadcast.

The "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame, undergraduates and alumni, were united last night in a three-way radio broadcast from the Hotel Mayflower in Washington, the South Bend, Ind., campus, and Hollywood.

Focal point of the program was Washington where the Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame, met with more than 500 persons to observe the fifteenth annual "Universal Notre Dame Night."

Father O'Hara, in his address, warned that "the world suffers today from philosophies that leave out God." He said:

"When God has no place in the family, the basic unit of society crumbles. When God is ruled out of business, justice and charity between men suffer, and our economic structure is undermined. When God is ignored in government, the Omnipotence of God is transferred to the State."

Father O'Hara urged Notre Dame men to do their part in restoring God to His place in the home and in society.

Father O'Hara's address followed a broadcast of the university choir from the campus, but efforts to switch the program back to South Bend for a speech by Elmer Layden were unsuccessful, because of trouble with the wires. The third section of the program was presented by John McCormack, Irish tenor, broadcasting from Hollywood.

Among the guests introduced here by Toastmaster Ambrose O'Connell, executive assistant to the Postmaster General, were:

Senators Frederick Van Nuys and Sherman Minton, Indiana; Representatives Vincent Harrington, Iowa; Samuel B. Pettingill, Indiana; D. Worth Clark, Idaho; Postmaster General James A. Farley; Bishop John M. McNamara; Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy, dean of religion at Catholic University; the Rev. Francis J. Kelly, assistant pastor at St. Patrick's Church; the Rev. William Doheny, C. S. C., superior at Holy Cross College, Catholic University; Arthur J. Bergman, football coach at Catholic University; Rip Miller, Navy coach; William E. Cotter, national president of the Notre Dame alumni; Thomas Qualters, bodyguard of President Roosevelt; Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; Charles P. Neill, of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Charles Fahy, general counsel for the NLRB; John Maloney, of the HOLC; James D. Hayes, of the United States Veterans Administration; Frederic W. Wile, assistant editor of the Evening Star, and Raymond Scanlon, of New York City.

Girl Wins Hunt For City's Most 'Unsightly' Lot

Awards to Be Made at End of Cleanup Campaign on Saturday.

Winners of two trips to summer camps for discovery of the most unsightly lots as part of the cleanup campaign of the Junior Board of Commerce were announced yesterday by Lyle F. O'Rourke.

The first prize was won by Ruth Randell, 461 M street northwest, for locating a lot on P street northwest, while working on a team under supervision of Richard Howard, playground supervisor of the National Youth Administration. James Ryan, 730 Sixth street northwest, and James Sfarnas of 511 E street northwest, worked together as members of the Judiciary Square playground team to locate the second dirtiest lot, on First street northwest. Awards will be presented Saturday when the campaign ends.

Other prizes will go to school children now cleaning up the dirty lots reported by the survey teams as well as those improving their own homes and gardens. Boys Club members who belong to clean-up teams will be given preference in award of scholarships to camps, which are donated annually from proceeds of the board's moonlight steamer trip, to be held the night of May 12.

A general fund of voluntary contributions from owners of lots benefitted by the campaign will be set up by the board for distribution to boys and girls on clean-up teams, according to J. W. Brabner-Smith, chairman.

Paper Thief Jailed.

In an effort to end a racket of stealing Sunday newspapers from drug store stands before the stores open, Police Court Judge John P. McMahon yesterday sentenced George K. Pack, alias "Pewee," colored, no fixed address, to serve 90 days on charges of petty larceny.

Natives Boom Fleming for White House

Banker Laughs, but Asks Big Vote on Ballot for District.

The Society of Natives of the District last night boomed one of its members, Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, for President of the United States, the only elective position in the Government now open to a citizen of the District.

Suggestion for the campaign came from William E. Richardson, president of the society, after presentation to Fleming of the society's annual award for "the most meritorious and outstanding public and civic service rendered by a native of the District during the year 1937."

John Clagett Proctor, who presented the scroll, pointed out that in the list of Fleming's offices were lacking those of mayor or governor of the District. "It is to be hoped that such a thing may be possible before long," he declared.

Fleming laughed at the Presidential suggestion, but urged that the "citizens of this community go to the polls on Saturday and by an overwhelming vote register their desire to be placed in the same class with the other citizens of this Nation."

Among speakers at the meeting, the annual banquet of the society at the Mayflower Hotel, were Henry I. Quinn, Walter M. Bastian and the Rev. Edward Fitzgerald, O. P.

Fred A. Emery read a letter from Frank B. Noyes, president of the Evening Star. More than 100 persons attended the dinner.

Brookland Citizens

The Brookland Citizens Association, meeting last night at the Masonic Temple, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast, adopted a resolution condemning action of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board in licensing two beer and liquor stores in the northeast section. The resolution demanded a new board be appointed.

Marvin M. McLean was re-elected president and Dr. George R. Ellis was re-elected vice president. Other officers named were Daniel R. Masterson, secretary, and C. E. Remberg, treasurer. McLean and Dr. Ellis were chosen delegates to the federation.

Mid-City Citizens

The Mid-City Citizens Association, meeting at Thomson School, last night indorsed the pending bill requiring that taxicabs carry liability insurance and asked that one of the proposed automobile testing stations be placed in the Mid-City territory. Another resolution adopted indorsed re-establishment of the Second Precinct police personnel in the present building.

Abandonment of the F street and Cabin John car line was condemned and a resolution was adopted asking that the playground of Thomson School be re-surfaced. Forty new members were accepted.

Trinidad Citizens

The Trinidad Citizens Association, meeting at Wheatley School, last night adopted a resolution protesting "daily violations" of speed regulations governing emergency vehicles of the police and fire departments and by ambulances. The death of Motorcycle Patrolman Ernest T. Wessells in collision with a street car was cited in the resolution.

A committee was appointed to study advisability of asking that Trinidad and Montello avenues be made one-way streets.

Georgetown Citizens

Opposition to a proposed provision of the zoning law which would require abandonment of a business not complying with existing restrictions was expressed last night by the Georgetown Citizens Association.

The association at the same time indorsed the King bill to set up a unified recreation system in the city.

Congregation of Historic Luther Place Church, Long a Landmark, Celebrates Anniversary

Among those present as the Luther Place Memorial Church celebrated its sixty-fifth anniversary last night were (left to right) Mrs. Charles H. Butler, the Rev. Charles H. Butler, son of the church's founder; Mrs. George M. Diffenderfer, Dr. George M. Diffenderfer, former pastor, and Mrs. Carl C. Rasmussen, wife of the present pastor.

Luther Place Memorial Church—landmark at Thomas Circle—last night echoed with memories of other days as the congregation gathered to celebrate its sixty-fifth anniversary.

Robert Blocher, church councilman and secretary of the anniversary committee, read a letter of regret at not being able to be present from Lloyd C. Douglas, author of "The Magnificent Obsession" and "The Green Light," who was minister at Luther Place from 1909 to 1911. Similar regrets were received from Dr. F. H. Knubel, president of the United Lutheran Church, and from the present pastor, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, who has been called to the bedside of his mother, seriously ill at her home in Detroit, Mich.

Others who spoke included Frank M. Burger, church treasurer; J. E. Shoemaker, president of the council, and the Rev. Charles H. Butler, son of the founder, the Rev. John G. Butler.

The Young People's Fellowship String Quartette furnished music.

L. M. Leisenring, chairman of the 65th anniversary committee, was in charge of arrangements. His committeemen included Robert Blocher, secretary; also F. C. Keefer, J. T. Keister, sr., and J. E. Shoemaker.

Luther Place Church, organized in 1873, was planned as early as 1864, being conceived in the spirit of Nation-wide thanksgiving for the end of the struggle between the North and the South. People of many denominations joined in its founding, and dedicated the church to Generals Grant and Lee.

Dr. Rasmussen has served as pastor since 1930.

Mark Reed Hit Wins Acclaim At the National

'Yes, My Darling Daughter' Is a Daring Comedy With Many Laughs.

By Nelson B. Bell

"YES, MY DARLING DAUGHTER." Alfred de Liagre, jr., presents the comedy in three acts by Mark Reed, with settings by Raymond Sovey. Staged by Mr. de Liagre. At the National Theater.

—THE CAST—

Ellen Murray .... Haila Stoddard
Lewis Murray .... Charles Bryant
Constance Nevins .... Violet Heming
Martha .... Shirley Gregory
Ann Whitman Murray .... Lucile Watson
Titus Jaywood .... Nicholas Joy
Douglas Hall .... Howard Ferguson

Playwright Mark Reed has a high penchant for comedy. He also possesses a unique faculty for imbuing his plays with implications that are just a little dubious to those who lend an eye and an ear to social conventions and feel a little reluctance to subscribe fully to the abolition of the "conspiracy of silence," in matters of sex, and recognize the truth when it is presented with sincerity that is more than a bit tinctured with flippancy.

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," presented for the first time in Washington on the stage of the National Theater last night, could have been either a serious social drama or the amusing comedy it is.

The premise of the three acts carries something of a shock. These three acts, to get to the gist of the matter, are predicated upon the proposition that a mother not only condones, but consents in advance, to a supposedly surreptitious week-end on the part of her daughter and the young man with whom she is in love.

The emergency, in this instance, seems to be acute. The young man is about to be employed, under a two-year contract, in Belgium and has not the material resources with which to support a wife. Love is in bloom, so to speak, and this is the matchless opportunity for a consummation of the affection the two kids feel for each other. The final moment of the play seems to presage that all was well.

Is Daring Play.

It would be more than a little on the side of tardiness to impugn "Yes, My Darling Daughter" at this time, after a year's run in New York and the fulsome encomiums that have been bestowed upon it. It may not be too late to say that the idea on which the play is based is altogether on the side of daring and an unconventional approach to the relationships that are supposed to exist between mother and daughter—mutual confidence, moral integrity, and all that sort of thing. Never having been a mother, perhaps I wouldn't know too much about this aspect of the plot.

But Ann Whitman Murray had been a mother—after having previously been one of the enlivening figures of Greenwich Village, where, one is led to believe, she achieved a comprehensive insight into those nebulous and elusive contributants to the gross knowledge of living known as "the facts of life." When her daughter decides to spend that decisive week-end with the only man in her life, Mother, with a sensitive appreciation of some of the emotions she herself had once encountered, gives her consent. The situation is one of some delicacy. But it also is one of much humor.

If the basic implication of the play once is accepted, the three acts become a lively and engaging frolic, played by a small cast that has been chosen with admirable discretion. It should not be understood, however, that "Yes, My Darling Daughter" is merely a "wisecracking" farce devoted to the turning of the witty and the suggested phrase. It is never obscene and it is never objectionable. At times it assumes almost the proportions of philosophic drama. That probably is why it is the hit it is. Six curtain calls greeted the close of the last act last night—almost one for every member of the cast.

Cast of Favorites.

The cast is largely composed of Washington's favorite players. In the role of the daughter of the title, Haila Stoddard does an exceptionally fine and believable piece of youthful character delineation. There is a fidelity in her impersonation that may not be indifferently ignored. Helen Murray, as Miss Stoddard, portrays her, is a very serious, very authentic and very charming young woman. In the role of the mother, Lucile Watson, admirable actress that she is, displays a constant tendency to hurry her lines and make some of them, by their very speed, almost unintelligible to those even so far down front as the fourth row. Last evening that velocity of speech was largely overcome by the time of the arrival of the pivotal scenes of the comedy during its latter half.

Charles Bryant, as the father, who can not grasp the mental processes of the feminine members of his family, overplays increasingly as the action goes on, but still completes an amusing evening on the side of skillful interpretation of a role that is not too exhausting. Nicholas Joy contributes in fine spirit to the domestic cataclysm that threatens the Murray home, in the role of the mother's major love of the Greenwich Village days, and Violet Heming is completely fascinating as Constance Nevins, multiple-divorcee and the play's official "spiller of the beans."

Shirley Gregory, as a particularly attractive maid, and Howard Ferguson, in the role of the discomfitted young lover, who later becomes a figure of heroic rebellion, complete the cast of seven.

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," as I have said, is nothing at which an adult need frown, once the fundamental idea of the laughable three acts is accepted in the spirit in which it obviously is meant. The matter is only brought up because your present reporter probably was born at the wrong end of the wrong century. The play is a hit.

'Snow White's' Run Ends on the Coast

After shattering all records in the history of sound pictures at the Carthay Circle Theater in Hollywood, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" ended on April 24 a run of 19 weeks at that playhouse. "The Great Ziegfeld," previous holder of the long-run record for talking films played 15 weeks and 4 days at the Carthay.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Washington's Discriminating Judgment Impugned by Coolness Toward 'Waltzes'

Last Week's Slim Business at National Raises Question of What Capital Wants in Musical Diversion; "O-Lamp" Bradna Will Be Here in Person; Comes a Book; Notes of the Theater and Its People.

THERE must be elements of human thought and behavior militating against the living theater of which most of us, supposedly en rapport with the playhouse, do not comprehend.

What I mean is that "Three Waltzes," at the National last week, registered an outrageously disappointing week. It would be interesting to know why, for here were music, gayety, a substantial story, dancing and all of the ingredients of Grade A operetta, combined in a manner, and in proportions, that this season's so-called legitimate stage had not before encountered.

BELL.

The personnel of the cast was, to all intents and purposes, beyond reproach—Kitty Carlisle, with a gracious personality and a gorgeous soprano voice; Michael Bartlett, a tenor, perhaps a little stilted in his acting, but splendid in his vocal passages; Marguerita Cylva, that brilliant luminary of the operatic stage of a slightly earlier era; Ann Andrews, Glen Anders, Freddie Sherman and all the rest that made up a roster that one might seek far to find paralleled in this day and age.

And yet "Three Waltzes" languished at the box office. I have no authority for the statement beyond my own suspicion, but, the cost of the production, the salary roll and other imposts being what they were, it is probable that last week at the National was "in the red."

This is in the nature of a sad commentary upon the discriminating taste of the theatergoers of the National Capital, who are supposed to be the most sagacious in the United States. If Washington, with its exalted reputation as a community that revels in the better things of music, did not want "Three Waltzzes," what does it want?

The three variantly spelled Strausses—I am giving the preference to two-thirds of the composership—Johann, sr., Johann, jr., and Oscar, are masters of Viennese melody who cannot, with any justification whatsoever, be lightly laughed off as fellows not worthy to be heard.

Yet that is the way Washington laughed them off last week. I still would like to know why.

Comes a letter from the Paramount West Coast studios.

"Dear Nelson: Stop me if you've heard this one, but a friend of mine, Cliff Lewis, from the studio, will be darkening your door one of these days, crying 'help, help'!

"He brings with him Olympe (O-Lamp) Bradna, on a personal appearance tour. The Bradna, a Corsican peasant, has just become a star and the expedition will be her introduction to the big cities of this Republic.

"I suggested to him to call on you. Hope you can help him. And let me know sometime how I can help you. I'll try, honest; in fact I actually will help. Sincerely, (Signed) RUFUS BLAIR."

It will be a pleasure to do a favor for such an old and helpful friend as "Rufe"—that helpfulness came off long ago.

It also will be a pleasure to greet so talented a young woman as Miss Bradna, youngest of a family who have been before the public for years. Ever since I observed the proficiency of this young woman's work opposite George Raft in "Souls at Sea," with Gary Cooper, I have been hoping for some such opportunity as this to meet her and, if possible, detect the genesis of her ingenuously moving emotionalism. I think it was said here at the time of the picture's release that here was a young woman who had stardom not very far ahead.

This sort of thing isn't always guessing.

So there is another book to read—and a rather bulky one. It is our old friend Anne Ford, one of the more articulate of the distaff scriveners, who recently advised that "under separate cover, etc." Sure enough, it arrived. Sometimes that doesn't happen.

This latest addition to the growing library of theatrical volumes—there will have to be an annex to the bookshelf section of the Gallatin street library before long, if this keeps up—is "My Life in Art," a popular edition of the book by Constantin Stanislavsky, whose name is indelibly impressed upon the development of the Moscow Art Theater. Little, Brown & Co., now are making this book available to lovers of the theater at a price that is considerably under the one originally levied for this deeply interesting work.

After this column has had an opportunity—if ever—of reading this compendium of thought on the part of a master in his profession, there will probably be "more of this later."

When the World's Fair opens in New York, visitors to the exposition may have an opportunity to hear "Tobacco Road" in operatic form. The late George Gershwin, at the time of his death, was laying plans to convert Jack Kirkland's famous stage success of the Georgia share-croppers into a music-drama, just as he did "Porgy," which he transposed into the folk-lore opera of "Porgy and Bess." Since then, other composers have been toying with the idea. Something may come out of all this.

John Barton, veteran actor and uncle of Jim, who plays the role of Jeeter Lester in the return booking of the play at the National Theater next week, is anxious to play Jeeter in the operatic version—when, as and if. He had a deserved reputation as a singer in vaudeville before he deserted the two-a-day—or vice versa—to appear in romantic roles.

It will be pleasant to welcome Norma Talmage and Georgie Jessel back to Washington on Friday, when they open a week of personal appearances on the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater. I have known them both for a good many years now, as the crow flies, and it always is nice to have them around.

In an earlier incarnation, back in the days of the silent pictures, when I was the lowest form of animal life known as a press agent, Norma Talmage was the one screen star we never had to worry about. All you had to do was "hang her name out" and the house was packed.

Young Mr. Jessel, of course, is the fellow against whom we hold the grudge. On his last visit here, some one of the freshmen among the "show people" attempted to introduce us with the query, "Mr. Jessel, have you ever met Mr. Bell?"

The answer was: "Too many times."

And if I don't nush, I'll be going back into the old Gus Edwards days of Georgie Jessel, Eddie Cantor, Georgie Price, "Cuddles" (Lila Lee), and all those other youngsters—not forgetting that columnist who allegedly peeks through keyholes!

GURRAH SHAPIRO'S family is negotiating with Samuel S. Leibowitz for his defense . . . Emil Bayer, whose daughter, Winifred, made the headlines two years ago as a parachute jumper—Bayer had to fight prosecution at the time for permitting the young girl to make the jumps—now is seeking a WPA job . . . The editors of Collier's magazine, who commissioned former Ambassador Dodd to write a series of articles about Germany, rejected the final manuscripts because they weren't hot enough. What Collier's really wanted was Dodd's private diary—which he's saving for his book . . . Dodd's son, William Dodd, jr., now is trying to raise $10,000—for his Congressional campaign.

* * * *

MRS. MEYER DAVIS, who wrote the official theme song for the duPont-Roosevelt wedding, now is writing a new composition for the Anne Clark-John Roosevelt wedding . . . Noel Coward now is with the British fleet in the Mediterranean, allegedly gathering data regarding the sailors' preferences in movies. As a matter of fact, however, these likes have been tabulated for a long time and are unchanging. The sailors' preferences are (1) Ginger Rogers, (2) Popeye, (3) Jessie Matthews . . . Lionel Stander is registered at a hotel here, under the name "George Spelvin" . . . H. M. Alexander's new book about burlesque, "Strip Tease," is sold at Macy's book department in the section marked "Social Sciences."

* * * *

HELEN GOLDEN, who succeeded Sidney Fox in "Having Wonderful Time," and who opened last week in "Escape This Night," not only had a transformation of role—but also a new nose . . . Clifford Odets rushed Luise Rainer, who just arrived from Hollywood, to a retreat in the country . . . Robert Irwin will appear for trial wearing the same white linen suit he wore when he surrendered for the Gedeon murders. The suit, however, is black now, because he's worn it every day during his incarceration at the Tombs.

ALL THE correspondence between Jed Harris, producer of "Our Town," and Frank Craven, star of that show, has been presented to the Yale library. The librarians record it as "How, in the Year 1937, a Manager Engaged an Actor" . . . When Craven became ill recently, the newspapers announced that Harris would substitute for him and play the leading role that day. For some unexplained reason, however, the performance was canceled . . . This is the reason for Jed Harris' sudden decision not to essay playing the role. At the last minute he learned that in the audience, in their official capacity, were two members of the Pulitzer Prize committee.

WOLF BARZELL, who portrayed the role of Abe Tobias, the resort owner, in "Having Wonderful Time," used his salary savings to purchase a summer resort in New Jersey recently . . . Wallace Ford will appear in the movie adaptation of Liam O'Flaherty's "The Patriarch" . . . The French film, "The King," which was withdrawn in England because it appeared there during the abdication period, now has been accepted for presentation in London. The title has been changed to "The King Enjoys Himself" . . . Jack Kennedy, son of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, stated that his two sisters, who sailed to England this week, will be presented at Court.

* * * *

ETHEL DUPONT ROOSEVELT was in "21" with her husband the other night. "Have you met Dr. Dafoe?" she was asked . . . "Oh, no," she replied. "And I hope I don't meet him—professionally, that is" . . . Her husband, Franklin Roosevelt, jr., sat next to Dr. Dafoe at a dinner in Washington recently. The Dionnes' doctor was told that F. D., jr., soon will become a parent, and presented him with an autograph. Above his signature, Dr. Dafoe wrote: "Lots of Luck—but not five!"

FOR THE FIRST time in the history of "Julius Caesar" productions Brutus does not carry a dagger—in the Mercury Theater's production. Orson Welles, who is the "Brutus" in the show, no longer carries weapons onstage—ever since he accidentally stabbed "Caesar" Holland, who still is recuperating at Polyclinic . . . Mrs. Welles, incidentally, will return to the stage in the Mercury's forthcoming "Five Kings" . . . Spencer Tracy, who was to have sailed to Europe last Wednesday, arrived back in New York Saturday—after a 24-hour visit to Chicago—and will make another attempt to sail.

* * * *

EDWARD DARLING, who was chief booker for the Keith-Albee circuit, went to Loew's State Saturday to see his judgment vindicated—after 15 years . . . Darling had booked a young actress into the Palace Theater. After the first show she was summoned to Albee's office and listened to complaints about the kind of songs she was including in her routines . . . The young lady placed her hands upon her hips, and told Albee: "Well, I quit. Vaudeville on Broadway isn't a Sunday school." She stalked out of the Palace and never returned to Broadway's vaudeville until this week. Now she's creating new attendance records here. Her name is Mae West.

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI, the Metropolitan Opera star, has selected "Sweet to Me in This Hour," from "La Forza del Destino," for his broadcast May 8, over Municipal Station WNYC . . . Not that this song is Martinelli's favorite. He selected it, he confides, because the man who will join with him in a duet knows that tune best . . . Martinelli's singing-associate for that broadcast will be Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia.

In Hollywood With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., April 25.—While reading the deposition given by Jackie Coogan's mother, and Leif Erickson and Frances Farmer's new blasts at Hollywood, a telephone call came asking me to speak before 150 graduates of a local high school, most of whom are determined to have a motion picture career.

HEDDA HOPPER.

I won't be able to attend that meeting, but I'd like to tell them some of my feelings on the subject.

Statistics prove—who gives a darn about statistics—that one out of a thousand succeed. What of the other 999? As a rule they have too much pride to go home and admit defeat and failure, or harder still, recognize the fact that they have no talent. Whereas each one of them, when she started, had sweetness, youth, high hopes and ability to attract some decent boy and fulfill the destiny for which we were created—helpmates.

Women have been given everything, even the vote. And what have they done with it? I can hear you say: "You're a good one to talk. Why didn't you take your own advice?"

When I was high school age I was headstrong, stubborn, with four brothers who got everything as their natural right. So before I knew how to walk I took wing, ran away from home—went to New York and got a minor job on the stage. Just as I was getting a toehold in that profession I left it to marry a man five years older than my own father. But had sense enough to know I wanted a son. I had one. He's acted as a balance wheen and has given me something to work for for 23 years. Now he's able to stand on his own two feet, and pretty big ones they are, too! He's able to carry on and has given me a full life. I consider that my only worthwhile achievement. He gave me something to work for and with. Everything else has been incidental.

In looking over this, it fairly reeks with I—I—I. I'm sorry. How else can one talk to you, except through your own experience?

This is such a cockeyed place—standards are so sugar-coated and distorted, it's hard to recognize the truth when you find it.

And Leif Erickson and Frances Farmer! After one success in New York he says: "The only thing I learned in Hollywood was how to ride a horse." Has he forgotten how he got his start? Or shouldn't I ask? Can one forget just by wishing to?

And Frances says: "Acting in Hollywood is too much drudgery. It's the nearest thing to slavery there is." Now where have I heard that line before? And recently, too.

It didn't seem slavery when she was breaking her neck and getting free expert help to land that glorious part in "Come and Get It." After that she became too high-hat to handle.

Frances resented the fact that she was expected to return the greeting of the working people who helped her, when they said, "Good morning, Miss Farmer." But the worst part of it is that when they finish their New York stint, Hollywood will wave banners and give them a royal welcome home. Those are the things that make you cringe within yourself.

DANCING.

Do they say this about you? They will, if you learn to dance from Ethel M. Fistere, former Arthur Murray teacher.

*X WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1938

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There is a growing suspicion that Mr. Tom Yawkey at last is about to reap some dividends from his $4,000,000 investment in his Boston Red Sox. Joe Cronin has managed to put together a line-up of hitters who may begin to give Mr. Yawkey some runs for his money.

POVICH

Not the least of the Red Sox's assets is Cronin's outfield trio of Chapman, Cramer and Vosmik. There are three fellows who are usually found on the All-American League team each July when it takes the field against the National Leaguers on the All-Star game. If they don't constitute the best outfield in the league, then they rate one-two with the Yankees when DiMaggio is in the Yankee lineup.

Anything that escapes the clutches of Cramer and Vosmik is a genuine hit, for each is a speedster and each is capable of spectacular catches. And they constitute the three throwing arms for which base runners must have respect. And Manager Cronin is sacrificing nothing in a hitting way when he maintains them as his outfield.

Both Cronin and Chapman have been busy all spring denying reports from the South that they were having their personal differences. "I don't know where the talk started," said Chapman yesterday. "There never was any trouble between Cronin and myself. Fact is, I'm an easy guy to get along with."

* * * *

Cronin Still Good.

The presence of young Bobby Doerr at second base for the Red Sox is a flattering commentary on Cronin's infield strength. For the man whom Doerr is replacing is Eric McNair, a chap who could step into the infields of at least five other clubs in the league—New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia or Cleveland. Doerr's fielding is such that Cronin believes the Red Sox could carry him if he batted no more than .230, but the rookie has begun to show signs that he can hit.

No unimportant factor in the Red Sox's flying start has been Cronin's personal endeavors at shortstop. The last of the playing managers Cronin gives no evidence that he has slowed and, in fact, has been fielding more steadily and brilliantly than in recent years.

And the Red Sox manager cannot be accused of ducking any issue. He has placed himself squarely on the spot by appointing himself as the clean-up hitter of the Red Sox, despite the presence of Jimmy Foxx in the lineup. Not until he fails to uphold the fourth-place hitting honor will Cronin step down, and thus far there is no evidence that he isn't the best mop-up man on the club.

* * * *

Bucky Crossed Up.

A week ago, Bucky Harris looked upon his Washinton Club as a team that would hit, but was afflicted with doubtful pitching. Now he has discovered the pitching is tolerable enough, but that his team hasn't been hitting.

The Nats' slugging stopped abruptly after they polished off the inferior pitching of the Philadelphia Athletics. And Harris can no longer take refuge in the fact that his club is weak only against left-handed pitching. True enough, Fritz Ostermueller yesterday shut out the Nats with four hits, but up in New York late last week it was Red Ruffing, a right-hander who shut out the Nats with four hits.

The Nats' batting weakness has continued, despite Harris' deep-laid plan of inserting a brigade of right-handed hitters against southpaws, and vice versa. Since the series with the Athletics, the long hits that were supposed to rattle off the Nats' bats haven't been in evidence.

Zeke Bonura has been one of the chief culprits in the skid of the Nats, who have lost three of their last four games. Big Zeke, the hitting sensation of the training season, has collected only 3 blows in his last 22 times at bat. But of more serious import is the slump of Johnny Stone, who has made only 3 hits since the season started.

* * * *

Unless Washington outfielders, who have been getting the call for regular assignments, mend their ways and start hitting the ball, then Goose Goslin is certain to be installed in the Nats' outfield.

The Goose slugged himself high into the favor of Harris the other day in New York with his pinch-hit home run that tied the score, and the 7,000 fans at Griffith Stadium yesterday were being tipped off on what is in Harris' mind when Goslin again was sent into pinch hit—against a southpaw pitcher.

The Nats' manager is now in a mood to give Goslin a regular outfield job and leave him in there against all types of pitching. Which would be all right with the Washington club's customers.

Bucs Rally, Win Seventh In Row, 8-6

Two Four-Run Splurges Top Cubs; Lazzeri Clouts Home Run.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 25.—Exploding two four-run drives from behind, the Pirates defeated the Chicago Cubs today in the first clash of the two clubs this season. The score was 8 to 6, Pie Traynor's club thus recording its seventh straight victory in the new season.

The home team had a two-run deficit when they unleashed a four-run drive in the fifth inning. The Cubs flashed with a four-run offensive in the seventh, when Tony Lazzeri, making his National League debut in Pittsburgh, drove a long homer over the leftfield wall with Augie Galan on the bases, the score tied and two out.

Ten Pirates went to the plate in the fifth and nine more went up in the eighth as they won the ball game. Todd opened with a single and Dickshot, batting for L. Waner, walked with the tying run. P. Waner forced Dickshot, but recruit southpaw Bob Logan let go with a wild pitch that let P. Waner advance and then he walked Rizzo to fill the bases.

Vaughan came through with a single to score two runs, Suhr singled to score another and after Lee had relieved the kid lefthander, Brubaker doubled to score Vaughan with the fourth run.

Manager Pie Traynor engineered a smart play in the seventh when in placing a new battery in action he moved Pitcher Mace Brown into the eighth notch, so that he could start the home half of the inning with Catcher Al Todd leading off, Jim Tobin having batted for Ray Berres in the seventh. Todd, hitting in the ninth spot, started the eighth with a single to make the Traynor strategy look very good.

In starting his first game of the season, in opposition to Clay Bryant, Russell Bauers was off on his control. Brown received credit for the victory. Bryant gave way to Al Epperly in the midst of the Pirates' fifth-inning splurge.

The Cubs were first to score in the see-saw battle. Galan's single in front of O'Dea's double and a two-sacker by Bryant gave the Bruins two runs.

DiMaggio's Pay $25,000

DiMaggio, who had been holding out for $40,000, signed with Yankee Owner Col. Jacob Ruppert before a battery of photographers and newspapermen.

The contract called for a salary of $25,000 and pay will start as soon as Joe plays. Meanwhile, until he is in condition he is being docked $148.81 a day.

After the signing, Joe went to Yankee Stadium and practiced batting. Al Schacht did the pitching. Joe will join the Yankees in Philadelphia tomorrow.

Ruppert said there was no bonus clause in the contract. Asked if the money docked would be refunded later, Ruppert said: "I'm just not thinking about that subject now."

"I want to say that this is the only 1938 contract Joe has signed," Rupert said. "Isn't that right, Joe?" Joe nodded.

Ruppert emphasized the point in denial of published stories that DiMaggio had signed last summer and that his holdout siege and ultimate signing was a publicity stunt.

Diffenbaugh Released for Kenwood Job

Roanoke Club Cancels Contract; Gordon to Succeed Him.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

George Diffenbaugh, professional at the Roanoke (Va.) Golf and Country Club, was released from his one-year contract there last night and will leave within a week for his new post at Kenwood, it was learned from Edwin T. Goodwin, president of the Virginia club.

Diffenbaugh resigned from Indian Spring in March after ten years of service as assistant and then head professional at the club, and signed a year's contract with the Roanoke officials.

His place at Roanoke will be filled by Hugh Gordon, professional at Bretton Woods, N. H., who will take over his new duties tomorrow.

Started D. C. Changes.

Diffenbaugh's resignation was the first in a series that rifled the pro shops of the local clubs.

When Wiffy Cox resigned at Kenwood to step into the Congressional post, vacated by Roland MacKenzie, Diffenbaugh applied for the Kenwood post and was accepted by the board of governors. Then the Roanoke officials, in a statement to the Associated Press, said that Diffenbaugh would serve his contract at the club.

The board at the latter club met yesterday at 5:30 p. m. and decided to release George to enwood, and at the same time appointed Gordon, who had been under consideration for the position for some time.

Glad to Co-operate.

Goodwin said: "We were very glad to work out an agreement with Diffenbaugh and wish him success at the Kenwood Club."

Goodwin said they had received a number of applications, several from Washington professionals but decided on Gordon, who they had in mind before Diffenbaugh was appointed.

The well-liked former Indian Spring pro will arrive at Kenwood by Sunday, and once more take his place among the city's pros, after a month's absence at Roanoke.

P.G.A. Tourney May Go to Chamberlin

The middle-Atlantic P. G. A. championship may be played over the Chamberlin Country Club course, Old Point Comfort, Va., next year for the third consecutive time Host Professional Al Houghton announced yesterday, and it may also receive another $500 boost in the prize money.

The event was for $500 in prizes in '37 and when Leo Walper scored his second victory in two years Sunday he received $300 of a $1,000 purse. The total prize money next year may by $1,500 and should draw the entire personnel of the sectional body.

The Chamberlin Country Club officials were pleased with the event despite the fact that last minute withdrawal cut the field to 21 and left several of the leading players absent, including Wiffy Cox, George Diffenbaugh, Charles Betschler, Frank Invernezzi, Al Jamison and others.

The dates will also be changed. The first tourney was held in August, and last week's April affair also met with a few objections and the Old Point Comfort officials and the pros may reach a happy medium for the event next year.

Walper intends to take a week's vacation at his home in West Virginia and then practice for the National Open and P. G. A. on the local courses.

Cruikshank's defeat was only the second suffered by the Richmonder in Virginia competition. He has won the State Open five times.

The Big Six

By the Associated Press.

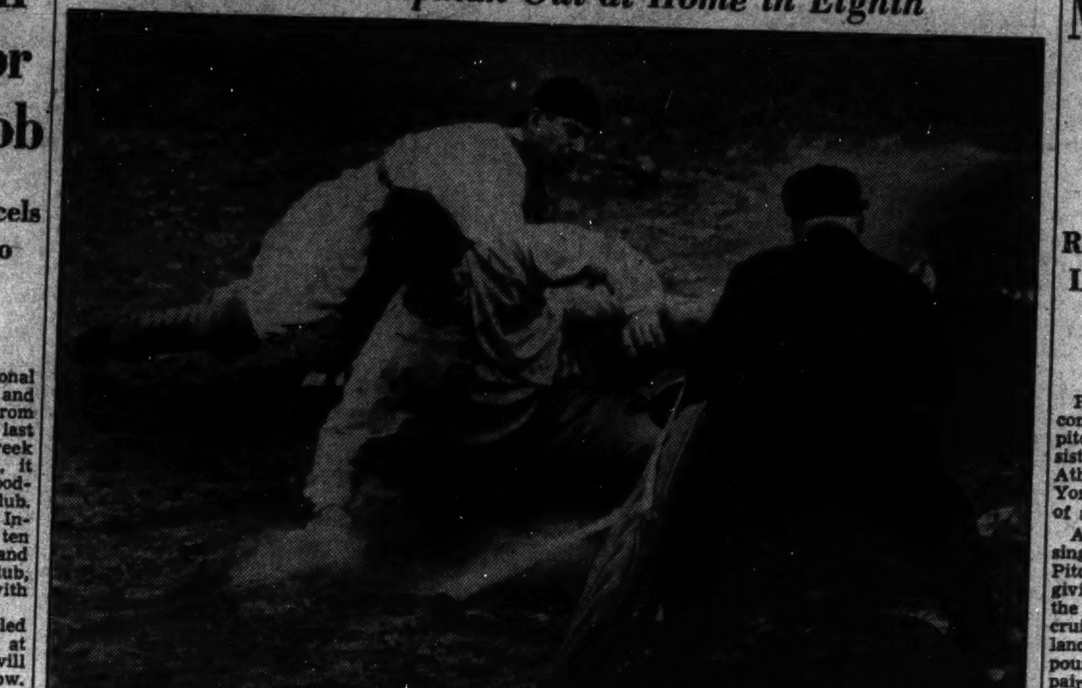

Though he's on the disabled list temporarily, Cookie Lavagetto, third baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is leading the big league batting race by such a margin he still should be on top when he returns to action, probably later this week. The Dodger slugger tops the averages at the end of the first week with a mark of .688.

Two other National Leaguers, Al Todd, of Pittsburgh, and Ernie Lombardi, of Cincinnati are tied for second at .474, while Henry Steinbacher, rookie outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, tops the A. L. list at .444.

Tigers Beat Browns, 10-1

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, April 15.—The Detroit Tigers, in a batting slump since the start of the season, uncorked a mighty attack in the opening game of their series with the Browns here today and won easily, 10 to 1.

The Tigers clubbed three hurlers for 13 hits, two of them home runs, and the last one, by Chet Laabs, came with the bases loaded in the fourth. Vern Kennedy went the distance for Detroit.

If the Browns are superstitious today can be considered an extra bad one. Just a year ago they were at the .500 mark, as they were before today's game, but they lost and never again reached the even-Stephen line.

Big Jim Weaver Is Sold to Reds; Price Is Withheld

St. Louis, April 25 (AP).—Big Jim Weaver, St. Louis Browns pitcher, has been sold to the Cincinnati Reds, the Brown offices' announced tonight. No price was divulged.

Weaver, 6 feet, 6 inches tall and weighing 230 pounds, is noted as one of the tallest pitchers in baseball. He was obtained from Pittsburgh on waivers last winter, the announcement said.

Weaver opposed young Bob Feller last Wednesday in the Browns' second game, allowing nine hits, eight walks and seven runs in seven innings. He also was charged with two wild pitches.

The big pitcher was with the Senators in 1928, the Yankees in 1931, the Browns and Cubs in 1934, prior to going with the Pirates, the announcement added.

Rollie Fined, Sent Home

Playboy Catcher Under Ban by Indians.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 25.—Rollie Hemsley, Cleveland Indians catcher who was suspended indefinitely and fined $250 for celebrating the pitching victory of young Bob Feller over Detroit yesterday, says it's "all right" with him.

"The suspension will give me a chance to rest my hand," he said today. "Catching Bob Feller yesterday has left my mitt sore. I need the rest, anyway."

"I still can't understand it," Hemsley said. "I'll admit I had a couple of drinks last night, but there was nothing wrong with me. I thought it was all right to have a couple of drinks."

Hemsley said he would leave today for Cleveland to confer with officials of the Cleveland ball club unless he could reach C. C. Slapnicka, Cleveland's vice president and general manager, who was reported to be in Detroit.

Hemsley was obviously worried and eager to compose his differences with the club management as he prepared to board a train for Cleveland.

He said Manager Oscar Vitt had never admonished him about drinking, and that Vitt said nothing when he saw him last night leaving a night club in the hotel where the team stopped.

"The first news that I was suspended came when Frank Kohlbecker (traveling secretary of the Indians) met me at the depot from which we were to leave for Chicago," Hemsley continued. "He told me Oscar wanted to see me, so I looked him up. Vitt told me I was suspended, but he didn't appear to be mad. He did not mention a fine."

Hemsley declined to tell newspapermen where he spent the night. Hotel employes said his room was unoccupied last night.

Macks Win 6-1 Victory Over Yanks

Ross Allows Seven Hits; Lodigiani Leads A's Attack With Homer.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 25.—On the combination of Lee Ross' seven-hit pitching and Dario Lodigiani's consistent clouting, the Philadelphia Athletics today routed the New York Yankees, 6 to 1, in the opener of a three-game series.

All of the champions' hits were singles, three, by Flash Gordon, Pitcher Joe Beggs and Red Rolfe, giving the Yanks their lone run in the fifth. Meanwhile Lodigiani, recruit second baseman from Oakland, of the Coast League, was pounding out a home run and a pair of singles in four trips to the plate.

His four-bagger, in the second, put the A's out front and there they stayed. Lodigiani's first single, in the fourth, drove home Hasson, who had doubled, and he scored the final run himself, in the eighth, on a two-bagger by Hayes.

In the seventh, the Athletics got three runs on two singles, a base on balls and an infield out. Mule Haas' smash to left brought in two of the tallies.

Lott Winner After Battle

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 25. (AP).—The veteran George Lott, off his game because of lack of practice, was forced today to call upon his vast experience to escape elimination in the U. S. open tennis tournament by Capt. Val. Yavorsky, Greenbrier tennis professional.

Lott had beaten F. Buck Jones, of Chicago, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, when he met Yavorsky, a former colonel in the Russian Imperial Guard and one time champion of Russia, in the third round.

Yavorsky took the first and fourth sets due to his surprising recoveries but Lott won, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

The defending champion, Karel Kozelyuh, easily took his third round match 6-0, 6-2, 6-2 from Kenneth Napier, of Phoenix, Ariz., who had beaten the Bridgeport, Conn., city champion, Igor Denisoff, 7-5, 6-3, 11-9.

Other scores included:

Bruce Barnes, former Davis Cup seeded second, defeated Karl Bowyer, South Orange, N. J., 6—2, 6—3, 6—4.

Jan Kozeluh, Miami, Fla., defeated F. T. Anderson, New York City, by default.

Phil Greenstein, Cleveland, defeated Bill Kenney Palm Beach, Fla., 6—4, 8—6, 3—6, 4—6, 6—3.

Joe Whalen, New York, eliminated Carl Rohman, U. of Virginia coach, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3.

Richard Skeen, Burbank, Calif., seeded No. 3, eliminated Ed Kenney, Pinehurst, N. C., 6—1, 6—1, 7—5.

Boston Club Attack Led By Chapman

Former Nat Gets 3 Safe Blows; Ostermueller in Rare Form.

By Shirley Povich.

Helpless under the spell of left-handed Fritz Ostermueller's four-hit pitching, the Nats surrendered a 7-0 ball game to the Red Sox yesterday.

Not only that, but the first boos of the 1938 season descended on Griffith Stadium as a generous sprinkling of the 7,000 customers, irked by the futility of the Nats in the late innings, heaped vocal abuse on Rookie George Case.

"Take him out! Boo!" yelled the unforgiving among the fans after Case misjudged a fly ball off Jimmy Foxx's bat that fell for a double and produced two Boston runs in the seventh inning. And in the eighth when the hapless rookie popped up, the tirade began anew with shouts of "We want Almada!"

But the game had been lost long before Case earned the ire of the customers, inasmuch as the Red Sox had a 3-0 lead at the time and with Ostermueller pitching the way he was, one run would have been sufficient.

Nats' Hitters Are Helpless.

In the resumption of the strife between Joe Cronin's Red Sox and his pappy-in-law's Nats, the Washington Club took a thorough beating. Despite Bucky Harris' attempts to balance his batting order by the insertion of three right-handed hitters who had been doing bench duty, the Nats were utterly helpless before Ostermueller.

Al Simmons, Cecil Travis, Ossie Bluege and Buddy Lewis were the only Nats able to solve Ostermueller's delivery for hits and none achieved anything more than a single. In fact, the Nats succeeded in getting only two runners as far as second base.

Ostermueller had a potent and willing ally in the former Nat, Ben Chapman. With obvious glee, Chapman led the Red Sox offensive against Dutch Leonard, who did not pitch a poor game, yet did not pitch a good one. He gave up nine hits and walked four. Chapman whacked out two damaging doubles and a run-producing single in his four trips to the plate.

Joe Cronin began the downfall of the Nats' knuckle-ball artist when he doubled to right in the second inning. In rapid succession came Higgins' single through the box and Chapman's double past Simmons, and the Sox had a 2-0 lead.

Ran the Wrong Way.

They had a 3-0 lead by the end of the third when Higgins, who had walked, scored on Chapman's single and an infield out, and they had a 5-0 lead at the end of the seventh. In that inning, after two were out, Cramer and Vosmik singled and Foxx got a gift double.

It was on that blow by Foxx that young Case blundered, racing back to the fence and turning just in time to discover he had been running in the wrong direction, for the ball was dropping to earth 20 feet away.

Leonard's third pass of the day was translated into another Boston run in the eighth when Chapman followed with a second double to left, and the Sox picked up their last run against Ray Phebus, who started the ninth by walking Cramer. Vosmik bunted a sacrifice and when he knocked down Bluege who covered first on the play, Cramer advanced to third. He scored on Foxx's fly.

The only Nat to reach third base was Ossie Bluege. He got there in the fifth inning on an error and a wild pitch. That was pretty typical of the Nats' batting power yesterday.

DeShong to Face Boston Southpay

James Brooklyn DeShong, who has encountered delay in rounding into pitching form, today will make his first start on the mound for the Nats. He is Bucky Harris' choice to face the Boston Red Sox in the second game of the current series at Griffith Stadium.

DeShong will doubtless be opposed by Archie McKain. Manager Joe Cronin, of the Red Sox, is expected to name McKain in view of the equally lefthanded Fritz Ostermueller's success against the Nats yesterday.

Nats Release Jimmy Wasdell To Indianapolis Under Option

Twenty-one-year-old Jimmy Wasdell, slated for release from the day that Zeke Bonura joined the Nats, parted company with the Washington Club yesterday.

He was sent to the Indianapolis team, of the American Association, under option of recall on 24-hour notice.

Under the terms of the agreement with Indianapolis, Wasdell will be played regularly in the club's outfield, thus ending his career as a first baseman.

Visioning Wasdell's hitting ability as a distinct asset to the Nats if he can acquire polish as an outfielder, Clark Griffith has asked Manager Ray Schalk, of the Indianapolis team, to play the rookie in the sun field.

"With Bonura around here, I didn't have a chance at first base, but with a little experience as an outfielder I think I can be a regular on the Washington Club. I'll be disappointed if they don't call me back by the first of July."

Wasdell was a cocky, confident rookie last March when, after a brilliant season at Chattanooga, he strode into the Nats' Orlando camp and announced his intention of beating out Joe Kuhel for the regular first base job.

He was rapidly supplanting Kuhel in the favor of Manager Bucky Harris when the Nats engineered the trade that brought Bonura to the club. From that date Wasdell turned his ambitions toward the outfield.

Clark Griffith two weeks ago refused to send Wasdell to the Baltimore Club. "I want him in a park where there is plenty of outfield territory for him to roam," said Griffith. "That's the only way he'll learn to play the outfield."

JIMMY WASDELL.

Walter Haight

The parade to the post once was one of the most inspiring sights at a race track—I mean with the exception of seeing one's number put in the winning slot. Time was when the horses were strung out in single file, the jockeys sitting erect and looking straight ahead and the lead pony proudly tossing his head in front of the group. Every jockey seemed to believe that it was a reflection on his profession to be undignified in the parade.

HAIGHT.

But little by little the parade is becoming a scramble. Of course, some unruly horses just won't stay put and the boys have to struggle with them. However, the jockeys who have nothing to do but sit on their horses slump over, adjust their clothing, turn to talk and laugh with the boy behind them or break out of line for breezing even before the parade reaches the judges' stand.

Possibly it is because jockeys are being developed too fast these days. The oldtimers used to have to work around the stables for a couple of years, workout horses for several years for a chance to get a mount in a regular race. One of the apprentices now riding at Havre de Grace never was on a horse's back until a year and a half ago, he confessed. And at times, Blind Tom could guess as much.

I don't want to be accused of trying to bring back the horse and buggy days, but I do believe racing is spoiling part of its show by not making the parade a real parade.

* * * *

Speaking of jockeys, they do not care for the photo finishes. Not that they believe the pictures are unfair as far as picking the winner is concerned, but they do show up a lot of riders. To the ordinary customer, the jockeys look more or less alike. However, there are right and wrong ways to finish on a horse just, as I suppose, there are right and wrong ways for a street car conductor to punch a transfer.

The finish pictures, always taken from the side, outline the jockeys as well as the horses. The boys like to be "on their bellies" at the finish. However, the pictures sometimes show them sitting erect like park policemen or doubled up like hairpins. Now that many of the finish pictures are being published in the papers and projected under the stands, the boys have to stand for a lot of ribbing.

Matthias L. (Uncle Matt) Daiger, secretary and general manager of the Maryland Jockey Club's Pimlico race course, who has been running things there for forty years, is more enthusiastic about this year's renewal of the Preakness than ever before. "It isn't just the Preakness," he said, "but the entire program of racing will attract so many great horses that it will make this the greatest Preakness. In fact, I think Preakness Week will see the finest racing of 1938. Our stake a day program has almost seven hundred nominations and the second week will see the renewals of two stakes each over sixty-five years old and another stake thirty years old."

The Dixie, which is usially run the Saturday before the Preakness, will be run this year on the previous Wednesday enabling people from distant points to witness both races in the space of four days. And sandwiched in between the Dixie and Preakness is the Pimlico Nursery for which over one hundred of the most promising 2-year-olds have been named. The other three stakes that week, the Jennings, the Survivor and the Carroll, will round out what I frankly believe is the most impressive race card ever offered."

* * * *

"And that isn't all that pleases Uncle Matt because he expects to have some peace this year from the customers who usually complain about the Old Hilltop. "It's been taken away and I don't think anyone is happier about it than Matt Daiger," he exclaimed. He is correct for the "hump is gone and fans standing on the grandstand lawn can now follow their choices every foot of the way around the mile oval.

Daiger, who also manages the Timonium Fair, a Maryland Jockey Club property, really puts his heart and soul into a race meeting. Pimlico has always been noted for the high caliber of racing offered there and the plant itself is operated on the same high plane. Uncle Matt, with over 60 years behind him, belies his age. Each day he makes a general inspection tour of the vast racing plant, checking up on the track condition, stables, equipment and personally supervising many of the improvements effected at Pimlico. He believes the removal of the Hilltop will improve the track drainage and, according to horsemen who have been using the track for training, he seems to be right.

Great Battle in Stretch Marks Running of Feature.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 25.—Isolater, the favorite, and Little Shaver, second choice, staged such a pulse-raising struggle to the imaginary wire that the judges were forced to call a dead heat, marking the first time in the present Maryland season that a single winner could not be determined. With Little Shaver on the inside and Isolater on the outside, the pair bounded for the finish at one and the same time. Press box boys who wager on close finishes beat the judges to the draw by calling a "double."

The win pool was divided with Isolater paying $2.60 and Little Shaver $2.90. Oddly, both horses paid more to place than to win. Isolater was $3 for second and Little Shaver $3.30.

A crowd of 8,000 witnessed the dead heat, once as rare as a double knockout but fairly commonplace since the coming of the photo finish. There was much suspense while the judges waited for the picture. When they received it they held it to the light, scanned and rescanned it until many in the crowd guessed the result.

Little Shaver seemed to be due a breathing spell at this stage, but he did not get it. Instead Shelhamer kept driving him along after the speeding High Hedge. In the stretch Little Shaver got to the front of High Hedge as Isolater, who had been on the outside, drove up on the outside. Little Shaver backers who expected the Bomar Stable star to quit were mistaken. Instead, he answered Shelhamer's urging to make a dive for the wire at the same time Isolater bounded up under the direction of Jockey Harry Richards.

$25.50 Shot Wins.

Bit by Bit, running for Col. E. R. Bradley who is campaigning a modest string this year in contrast to his big Maryland division of a few years back, won the fifth race. The $8.10 shot disposed of Lady Elgin, the people's choice, to triumph by a half length. Bay Stout gathered the third money a dozen lengths back of the second horse. Lady Elgin began as if to make a runaway affair of the distance test. However, Bit by Bit moved up steadily and packed the most punch at the end.

Miss Tiptoe, owned by Miss B. J. Christmas, of Upper Marlboro, brought the long shot players a $25.50 mutuel in the sixth race. The daughter of Canter won by three lengths under Apprentice Jockey R. Scott, with Chrysmute second and Galloping, who set the pace, third.

San Antioca, $13.20 shot, took the finale by a length and a half. Midshipman and Departed were second and third.

A Staff Correspondent.

Harve de Grace, Md., April 25.—Sonny Workman, Washington jockey, will ride Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King in the Kentucky Derby if the colt competes in the Blue Grass classic, he said today. The Headley Stable has delayed decision on sending Bourbon King to Louisville because Menow will carry the blue and white colors if he makes as good showing in a Kentucky race on Thursday.

If Menow fails to show any better form than when he was beaten off last week, he will be rested for the Preakness and Bourbon King will be shipped. The latter will compete in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica on Saturday but Workman will not ride in that race. He has been engaged to pilot John A. Manfuso's Aneroid in the $10,000 added Philadelphia Handicap here on that day.

Mrs. Emil Denemark, of Chicago, will be represented in the Derby. Trainer Willie Booth announced today that Blind Eagle would be shipped the end of this week. Blind Eagle finished second to Dauber here last week before being third in the Chesapeake Stakes won by Bourbon King.

X-ray pictures of his stomach taken late today will reveal the extent of injury suffered by Jockey Ralph Eccard in an auto accident early this morning between Baltimore and the track. L. E. Ogle said that Eccard may have internal injuries sufficient to keep him out of the saddle for many months.

Eccard was driving his own car with Harry Hartle, of Hagerstown, riding with him, when he struck a parked car containing Mrs. May Wells, Mrs. Sadie Miller, James Hilton and Morrell Park, all Baltimoreans. The car containing the Baltimore group had stalled and its occupants were waiting to be towed to a garage.

Mrs. Wells was burned to death when a pool of gasoline in which she fell became ignited.

Rock Creek Nine Beats Prince George, 16 to 1

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUDANESE, $4.70, $4.00, $3.30; SHALKO (field), $6.50, $4.60; RAZZLE DAZZLE, $17.60.

SUDANESE, sent up on the inside to take command, drew out gradually and opened a long lead at the rider's will through the stretch. SHALAKO, off slowly and forced very wide while improving position, closed with a rush in the middle of the track. RAZZLE DAZZLE gained steadily, was in tight quarters in midstretch and came gamely when clear.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall for all but IN MEMORY. Won driving; place same. Wen to post at 3:36. Off at 3:43½. Winner, Mrs. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALCONY, $24.30, $7.00, $4.90; MINEY MYERSON, $3.40, $2.60; SHARP THOUGHTS, $19.30.

BALCONY alternated in setting and pressing the pace with BREAD KING and, under pressure, held sway to the end after partially shutting off MINEY MYERSON in the stretch. MINEY MYERSON, forward factor throughout, saved ground at the final bend, moved up menacingly, but tired. SHARP THOUGHTS broke well and came with good speed in the final test.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Conowingo. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but LITTLE SHAVER from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:19. Winners, Little Shaver, Bomar Stable's c. h. (4), by Jean Valjean—Princess Pan. Trained by R. E. Potts, and Isolater, Belair Stud's b. h. (5), by Blandford—Priscilla Carter. Trained by G. Tappan. Value to winners, $425 and $425, third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—†LITTLE SHAVER, $2.90, $3.30, $2.50; †ISOLATER, $2.60, $3.00, $2.30; HIGH HEDGE, $3.00.

LITTLE SHAVER went in the air at the break, recovered quickly to rush up on the inside to press the pace of HIGH HEDGE, was hard handled to take a slight lead in midstretch and weakened slightly approaching the wire. ISOLATER kept on the outside, moved around MOSAWTRE to reach the leaders in the stretch and closed with good energy. HIGH HEDGE, off alertly, saved ground while setting the pace and tired in the closing sixteenth. BOOTLESS came with a rush on the inside in the final test.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-old maiden fillies. Start good for all but MILRAY from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:55. Winner, E. R. Bradley's ch. f. (3), by Boot to Boot—Bit o' Love. Trained by W. Hurley. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIT BY BIT, $8.10, $3.30, $2.80; LADY ELGIN, $2.60, $2.50; BAY STOUT, $4.10.

BIT BY BIT, allowed to settle into stride, improved position gradually on outside, wore down LADY ELGIN in the stretch to win going away. LADY ELGIN shook off PICKLE MOOD to open a long lead, but tired gradually in the final eighth. BAY STOUT closed with good speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Start good from stall. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:26. Off at 5:26½. Winner, Miss B. J. Christmas' ch. m. (5), by Center—Regal. Trained by B. F. Christmas. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAN ANTIOCA, $13.20, $6.70, $5.90; MIDSHIPMAN, $6.00, $5.60; DEPARTED, $7.40.

SAN ANTIOCA, off slowly and saving ground when outran, went to the outside for racing room, gained sharply on the swing to the stretch and opened a lead to win easily. MIDSHIPMAN came with a rush in the final stages. DEPARTED moved up menacingly in the stretch, but hung. ROYAL TREAD stopped.

Royals Beat Orioles, 9-5; Errors Help

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 25.—The Montreal Royals took a 2-to-1 edge in the series with Baltimore's Orioles today, pounding out a 9-5 victory in a loosely played game.

Montreal, outhit, 11 to 9, capitalized on Bird miscues and a big eighth inning to win. Eight hurlers saw action, with Harry Smythe drawing credit for the win and Sid Cohen charged with the loss.

McGowan, Baltimore, and Hooks, Montreal, contributed homers. Seven errors marked the shaky play.

Seabiscuit Okay After Jaunt East

New York, April 25 (AP).—Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit, which meets War Admiral in a $100,000 match race on May 30 at Belmont Park, arrived at the scene of conflict today after a three-and-one-half day trip from the West Coast.

The son of Hard Tack stood the trip fine and appeared in perfect condition as he detrained before about 200 spectators. He was accompanied by his trainer, Tom Smith, and 17 other horses of the stable. Smith said Seabiscuit would not have his opening workout on the Belmont Park for two or three days.

At The Post . . . .

With Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Selections at Havre de Grace.

Three horses are being shipped from New York to this track to run in the $10,000 added Potomac Handicap, closing-day feature on Saturday. They are Tatterdemalion, Cabellero II and Piccolo. Others almost sure of starting in that race are Aneroid, Corinto, Burning Star, Siam and Yellow Tulip. R. L. Perry put in a $1,250 claim for Mrs. E. H. Augustus' gelding, Speak, in the second race. After the race it was discovered that Perry was not eligible to claim. He was disappointed, so Trainer J. P. Jones, acting for the owner, sold Perry the gelding for $1,250. Bing Crosby, one of the West Coast's leading horse enthusiasts, isn't at this track but his voice is here. Half of the records played over the loud-speaker system are Crosby's. Sound swell right after you cash a $5 bet. The trainer of Lucre Lude, a 3-year-old, will check the condition book the next time he enters a horse. Yesterday morning he put his charge in the sixth race instead of the fourth. The company in the sixth was first-class. After discovering his mistake, he went to officials who said they were sorry but nothing could be done about it. Thus Lucre Lude goes in company with Blox, Little Tramp and others. Lucre Lude could fool them all by winning. BILL.

First race—Gay Amazon had all kinds of speed in her debut here last week. This one weakened in the stretch and was bumped in the tangle, that led to a disqualification. I expect this one to improve off that race. Prince Gale turned in a fine effort at Bowie and is due respect. War Moon to show.

Second race—Windsor's Hope has shown me enough speed to warrant a selection in a field of Maryland breds as cheap as this. Red Nose has poor form but begins to figure with this kind. Lernana may be third.

Third race—Happy Code gets that light weight again. Meets better company but ran so well in winning that last that I'm forced to go back. Dog Flower is formidable and dangerous. Jolly Duchess won at the second asking from maidens and should be prominent.

Fourth race—Book Reader was smeared all over the course last out and can run a good race if he gets clear sailing. I'm going to take a shot at him. Miss Oak has had many chances and promises to be close. Hastings View won an untruly run race last out.

Fifth race—Gerald has been working excellently and may find Burning Star needing a race. The first named has the best of the weights. Challephen won a stake at Bowie but picks up a load.

Sixth race—Turkish Brand was shy on racing luck in that recent outing. This one is better than rated and I'm going to try to be in on the good price. Blox and Sickle Lass to complete the money bracket.

Seventh race—Flagstone is as good as those ailing legs. Can carry this weight and may add another purse to his string. Ladino, practically left at the post last out, will do better if away with the field. Longful has worked well and probably needed that last.

Best bet—Turkish Brand.

Jack Stonebreaker, who was dropped from the Maryland football squad a couple years ago because he was playing pro ball on the side, has signed to play baseball with Binghampton of the Eastern League . . . He's an infielder . . . Joe Mellendeck, Georgetown's new shortstop, has the writing wretches a bit bewildered by his play of late . . . Possessor of an exceptionally strong arm and apparently a good hitter, Mellendeck has been essaying a Dr. Jekyl-Mr. Hyde role in the field . . . First he makes a great stop and then a costly eror, as in the Maryland game . . . But in that same game, he previously had brought the crowd to its feet several times with bullet-like pegs from the edge of the outfield.

That pinch homer Goose Goslin swatted against Ruppert's Ruffians Sunday probably prolonged the major league career of one of baseball's greatest "money hitters" . . . For just the day before ugly rumors were prevalent that Goslin, along with Joe Kohlman, was headed for Chattanooga . . . When Pittsburgh's Paul Waner reached his thirty-fifth milestone last week, there was little celebration, for so few seem to realize the true greatness of the colorless little outfielder . . . But this same Waner has the highest lifetime batting average in the National League. He has hit above .300 for 11 consecutive years, leading the league three times; has scored over 2,000 hits and over 1,000 runs and has more doubles, triples and total bases on hits than any player in the senior circuit . . . And what is more he hold a N. L. record for obtaining 200 hits eight different years.

Though Duke University is generally credited with being the best collegiate ivory spot for big league material, North Carolina State actually sends up as many or more top-notch stars . . . Among well-known former Staters in the big time at the present time are Wick Kemper, Yankees; Jackie Wade, Tigers; John Lanning, Bees, and Jimmy Brown, Cardinals . . . Who cares department . . . The average age of the New York Giants Baseball Team is 27½ years . . . The World Champion New York Yankees were last in the American League in double plays last season, making only 134 . . . The oldest active player in the big leagues is Jimmy Dykes, 40, the youngest Bob Feller, 19 . . . Some 30,000 Washington fans were privileged to see the first pitcher to be chased in 1938 . . . It was good, old Harry Kelley . . . Remember?

George "Two-Rights" Llewellyn thoroughly covered the Rapidan last Friday. His report was really rose-colored. Every angler—and there were many—he met had a full creel. The largest fish were native brooks, and almost without exception were taken on worms. Flies and artificial lures worked fine on the stocked fish—in fact it was no trick at all to take them on anything.

ACKERMAN.

From the bridge near the top of the mountain there are "No Fishing" signs for a stretch of 2 miles—until reaching the Shenandoah Recreation Area. There seems to be some question as to the legality of them, for more than one angler fished right through. If you fish this section, you must make your own decision.

According to the size of the creels, there is every reason to believe the story about six tank truckloads being planted in this stream.

White Oak was the only other stream stocked in this county. The famed Robinson River, for some reason or other, was completely overlooked by the fish trucks

The Connecticut State board of fisheries announced yesterday its approval of the proposal for interstate standardization of laws regulating the catching of striped bass. This proposal, advanced by the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission, as well as sportsmen and commercial fishermen, calls for the establishment of a general minimum length of 20 inches for all striped bass taken in the northeastern States.

Already introduced in the New Jersey Legislature, like bills are before, or about to be introduced, in Massachusetts and Rhode Island; all of them based on the findings of Dr. Daniel Merriman, taken over a period of years, and from North Carolina to Maine. He finds, beyond any doubt, that the striped bass do not spawn until they reach a length of at least 20 inches, and recommends that they be protected until they have spawned at least one time.

If Maryland and Virginia length bandwagon" with the other would climb on the "minimum-States, there is little doubt but what the past glories of the stripers would soon again be intriguing the fancies of fishermen all along the North Atlantic Coast.

And above even that, would be laying a foundation on which the commercial men and the sportsman could work in closer harmony. Something they have been unable to do in more than 100 years.

Even though the weather man forecast moderate weather for the North Carolina coast over the week-end, by mid-morning on Saturday the charter boatmen were advising their parties to return home, for the bowling northeaster that was then breaking would prohibit all thoughts of getting outside, and take so much water out of the sounds that it would be impossible for the boats to fish for the striped bass that have been running so good.

George O. Sutton was one of the local anglers who, arriving late Friday night, headed back to Washington before noon. It might be that those anglers who planned to fish the beach were able to get a spot-tail here and there, but it is highly improbable that their catches would run large.

For Bob Grimm, who gave a phone number we have been unable to reach him by, the game warden for Albemarle County is Herbert L. Johnson, and he is to be found in Charlottesville. For nearby Augusta County, H. L. Todd at Staunton and Clem L. Miller at Deerfield. The closeby stocked streams are Crawfords Branch, McComb Creek, Ramseys Draft and the headwaters of the North River, all in Augusta. The Moormans River, in Albemarle—rated as one of the best in the State of Virginia.

The Bimini Bugle, published on the little island in the British West Indies made famous by our big game fishermen, lays claim to being "the world's smallest newspaper." It is odd for that reason, but more extraordinary in that there is not an issue that we have seen but what there was mention of one or more Washington onglers.

Portmarnock Favored In Newmarket Race

London, April 25 (AP).—Sir Humphrey de Trafford's colt, Portmarnock, today was made the favorite for the 2,000 guineas, first of the five British racing classics, to be run Wednesday at Newmarket. A callover at the Victoria Club established odds of 7 to 2 for the 3-year-old.

H. E. Morriss' Pasch was backed at 9 to 2 and the Aga Khan's Mirza II at 15 to 2. Other odds: Scottish Union, 8 to 1; Ramtapa, 100 to 8; Khan Bahadur, 100 to 8; Rafano, 100 to 7; Glen Loan and Pound Foolish, 20 to 1.

The Punch Line...

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Anytime Harry Raskin edges into the sports department, lights up a 5-cent firecracker and plunges fearlessly into the tale of his alleged fight with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien you know you're in for a starmy session. But when Ben I. (get it?) Finkel follows him through the portals, you may as well put the cover on your typewriter, fold your arms and listen, quietly. So we did.

Finkel, incidentally, is no numbskull when the conversation simmers down to fights, fighters and fight folk. He knows all the angles. He may be getting by, for the nonce, on the reputation of his wicked glimmer, but for an impartial and accurate survey of the fight situation, you can trust the "Eye" to give you a report that would make a Roger Babson statistical report look like the wrong answer to a fourth-grade long division problem.

"Ya know," the "Eye" was saying. "The heavweight class isn't what it used to be. Now, you take in the old days, why . . ."

"There he goes again, interposed Raskin, fumigating the place with a couple of deep puffs on his El Ropo. "Expertin' again . . . talkin' about when he . . ."

* * * *

"Pay no attention to him," rejoined the Eye. "It's perfessional jealousy. Anyway, you take the old days when a heavyweight who had a fight coming up would bury himself in the backwoods for a couple of months, then come into town the last week or ten days to polish off his training. There wasn't any of this four-month ballyhoo, with him knocking off three or four set-ups, and issuing statements for the press every time he got a little gas on the stomach."

"Well, whatta you squawkin' about?" broke in Raskin. "You ain't got any heavyweight coming up for a fight. So what's it to you?"

"Pay no attention to him," said the "Eye" with a friendly wink. "He's a little that way from watching that Bob Tow get punched around."

* * * *

"I'm not making any mistake," grinned Finkel. "It's your mistake. Anyway, getting back to this heavyweight class, in the old days they had to fight as often as possible to eat regular, and when it came to training for a big fight they really trained. They didn't issue a lot of statements, and workout once a day in a city gym. You didn't hear a word from 'em for a couple of months. Then, all of a sudden, they'd appear in town and say they thought they'd win, and they were ready for a revolution."

"He's cracked," said Raskin, looking a bit nauseated, but still puffing resolutely on his El Ropo.

"Cracked, eh" said the "Eye." "Well, what do you think of Joe Louis boxing Harry Thomas, Tommy Farr and Nathan Mann, and having 'em all billed as championship bouts? D'ya think he'd have gotten away with that in the old days? Of course not. Then Max Schmeling takes on Ben Foord, Thomas and Steve Dudas. Why? I'll tell you why, because he knew he could beat 'em and beat 'em as easy as he pleased. He didn't want to risk getting himself knocked off.

* * * *

"Why in the old days every time you stepped in the ring you took your life in you. hands. There wasn't any of this picking matches, or fighting under certain conditions. You had to meet all comers, and be in condition for them, or get your ears punched off. Why, this build-up for the Louis-Schmeling fight is the worst thing I ever heard of. Neither one has met a real fighter, and you can mark my words, they won't, either."

"It's still the bunk," said Raskin, a bit wryly.

"Perfessional jelousy," winked the "Eye." "But I'm interested because I've got a young heavyweight I'm gonna bring out in about six months."

"A heavyweight?" repeated Raskin, a trifle amazed.

"Is that United States currency?" asked the "Eye," with undisguised interest.

"It is," said Raskin.

"What are we arguing for, then? Let's you buy me a cup of coffee and forget all this."

And he did—with a couple of doughnuts on the side!

W. & L. Nine And Eastern On Program

Other Diamond Clashes Set This Afternoon on Local Fields.

By Perry Wilkinson.

With a chance to step into a first-place tie in the race for the Interhigh crown, Central High School's baseball nine, which is making its debut in in series play, will hold the scolastic spotlight today when they encounter Roosevelt in the latter's ball yard at 3:30 p. m.

Washington-Lee's scrap with Eastern, to be staged on the Arlington field at 3:30, will demand a little attention. The Little Generals, possessed of one of its greatest clubs, have won seven straight, one being a 10-7 victory over Chief Guyon's charges. But the Chief, after winning two important tilts last week, over Episcopal and Navy Plebes, believes that his boys will even up matters this afternoon.

Other games find Georgetown Prep playing host to Wilson, Western entertaining Montgomery - Blair, Maryland University Frosh meeting Bethesda-Chevy Chase at College Park, and George Washington visiting Fredericksburg, Va., to tussle with the Fredericksburg High team. All games are scheduled for 3:30 except the Bethesda-Maryland Frosh tilt, which gets underway at 4 p. m.

Joe Redmond Out.

The Central-Roosevelt affray, which was considered an easy victory for the Mt. Pleasant squad due to the fact that Coach Jack Ray's twice in practice sessions, takes on charges had defeated the Riders an unpredictable angle by the last-minute information that Joe Redmond, ace defensive first baseman, will be out of today's starting line-up.

Lorenz Zimmerman, rightfielder, will be moved to first base, and Dick Smith, all-high rightfielder a year ago, will leave the catching position to return to his former territory. Kenny Bransdorf, a newcomer, will be sent behind the plate. Even though little Ritchie Rozelle was the hurler to defeat the Riders in the two practice games, Coach Ray has decided to send Dizzy Dezerne to the mound in an effort to cop Central's most important game of the year.

Line-up for Roosevelt.

The rest of the line-up will find Benny Steiner at third base, Jimmy Middleton in centerfield, Pat Hurley on second base, Tony DiBlasi at shortstop, and Jimmy Clark in leftfield. This revised batting order may not prove to be as effective as the one that beat the Naval Training Station nine. 5-4, in the last game of a three-game series played in Norfolk, Va.

Coach Herman Littman will send into action practically the same team that lost to Eastern. They are: Toddy Lagos, second base; Harry Gray, centerfield; John Thrift, leftfield; Billy Robertson, shortstop; Jimmy Robertson, rightfield; Hymie Perlo, catcher; Sylvan Stein, first base, and either Paul Boothe or Jack Lyons, pitcher.

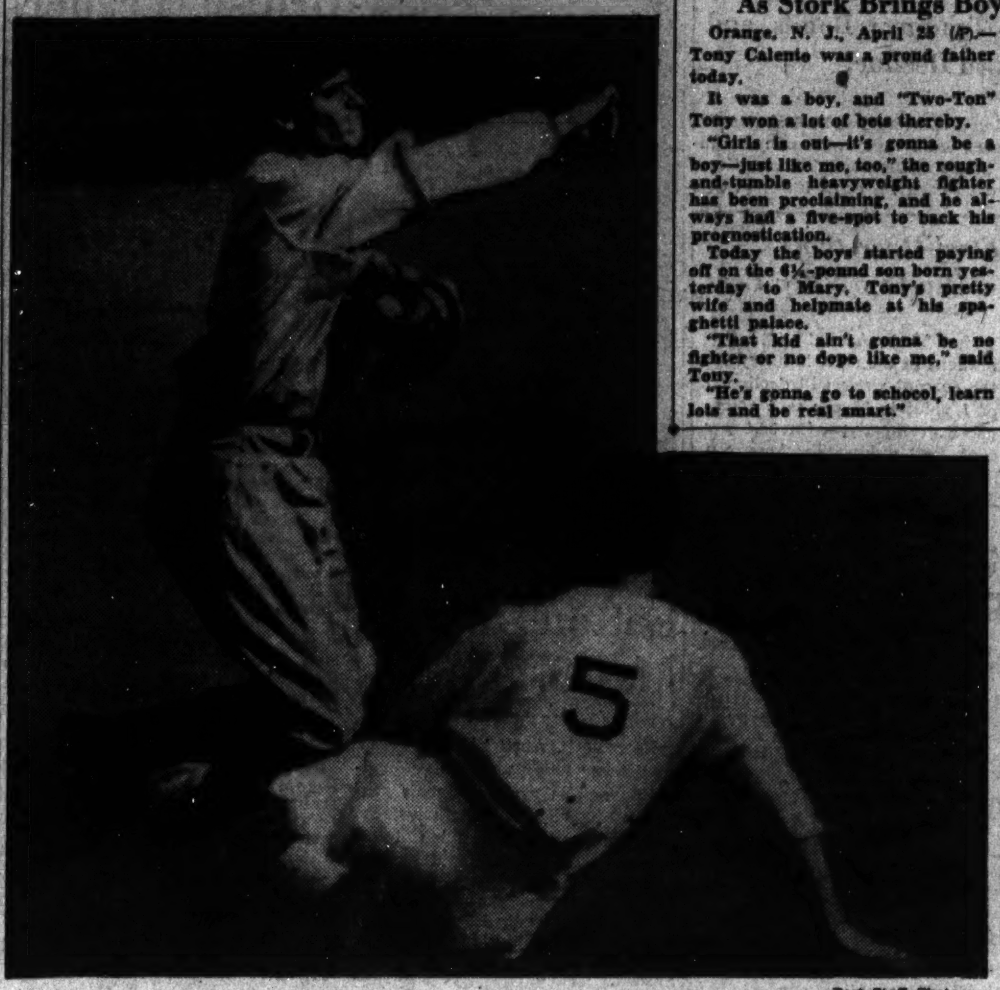

Dixie Pigs Roll 1,770 Set to Top City Pin Event

Four teams shot their way to first place in the Washington City Duckpin Association tournament last night at Convention Hall when the Dixie Pigs, shooting 1,770, the top team set for the evening forged to the front in class B. Harry Wolfe's 144—377 featured for the new leader as Pat's Buffet, also representing the Temple Major League, gained second place with 1,722.

Another Northeast team forged to first place when M. Kidwell's Senators gained the leadership of class A, with 1,732. New leaders came through when Postmasters of the Postoffice League moved to first place in class C with 1,659 and the Cardinals, of the Terminal Ice League, shot 1,623 in class E.

Ernie Hauser, once the United States boys singles champion, gained the class A singles lead with 387. A tie for first place in class E was gained by J. G. Daniel, of the Soil Conservation League with 344.

Tony Galento Wins As Stork Brings Boy

Orange, N. J., April 25 (AP).—Tony Calento was a proud father today.

It was a boy, and "Two-Ton" Tony won a lot of bets thereby.

"Girls is out—it's gonna be a boy—just like me, too," the rough-and-tumble heavyweight fighter has been proclaiming, and he always had a five-spot to back his prognostication.

Today the boys started paying off on the 6¼-pound son born yesterday to Mary, Tony's pretty wife and helpmate at his spaghetti palace.

"That kid ain't gonna be no fighter or no dope like me," said Tony.

Reds Blank Cards, 5 to 0

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, April 25.—Hurling three-hit ball, Paul Derringer inflicted a third successive shutout upon the hapless St. Louis Cardinals today, Cincinnati winning, 5 to 0, to shove Frankie Frisch's men into the National League cellar.

It was the second victory of the season—both for the Reds and for Derringer. Last Thursday the big Kentuckian pitched four-hit ball to down the Cubs, 6 to 2.

Cincinnati got to Bob Weiland for four runs on six hits in the first two frames—including a homer by Kampouris in the second—and were well on the way to other scoring in the third until subdued by little Roy Henshaw, who allowed not a hit and walked but one man through three innings.

Henshaw gave way for a pinch hitter in the sixth, however, and the Reds resumed their bat work at the expense of Bill McGee and the aged Guy Bush. Enos Slaughter, playing the outfield during absence from the line-up of Joe Medwick, got to Derringer for two safeties, the first by any Cardinal, in the fourth and again in the seventh.

Bonura Pewees Win.

The Zeke Bonura Pewees nosed out the Joe DiMaggio nine, 8-6, yesterday on the field at Camp Meigs. Ray West was the winning pitcher but there was one tough lad that he could not seem to get out. That batting demon was Ben Howe, who slapped two home runs for a heavy afternoon's work.

Ross Stops Venner.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 25 (AP).—Barney Ross, the fast-punching welterweight champion, tonight got in six and one-half practice rounds for his title meet with Henry Armstrong next month before he stopped Bobby Venner, the former Hastings, Nebr., "schoolmaster."

Lewis Kayoes Martinez.

Jacobs Tops Mat Program

One of the Jacobs boys, "Man-Mountain," who peddled shirts, hankies and other odds and ends of masculine attire, then turned his hand to wrestling is featured on Thursday night's mat card at the Arena. His opponent is "Chief" Sanooke, an Indian, who, like Topsy, just grew and grew and grew until he tips the beam at a nifty 370 pounds.

Both boys have been here before, although Jacobs is the only one to meet with any success. He clubbed and choked two opponents into submission, incurring the disfavor of a large section of fans, many of whom will be on hand this week hoping to see him get his just deserts.

The 45-minute semi-final, will bring together Dropkick Murphy, who heaved himself to defeat in a match with Jim Londos about a month ago, and "Dutch" Schultz, he of the Satanic appearance. Murphy suffered a couple of cracked ribs in the Londos bout, accidentally diving through hte ropes to the hard, cold concrete floor.

Cardinals Win One, Tie in Doubleheader

In a doubleheader, the Washington Cardinals won one game and tied in a second. They defeated Girardians, 7-4, in the opener and tied Reads Pharmacy, 2-2, in the nightcap.

Linkens, in a relief role, received credit for the victory. In the second contest, M. Booker hurled for the Cardinals, fanning 11 batters, allowing only one hit, a double.

Terp Relay Squad Ready

To Run in Penn Relays; Coach Optimistic.

Distance men who will carry the University of Maryland's banner in the Penn Relays at Philadelphia Friday and Saturday were named last night by Coach Geary Eppley. Three relay squads, a high jumper and high hurdler—nine men in all, will make the trip, and Eppley has high hopes of capturing a trophy or two.

The brunt of the burden will fall on the capable shoulders of three crack milers, Coleman Headley, Jim Kehoe, Mason Chronister, and Frank Cronin, veteran 400-yard hoofer. All will compete in at least two races, and Eppley will juggle his men around to keep his combinations fresh for the three races Maryland has entered.

Friday Al Evans, timber topping specialist, will toe the line for the 400-meters event, and a quartet comprised of Cronin, Headley, Kehoe and Chronister will face a select field in the distance medley relay for the American championship. Cronin will lead off at a quarter-mile, Headley will run the half; Kehoe three-quarters, and Chronister one mile.

Saturday Ed Miller, conference high jumping champion, will enter the lists, and has a man-sized task ahead of him. The 4-mile relay team will go to the post early, and the Terps stand an excellent chance of winning this, which is for the American championship.

The line-up will be the same as in the medley race, with the exception of Joe Peaslee, who lead off in Cronin's place. Peaslee, incidentally, is the slowest of the group, but if he turns in a 4-minute 30-second mile, as he can at his best, the Terps' chances will be exceedingly bright. Eppley looks for a 4:22 effort, at least, from the boys.

Cross, Montanez Draw.

Philadelphia, April 25 (AP).—Tommy Cross, young Philadelphia Negro lightweight, held the top-ranking Pedro Montanez, of New York, to a draw tonight to score a decided upset in their 10-round bout before a crowd of 6,000. Cross weighed 132 and Montanez 137¼.

Arena Signs Jim O'Boyne And Abrams

Middleweights Headline Fight Program Here Next Monday.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

The box-fighting business returned to a near-normal level yesterday, and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn plunged immediately into the task of arranging next Monday's card for the Arena.

With two deep breaths and a dive into his own patented filing system under the shirt counter, Herr Ahearn came up with a George Abrams-Jimmy O'Boyne eight-rounder to feature the show. The Boston Irish lad, managed by Johnny Buckley, who handled Jack Sharkey, was obtained through a long-distance telephone call. Abrams had obligated himself to fight next week the day after winning over Jimmy Jones.

The District Boxing Commission, meanwhile, is awaiting a reply from Bobby Pacho, whom it ordered here for an examination of his cut eye, which prevented him from fulfilling a contract to box Werther Arcelli here last night. Pacho has until tomorrow to report or face a suspension.

Last night's entire supporting card, which was not used, will be held over and another eight-round bout added.

News of Petey Sarron's request for a 10-round bout with Lou Gevinson instead of the expected 15 resulted in a sharp arching of eyebrows along Rue de la Cauliflower, and the boys are wondering why. Certainly Sarron, a good distance runner, doesn't fancy himself a sprinter at his age. The longer he lasts against Gevinson the better his chances of winning, and 10 rounds may find him woefully wanting on the judges' scoresheet at the finish.

From other sources comes word that Sarron's right arm, which he injured while in the process of lifting Freddy Miller's featherweight crown two years ago at the ball park, is causing him trouble, and may be the cause of his delay in signing, and request for a shorter fight. Sarron, who threw his right shoulder out of place against Miller, is contemplating undergoing an operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, but is undecided about the date.

It's not serious enough to affect his fighting Gevinson or anybody else. He finished the Miller fight with it, campaigned a year in South Africa and finally fought Henry Armstrong with it. But it's still annoying and Petey wants to have it mended for once and for all.

Keefer Cup Event Draws 145 Entries

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

One of the largest fields in years has entered the Mrs. Frank Royer, 145, Keefer Cup Tournament, scheduled tomorrow and Thursday at Chevy Chase over the 36-hole route for the trophy donated by the former three-time president of the Women's District Golf Association.

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, defending champion from Indian Spring, who used this event last year to score her first important links victory, has entered and will play with Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Charlotte Stern, clubmates.

Other leading pairings find Helen Dettweiler, recent winner of the Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial event, playing with Mrs. Landra B. Platt and Mrs. Bishop Hill, of the host club, and Marion Brown, Washington Post champion, playing with Janice Loeb, of Woodmont.

Mrs. Keefer will start the play, at 8:15 p. m. with Mrs. Harrison Brand and Mrs. E. M. Shinkle, all of Chevy Chase.

The final 18 holes of the 36-hole event, one of the most popular on the entire card of the association, will be played, starting Thursday morning, with the low net winner receiving the Keefer Cup. Low gross and several other low net prizes will be awarded.

Pairings and starting times for Wednesday's play:

Woodmont Golfers' Schedule Completed

Woodmont Country Club golfers will officially open their 1938 season next Sunday with a get-together Dutch breakfast at 8:30 a. m. to be followed by an 18-hole medal handicap Scotch foursome event, with selective handicaps.

The latter will find the two partners playing one ball, with alternating shots after selective drives. One-half of the total handicaps will be allowed. Three low net and as many low gross prizes will be awarded.

Other events carded for the Woodmont golfers are handicap tournaments every week-end and on holidays, with the players divided into three classes. A golf team will be selected by June 12 from the players with handicaps of 15 and under, for a series of inter-club matches. Three have already been arranged, with Lakeside of Richmond at Woodmont June 19, Suburban of Baltimore June 26 in the latter city and Woodholme Club over the latter's course, September 11.

Other announcements by the golf committee included junior handicap events during May and June with a championship event in June. The tourneys will be open to juniors from 13 to 21 years of age.

The qualifying round for the club handicap championship will be played May 22, with match play at 18 holes. Several mixed Scotch foursomes are also on the schedule.

The golf committee at the Bethesda club is again headed by Leopold V. Freudberg, with other members including Alfred Bennett, Fulton M. Brylawski, Mak J. Fisher, Stanley Glaser, Dr. Milton Harris Theodore D. Peyser, Herbert M. Sauber, Albert E. Steinem and Louise G. Baum, of the ladies' golf committee.

Greenskeepers.

The May meeting of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Greenskeepers is carded May 2 at Columbia, with the golfers competing for the Dr. John Montieth Trophy. Principal speakers will be Mr. Hollander and Mr. Weber.

Georgetown Golfers.

Georgetown University's golfers will make their second start of the season today, opposing the St. Joseph's College team of Philadelphia. With a 6—0 victory over Cornell under their belt, the four local boys, Maury Nee, Billy Dettweiler, Billy Shea and Harvey Johnson, aided by Johnny Burke and Charles Pettijohn, should have little trouble making it two straight.

Wheat Drops With Outlook For Big Crops

Downward Stock Trend and Scant Exports Help 1⅝ Cents Decline.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 25.—Auspicious conditions for both domestic winter and spring crops facilitated 1⅝ cents a bushel tumble of Chicago wheat prices today. Contributing was a downward trend of other commodities and of the stock market, together with scantiness of export demand. Overseas takings from North America totaled only 200,000 bushels, all Canadian.

Something of an offset were Texas reports of black rust and of muggy weather likely to accelerate development. The infestation was asserted to be dangerous enough to do major damage farther north if a wide spread of spores ensued.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 cent to 1⅝ under Saturday's finish, May, 82⅛@82¼; July, 80⅜@80¾; corn, ⅛@½ down; May, 58⅞@59; July, 60½@60⅝; oats unchanged to ¼ off; rye showing ⅜@1¼ setback, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents lower.

Allied Chemical Gross 25% Under Year Ago

New York, April 25 (AP).—Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation's first quarter gross business was 25 to 30 per cent lower than the same period last year, H. F. Atherton, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today. The company is one of the largest producers of industrial chemicals. Earnings during the quarter were "substantial," Atherton added, but were short of the $1.50 a share dividend paid on th. common stock.

Expenditures for plant improvement and extensions last year totaled $10,900,000, it was reported at the meeting. No important expansion plans are pending for this year.

Sears, Roebuck Sales.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. sales during four weeks ended April 23 were estimated today at 8 to 9 per cent under those for the same period a year ago by Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman, at the annual stockholders meeting. The greater decline, he said, has been in the company's retail stores, where it is about 3 to 4 per cent more than in the mail order stores.

Douglas Urges SEC Regulation Of Trust Notes

By the Associated Press.

Chairman William O. Douglas, of the Securities Commission, told a House Interstate Commerce subcommittee yesterday Congress should enact legislation to permit the Commission to regulate trust indentures.

Testifying in support of such a measure, Douglas said the interests of these security holders have not been protected as they should be.

He said SEC supervision of indentures probably would interfere with the right of private contract, but that the Commission believed the interference would be constitutional in view of the public interest.

An assistant to Douglas said $40,000,000,000 of trust indentures are outstanding. The volume was increased by $2,500,000,000 in the 12-month period ending April 1.

In a statement submitted for the committee record, Douglas said there was nothing in the proposed legislation on regulation of trust indentures which would allow the Securities Commission t. dictate business features of security issues.

"Such matters as the wisdom of the issue, the amount of security to be given, the offering price, interest rate, maturity date, and sinking fund provisions, remain the subject of private negotiation," he said.

"The commission is very much alive to the importance of not interfering with the flotation of legitimate securities," Douglas said.

Under the bill, machinery for qualification of the indenture, he added, has been "carefully geared into the registration machinery of the securities act in order to avoid expense and delay."

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Weaken in Dull Trading; Bonds and Commodities Also Decline.

New York, April 25.—On a sales volume of around 400,000 shares the stock market drifted lower. Bonds also were dull and some irregularity crept into the prices for United States Government issues. Commodities also were unsettled. May wheat closed 1⅛ cents lower at 82¼ cents a bushel.

Stock prices were lower from the start, but so few changed hands that prices didn't mean much. If dullness were an indication of discouragement, prices held remarkably well. Actually there is a growing feeling that the next broad movement "ought" to be forward, and that is keeping speculators wary of taking the selling side. Steel drifted along a point or so below its previous closing price, and many of the leading issues held to a fractional range. No sales in Telephone were reported for an hour or two after the opening.

General Motors, duPont, Standard Oil, Union Carbide and Montgomery Ward ranged more than a point lower at their worst. Consolidated Edison lost Saturday's gain of a point before recovering a little. Case gave up 4 points. Both classes of Rayonier were unusually active in declining. Cerro de Pasco softened more than 2 points. Loft made a new high on smaller volume. Woolworth fell more than a point on light offerings. Homestake rose a point or so, but other gold shares lost ground. Among the few stocks to recover fractions in the final hour were Steel, Chrysler, duPont, Edison and Douglas Aircraft.

Debt as an Asset.

Having spent the week-end in contemplation of the future as changed or left undisturbed by the latest information on business prospects and of the compromise on the tax bill, the stock market followers found little to increase their bearishness and virtually nothing to make them feel more optimistic on the immediate outlook. The new tax bill, softening somewhat the capital gains tax and taking most of the bite out of the undistributed profits tax, would have been favorably received two or three years ago.

Today, with full realization by everybody but the politicians, who think they must appear to be infallible on every subject under the sun, that the profits tax has worked undiluted damage to business, only full repeal would have been satisfactory. Some hope that outright repeal could be had was held out to the markets by the leading Senate group, but once more it has been demonstrated that when the skipper bellows at the crew they jump to work and forget their ideas of grandeur about which they had talked in the fo'c'sle.

Profits Tax.

Actually business may be better with the profits tax as now agreed upon than it was with the old heavy penalty, but that little item of confidence, which business has so sorely lacked, will not be gained so long as Congress must still give up its ideas of real help merely to save the President's face. Meanwhile, the Administration has given another hint of how it intends to answer further embarrassing questions on how to shake off the depression swarm should conditions fail to improve. The Treasury has gone to the trouble of publishing a list of "assets" upon which it could draw to secure $10,500,000,000.

That list of assets is another bit of economic fantasy and hocus-pocus designed to fool the public. The assets consist simply of various means of inflating currency and credit.

Steel Operations Dip to 32 Per Cent

New York, April 25 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will decline .4 of 1 point to 32 per cent of capacity, compared with 32.4 per cent last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today. A month ago operations were at the rate of 35.7 per cent of capacity, while a year ago they were 92.3 per cent.

Cons. Edison Increases Net

New York, April 25 (AP).—Consolidated Edison Co., of New York, and subsidiaries, suppliers of electricity, gas and heat in the metropolitan area, today reported a net income for the first quarter slightly above that for the first quarter of 1937.

The 1938 quarter figure was $15,417,643 or $1.10 a share against $14,443,355 or $1.05 for the 1937 quarter.

North American Co.

The North American Co., big utility holding concern, of which the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Capital Transit Co. of Washington are units, earned $17,014,664, after Federal income taxes, interest, amoritization, depreciation, preferred dividends of subsidiaries, and surtax, or $1.77 a share, for 12 months ended March 31, 1938.

This compares, President J. F. Fogarty told stockholders at the annual meeting today, with $18,061,212, or $1.89 per share for the preceding 12 months' period. Fogarty said that the company did not intend to apply for an RFC loan. He believes, he said, that the problem of the utilities is not met by Government loans, but would be by relief from conditions to enable them to borrow their own equity money.

Failures Decline.

New York, April 25 (AP).—Business failures in the United States for the week ended April 21 totaled 226, the lowest number for any week thus far in the year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. In the preceding week they were 278 and a year ago 191.

British Visitor

Cotton Lower; May 8.79 Cents

New York, April 25 (AP).—Cotton was lower today under May liquidation and in sympathy with generally heavier outside markets. July recovered from an initial low of 8.85 to 8.92 and closed at 8.87, with final prices 9 to 11 points net lower.

The market opened 9 to 11 points lower influenced by lower foreign markets, and under selling from abroad. Trade buying absorbed May offerings in advance of first notice day tomorrow. Selling orders otherwise were balanced by scattered local, New Orleans and commission house buying and prices rallied partially.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was easier today under scattered liquidation and selling by commission houses and Southern interests. Final prices were 7 to 10 points net lower, with sales of 63 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; May close, 8.37; July, 8.30; September, 8.35; October, 8.24; December, 8.21.

Cotton Belt Omits Interest for May

St. Louis, April 25 (AP).—United States District Judge Charles B. Davis today authorized Berryman Henwood, trustee of the St. Louis-Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad, to omit payment of $400,000 interest due May 1 on $20,000,000 of the company's first mortgage bonds.

In his application for this authority, the trustee cited declining revenue of the railroad and said that for the first week of April it was 29 per cent below that of the corresponding week last year and 26 per cent less in the second week than last year.

U. S. Building Group to Hear British Leader

Sir Harold Bellman to Speak at Large Dinner Thursday Night.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

"The Housing Question—Public and Private—and General Position and Participation in the British Situation Today," will be the subject of an address by Sir Harold Bellman, internationally known building society executive, and manager-director of London's large building society, the $250,000,000 Abbey Road, who will be guest of honor and principal speaker at a banquet of the United States Building and Loan League at the Mayflower Hotel Thursday night.

The banquet, which is expected to have an attendance of from 500 to 700 savings, building and loan executives from the District of Columbia and the entire country, will be presided over by Edward C. Baltz, secretary of the Perpetual Building Association of this city, and president of the United States League. The British building societies have their counterparts in the savings, building and loan associations of the United States and have played the principal part in the building revival in the United Kingdom.

Besides the banquet address, Sir Harold will speak before two other groups in Washington this week. He is scheduled to address the Southeastern conference of savings, building and loan associations at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow on "Building Societies' Position and Operating Policy," and the graduate school of American University Thursday afternoon on "Recent Economic Developments in England."

Frequently serving in advisory capacities to the British government on problems of housing, building material costs and unemployment, the English visitor has presented the economics of the building society business and its relations to the general economic situation in several widely read books. He has been twice chosen to head international congresses of building societies as well as serving several years as chairman of the national organization of these institutions in Great Britain. He is a member of the Order of the British Empire and was knighted in 1932.

Building Advance.

Washington metropolitan area was included in the March building advance recorded for the larger part of the country. This was shown in the monthly summary prepared by H. A. Johns, local manager of the Dodge reports division of F. W. Dodge Corporation.

U. S. Building Group to Hear British Leader

All of the Washington area contracts awarded in March moved to a level of $6,355,000. This includes a gain of 68 per cent over the February awards of $3,799,000. An average building gain of 91 per cent was found in the 37 eastern States by the Dodge news staff.

Privately financed local contracts accounted for $5,326,000 of the March total, this being ahead of the February figure, $3,080,000. The local gain in privately financed work, 73 per cent, followed the average gain of 95 per cent in the 37 Eastern States.

An average increase of 85 per cent in building to be financed from public funds was followed in Washington. Here the gain amounted to 43 per cent, March contracts aggregating $1,029,000. In February, public contracts were valued at $719,000.

Residential work in the local area moved ahead of February. March contracts reached the $4,149,000-mark in a 69 per cent gain over February's $2,445,000. This compares very well with the average gain of 98 per cent recorded for the eastern States.

There was good activity in the non-residential building classification during March. Contracts were valued at $1,669,000, a rise of 84 per cent over February. This gain was in line with the average of 81 per cent in the eastern States.

Territory covered in the Dodge summary of Washington activities includes the District of Columbia, Arlington and Fairfax counties, Va. In the heavy engineering field, March contracts, to be financed from public funds or by the utilities, amounted to $537,000, a gain of 20 per cent over $448,000 reported in February.

Douglas to National Life Board.

Lewis Williams Douglas, former director of the budget of the United States and, at the present time, principal and vice chancelor of McGill University, has been elected as director to fill a vacancy on the board of directors of the National Life Insurance Co., left by the death of Charles P. Smith, of Burlington.

He represented the State of Arizona in the Seventieth and Seventy-third Congresses, being a member of the House of Representatives at the same time that Elbert S. Brigham, now president of the National Life Insurance Co., was a representative from Vermont. Mr. Douglas resigned from Congress March 4, 1933, to become director of the Bureau of the Budget, but left that post August 31, 1934. He has been a trustee of Amherst College since 1935. After resigning as director of the Bureau of the Budget he has been a vice president and member of the American Cyanimid Co.

In addition to President Brigham, his colleagues on the National's board are: Fred A. Howland, chairman; Charles W. Gammons, Osman D. Clark, Frank C. Partridge, John M. Thomas, Edward S. French, Hall Park McCullough, Ernest M. Hopkins, George H. V. Allen and Ralph E. Flanders.

A. I. B. Nominations.

Nomination of candidates for officers and governors of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, for the year 1938-39, will be held in the chapter rooms, Thursday, at 8 p. m. At this meeting, delegates to the annual institute convention, June 6 to 10, in Louisville, Ky., will be elected.

Insurance Booklet.

"At last an insurance company has produced a booklet which will enable the property owner to learn a few facts about insurance without having to take an extension course at one of the university," the America Fore Insurance and Indemnity Group, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, reports.

The companies of the group, consisting of the Continental Insurance Co., the Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, and five other associated ones, have produced a booklet which, it is stated, should be the answer to the query of the uninitiated citizen, for something which would give him briefly, a picture of all the various types of property, accident and liability insurance.

Restaurant Advertising.

A heavy volume of newspaper advertising will be done by the restauranteurs of America during National Restaurant Week, to be observed by 50,000 of them from May 2 to 8, inclusive. By way of stimulating such advertising, the National Restaurant Association has issued an appeal to its members and launched a contest which provides two silver trophies for the best newspaper ads run during that week. Prominent advertising managers and artists will serve as the committee of judges.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 25.—Pending the presentation of the government's budget, which will take place Tuesday, the stock market was extremely quiet and prices were mixed. Steel shares sold slightly higher, while liquors and tobaccos were in supply. British funds, industrials oils and mining issues sold fractionally down. Foreign bonds weakened further, although transatlantic securities and home rails held firm.

Paris.—Industrial securities closed firm in an otherwise irregular stock market. Government bonds and banking shares moved upward, rentes gaining 80 to 125 centimes, and Bank of France issue was 265 francs higher. Suez Canal was weak and declined about 300 francs. Substantial gains were recorded in the industrial groups.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures eased in the late trading on reports of light rains in Australia and cheaper Canadian shippers' offers. Final prices were off ⅜d to ⅝d net. Reactions of 3 to 6 points were registered in cotton futures today on selling from Bombay and scattered liquidation.

Curb Prices Decline With Light Trading

New York, April 25 (AP).—Curb stocks closed lower in quiet dealings today. Only 86,000 shares were traded, the smallest full-day volumn since March 10, and compared with 181,000 last Friday.

Losses generally were small, ranging from fractions to 1 or more, but mark-downs were widespread. Utilities as group sold lower. Down were Cities Service at 1⅛, Electric Bond & Share, 7; Niagara Hudson Power, 7; American Gas & Electric, 25⅛, and Arkansas Natural "A," 3⅛. Sherwin Williams lost 1⅜ at 93⅜ and Pittsburgh Plate Glass 1 at 74.

Loans to Business Continue Decline

By the Associated Press.

Business loans of banks took another sharp tumble last week, the Federal Reserve Board reported today. Banks in 101 leading cities reduced their loans for commercial, industrial and agricultural purposes by $38,000,000 to $4,208,000,000. New York City banks alone accounted for $12,000,000 of the decline. About $10,000,000 of the drop was attributed to banks in the Chicago district.

Taking advantage of the decrease in reserve requirements, the reporting banks showed an increase of $17,000,000 in their holdings of direct Federal securities and of $8,000,000 in securities guaranteed by the Treasury.

Maj. Gen. Swift, Military Writer, Dies Here at 84

Essayist on Army Subjects Headed A. E. F. in Italy in World War.

Maj. Gen. Eben Swift, 84, United States Army, retired, died yesterday at Stoneleigh Court. He was noted as a writer on military subjects as well as a leader of United States Forces in Italy in the World War.

A native of Texas, he was graduated from West Point in 1876 and commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry.

During the Spanish-American War he served in Cuba with the Fourth Illinois Infantry and after the conflict was on duty in Puerto Rico.

Upon his return to the United States in 1903, he was on duty here in the Office of the Adjutant General and later served as assistant commandant of the Infantry-Cavalry School and of the Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Tex.

Gen. Swift is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Katherine McKinney, Elizabeth, N. J., and Mrs. Evans H. Humphreys, Manila, Philippine Islands, and two sons, Col. Eben Swift, jr., 820 Connecticut avenue northwest and Col. Innis P. Swift, Fort Bliss, Tex.

Funeral services will be held in Arlington Cemetery at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

A.F.L. Considers Fight With C.I.O. In Soft-Coal Field

By the Associated Press.

The A. F. of L. Executive Council will consider today whether it should carry its fight against the C. I. O. into John L. Lewis' own back yard, the soft coal fields.

President William Green said last night the council had arranged to see Joseph Ozanic, president of the Progressive Miners of America, at tomorrow's meeting.

The Progressives, an A. F. of L. affiliate, are now limited by their charter to Illinois, where their fight with Lewis' United Mine Workers has been accompanied by bombings, bloodshed and rioting.

A. F. of L. leaders are talking of extending the Progressives' jurisdiction to cover all other coal fields.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, April 11, 1938. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia in the matter of closing Lincoln road northeast and providing for certain street dedications in connection therewith, in the northeast section, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closing, and that the same is in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order: "Ordered: That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, Lincoln road between Franklin street and Michigan avenue northeast, as shown on plat filed in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, numbered as Map No. 2075, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after May 10, 1938, the title to the land comprised within the lines of said road so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; and in connection therewith a dedication is provided on said plat for the extension and widening of Franklin street and for the widening of Fourth street and Harewood road south of and adjacent to Michigan avenue northeast." Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closing of Lincoln road in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on May 10, 1938, as aforesaid, and said road between the limits referred to shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act. Bob Burns Says—

Now that it's so easy to travel, I don't see why in the world they don't establish some universal system of measurement so a fella can tell distances. In foreign countries, they tell you in kilometers. Over here on land, it's miles, but when you travel on the ocean, it's knots.

A fella was traveling through the mountains down home one day and he ran across my uncle and says, "I been tryin' to find out how far it is to Mulberry."

My uncle says "Well, brother, I suppose I'm the only man around here that can give you the exact distance." He says "It's right over that hill ahead of you, about two whoops, a holler and a hound's bay."

Movie Experts See Hatching Of Egg in Film

Engineers' Society Holding Three-Day Convention in D. C.

Took 2,000 Eggs to Make.

For the finale an egg actually hatches before the camera lens.

The film, which was three months and 2,000 eggs in the making, was explained by one of its producers, E. S. Phillips, of Cornell. Concluding his demonstration with general remarks on the future of colored motion pictures dealing with biological subjects, Phillips said, "The latent possibilities for similar projects are absolutely indefinite."

Earlier in the day delegates heard a report prepared by W. H. Bahler, an American employed in Osaka, Japan, by a photographic concern, describing the impact of the Chinese war on the Japanese film industry.

Newsreel theaters have sprung up overnight in Nipponese cities since the outbreak of the conflict with China, Bahler reported, but the operators, wonder what will become of their theaters when the war is over.

Noting a steady increase in imports of European movies, as compared with Hollywood productions, Bahler stated that "pictures produced under the social and political restraint peculiar to European countries are much more likely to find favor in the eyes of the Japanes censor."

A. A. Mercey Speaks.

In many rural theaters, he wrote, the "benshi," or narrator, still explains to the audience the action of silent pictures.

Addressing the luncheon meeting of the society, Secretary of Commerce Roper stressed the importance of American films sent abroad, not only as sources of profit to the producer but as a reflection of "the standard of living and the ideals of our people, their manner of life and their environment."

At another session, A. A. Mercey, of Washington, described the eight-week course on "Documentary Films Today" offered at the American University School of Public Affairs.

2 Smash Window Of Jewelers, Flee

Two white men last night smashed a show window in the jewelry store of Shah & Shah, 921 F street, and fled, leaving hundreds of dollars worth of jewelry scattered on the sidewalk. It could not be determined immediately how much merchandise was missing.

Police found the broken butt of a toy pistol lying inside the window and obtained a description of the men. A police detail watched the store during one night last week on a tip later determined to be false.

Last night's robbery was the third in two days in the neighborhood. A man was arrested after an alarm was sounded at 1018 F street northwest Sunday night and Castleberg's, 1004 F street northwest, was ransacked over the week-end.

Gen. Pershing Here for Rest

Underwood & Underwood.

Gen. John J. Pershing, who triumphed in a fight with death several weeks ago, is shown as he arrived last night to enter Walter Reed Hospital for a rest and "check-up." With Pershing is Gen. Merritt T. Ireland, former surgeon general. Accompanied by his sister, Miss May Pershing, he came from New York, where he attended the wedding of his son.

Judge Aids Cupid, Telling Man How To Get Wife Back

Judge John P. (Cupid) McMahon, speaking with solemnity befitting his judicial robe and his Police Court bench, yesterday delivered some advice to a love-lorn husband and then released him on condition that he follow it.

Recipient of the advice was Maurice Farrington, 1368 C street southeast, who had pleaded not guilty to uttering threats against his wife, Ruth Farrington, 233 Kentucky avenue southeast. The two have been separated for some time.

In giving his decision, Judge McMahon declared he was satisfied Farrington had threatened his wife with the motive of persuading her to return to him.

"Now, in affairs of the heart, men are apt to act strangely," the judge said. "I believe you are going about this in the wrong way. You can't get your wife to come back by following her about and molesting her. The best thing for you to do is to act in such a way as to revive the old appeal."

Farrington nodded his head in agreement and gave his personal bond not to repeat the offense.

Boys Club to Pick Contest Debater

One member of the Boys Club of Washington will be chosen, at a preliminary contest at the new Southeast building, Seventeenth street and Massachusetts avenue southeast, tomorrow at 8 p. m., to represent the Capital in the regional oratorical contest of the Optimist Club against speakers from Norfolk, Baltimore, Richmond and Petersburg May 7 at Virginia Beach.

Entrants in tomorrow's contest are Bolling Ball, Glaston Hathaway and Jack Johnson, of the central branch; Thomas Embrey, of the Northeast branch, and Emanuel Silverman, of the Southeast branch. Judges will be J. O. Martin, of the C. & P. Telephone Co.; Lawrence Gichner, of the Junior Board of Commerce; Richard Dean, chairman of the boys' work committee of the Optimist Club of Washington; Charles Lister, head of the National Rifle Association, and Harry Barker, attorney.

House Speeds Bill to Clarify Ship Subsidies

By the Associated Press

Representative Bland (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said yesterday he hoped to obtain House consideration early next week of his committee's bill designed to clarify and liberalize the 1936 merchant marine act.

The measure incorporates several of the suggestions made by the Maritime Commission in its "economic survey of the American merchant marine" submitted to Congress last fall, as well as some others not originating with the commission.

The bill was given right of way in the House yesterday by the Rules Committee, which fixes the legislative program, but no definite time was set for calling up the bill.

Among commission proposals omitted from the bill were those providing for training of seamen, for a mediation board, for construction of ships abroad under certain circumstances, for operating and construction subsidies for trans-oceanic aviation, and for removal of limitation on salaries.

D.C. Scandinavians Hold Spring Party

The Scandinavian Mission of Washington held its nineteenth annual Spring Festival at the Parish Hall of the First Baptist Church, last night.

The function was for benefit of the Swedish Childrens' Home at New Britain, Conn. The home superintendent, Dr. J. E. Klingsburg, described work of the institution.

Religious work among local Scandinavians had its inception in 1919, when a reception was given a group of Swedish delegates to the International Labor Convention.

Dr. Knute E. Carlson is present minister. The Swedish language is used at all gatherings of the group, with exception of the Annual Spring and Fall Festivals when English is spoken.

C. A. R. to Seek $50,000 to Pay For D.C. Offices

Two-Story Headquarters Near Constitution Hall Proposed.

The Children of the American Revolution concluded their forty-third annual convention here yesterday with the decision to raise $50,000 in the next two years to build their national headquarters here.

About $9,000 has been contributed, according to Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, of Washington, national organizing secretary of the society.

The two-story limestone building will be near Constitution Hall and will have classical lines, to conform with the existing D. A. R. group.

As a tribute to the late Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, the C. A. R. voted yesterday to abolish the office of national vice president, presiding, which Mrs. Howard occupied for 30 years. The delegates also changed the title of the highest State officer from "director" to "State president."

The new office of national planning chairman was created and Miss Mary Johnson, of Buffalo, named the first incumbent. Her duties will be to spread knowledge pertaining to the use of the American Flag. Mrs. Donald Earl, of Washington, was appointed to another new office, that of national chairman of the cradle roll.

Mrs. Kerr, as chairman of a project to furnish the Mary Ball Washington bedroom at Wakefield, reported that her committee has succeeded in replacing a reproduction of a "blanket chest" with an original old chest. The room already contains an original bed, crib and chair.

National officers who reported yesterday included Mrs. William H. Pouch, president; Mrs. Graham Lawrence, chaplain; Mrs. John Lester Barr, recording secretary; Mrs. Percy M. Bailey, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Thaddeus M. Jones, treasurer; Mrs. Ryland C. Bryant, registrar; Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., historian, and Mrs. Charles S. Groves, librarian-curator.

McCarl Appeals To Nation to Halt Super-State Peril

New York, April 25 (AP).—John Raymond McCarl, former United States Comptroller General, appealed to the people tonight to "make Congress realize its responsibility to discharge and not abandon or delegate its duties."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Controllers Institute of America but read for him because he was kept in Washington by illness, McCarl said:

"We must resume self-government. We must stop this march towards a super-State."

That method, he declared, is the only way out of a national condition which he described as more precarious than that "at the depth of the depression in 1931 and '32."

He proposed an intense campaign "to induce capable and courageous men and women to stand for election to the House and Senate to displace super staters and 'rubber stamps'."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

J. Franklyn Viola presents Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe, or the Peer and the Peri" in the Rialto Theater Monday night. The cast:

The Lord Chancellor ..... Frank Moulan
Earl of Mountararat ..... Bertram Peacock
Earl Tolloller ..... James Montgomery
Strephon ..... John Eaton
Iolanthe ..... Dean Dickens
Queen of the Fairies ..... Anne Yago
Private Willis ..... Detmar Poppen
Phyllis ..... Kathryn Reece
Celia ..... Frances Baviello
Leila ..... Patricia Clark
Fleta ..... Gertrude Waldon
Conductor: Max Fichandler

While the audience was by no means lacking in demonstrative approval, last evening's performance of "Iolanthe," by Franklyn Viola's company in the Rialto Theater deserved a larger attendance. Nothing is more conducive to the enjoyment of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta than a crowded house uproarious in its laughter, and the greater the clamor, the more spirited becomes the participation of the performers in the general mirth. For whatever ideas each of them may have privately held as to his thwarted destiny, William S. Gilbert and Arthur S. Sullivan were selected by fate to entertain their fellow mortals.

Frank Moulan, who lent his experienced Savoyard talents to the impersonation of the Lord Chancellor, is to be congratulated on his stage management as well. The well-drilled chorus of peers and peris adapted their evolutions to the exigencies of the small stage with a discipline almost military, and the action of the entire piece had snap and precision. Singing honors for the evening went to James Montgomery as Earl Tolloller, Bertram Peacock as the Earl of Mountararat, and Dean Dickens in the title role.

Gilbert's wit and Sullivan's melodies have accomplished the feat of imparting longevity to topical operettas. When they began their collaboration, their purpose was to provide for English auditors a kind of entertainment that could compete successfully with the reigning favorite of light opera, Offenbach, and to attract a class of patrons for whose taste Offenbach was too frivolously French. Gilbert's librettos were accordingly filled with satire at habits and institutions peculiarly English.

Ordinarily, timeliness of this kind grows stale for the following generations, and it must be admitted that many of the allusions in the Gilbert texts require footnotes today for their full comprehension. Nevertheless we of the Western World, who have no Lord Chancellor to assign in marriage his pretty wards in chancery, can find as much fun in his predicament as did the mid-Victorians of London.

In "Iolanthe," the shafts of ridicule are directed at the House of Lords, and the acme of absurdity is reached when the Queen of the Fairies pronounces her ukase that "a duke's exalted situation shall be obtainable by competitive examination." The shudder that passes through the ranks of the peers at this dire doom has lost none of its appositeness in a society that has become either democratic or dictatorial.

Bennetts Face Second Trial in Jewelry Case

Alleged to have brought stolen jewelry worth $6,600 here from New York, Eula Mae Bennett, her husband, James Bennett, and David Pinas, went on trial yesterday before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

Several weeks ago, a previous trial ended when one of the jurors asked a lawyer whether he could ask questions of the witnesses. The juror was found in contempt of court.

Among articles said by police to have been brought here was a bracelet valued at $3,800, reported stolen from the Greenwich, Conn., home of Mrs. Martin Lamont, whose screen name is Ruth Coleman.

The Bennetts, both stylishly dressed, and Pinas listened attentively as prosecutors Charles B. Murray and William Hitz outlined the Government case. Mrs. Bennett, a diminutive blonde, and her husband appeared confident of acquittal. Pinas was not on trial at the first hearing. He was recently arrested in Florida, though he has been under indictment for a year.

Mrs. Ida May Vare Dies.

Grange Leader Calls Chemistry Answer to Idle

Omaha, Neb., April 26 (AP).—Louis J. Taber, of Columbus, Ohio, master of the National Grange, urged agriculture and business today to get behind the chemurgic movement to put idle men and idle acres to work.

Speaking before the National Farm Chemurgic Council's fourth annual conference, the white-haired farm leader asserted that if agriculture and business will co-operate and utilize the truths of science and chemistry that the Chemurgic program has revealed, men will be called back to work, the consumer will be protected, national purchasing power will be enhanced and the Nation will be on the pathway to better conditions.

"What America needs is not more pump priming," taber declared, "but more water in the well of prosperity. All that is needed today is to drive the well deeper until we strike the bedrock of limitless national assets."

D. C. Watched for Gold Stolen in Baltimore

Washington police last night were asked to be on the lookout for $5,000 worth of dental gold reported stolen from a Baltimore supply house sometime last week-end. Maryland officials asked Washington police to watch all places where the gold might be disposed of.

Included in the loot were 2,000 gold shells, 500 gold plates, a large amount of gold solder and a number of pellets and small ingots.

LISTEN TO THEIR KENTUCKY MOUNTAIN MUSIC

Fifth Annual National Folk Festival

Sponsored by The Washington Post Folk Festival Association

Hear them as they sing Kentucky mountain music and ballads handed down from many previous generations. This group is only one of the many from 29 States that are coming to Washington on May 6, 7 and 8 for the Fifth Annual National Folk Festival that is going to be held in Constitution Hall. It's the first time that such a show has been produced in the East—and this folk festival is even greater than any of the previous four. It has been planned for the past ten months. Don't miss it. Matinees: 50c and 75c (Box Seats, $1). Evenings: 50c, 75c and $1 (Box Seats, $2). Choice seats now available.
